2 States Set Defenses For Storm Carla

Louisiana, Texas Coasts Preparing Against Hurricane

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana and Texas coasts, an 800-mile strip from New Orleans to the Mexican border, buttressed their defenses today for the first of Hurricane Carla's 125-mile an hour winds.

The Weather Bureau in New Orleans, in its 1 a.m. bulletin, said the storm was about 400 miles south of New Orleans in the Gulf of Mexico. It plowed along at about nine miles per hour in a west northwest direction.

There was still no definite indication where the "large and dangerous" storm might move inland. It maintained its curve westward during the night.

But hundreds in the Louisiana coastal marsh country heeded the Weather Bureau's note of caution to evacuate the lowlands and seek higher ground.

In Cameron, La., devastated by Hurricane Audrey in 1957 with more than 500 killed, only a hardy handful—police estimated less than 25—of the town's 5,000 population remained. All stores and business were boarded up.

Police guarded all roads into Cameron, perched atop a ridge about 30 miles south of Lake Charles, La., and only 40 miles from the Texas state line.

Carla pushed tides two to three feet higher than normal toward the mainland and the Weather Bureau said hurricane warnings would supplant the hurricane watch from the Mississippi River along the entire Texas coast sometime today.

There were no reports of distress in any of the southwest Louisiana parishes, but evacuation centers were set up at Lake Charles high schools—one white and one Negro—to handle those seeking refuge.

Oil and gas operations in the rich Gulf tidelands off the coasts of both states came to a stop Friday night as Carla approached. Oil companies took workers and equipment from the big rigs and few stayed on duty at the drilling stations.

In Lake Charles, 30 miles above the Louisiana coastline, there was little to indicate a killer storm lay out in the Gulf.

Breezes were calm Friday night and there was no rain. A big crowd turned out for a high school game, played across the street from the gymnasium evacuation center.

Fear arose at Crowley, self-styled rice capital of the world, for a $5-million rice crop only three weeks from harvest.

Crowning Set Tonight For Miss America

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—10-5-4-3-2-1. That's the way the countdown will go tonight, and when it reaches its climax—along about midnight—one of the 55 lissome lassies competing here will be launched on a thrilling year's reign as Miss America.

After three nights of preliminary competition the big prize—the Miss America crown, which carries with it a $10,000 scholarship plus personal appearance tours for a year which will net the winner about $75,000—is up for grabs.

Early in the evening, 10 semi-finalists will be chosen. Later on, the field will be narrowed to five finalists.

East, West, North and South all were represented among the six winners of the three nights of preliminary competition. Friday night, a red-haired California cutie and a brunette from North Carolina broke the monopoly blondes held during Wednesday's and Thursday's competition.

Susan Ann Henryson of Fresno, Calif., took the talent award in the third and final round. The swim suit prize went to Maria Beale Fletcher, an Asheville, N.C., beauty who measures 35-34-35.

Probers Offer Aid In Player Bribe Attempt

Senate Committee Hears Testimony Of Oregon Gridder

WASHINGTON (AP) —Senate investigators offered today to help prosecute two gamblers accused of trying to bribe a University of Oregon football player.

Lt. Carl Robinson, head of the Michigan state police rackets squad, told a reporter he would urge immediate reopening of the case now that the Senate Investigations subcommittee has turned up one of the gamblers, Frank Rosenthal.

At subcommittee hearings Friday, the player, Michael Bruce, 20, dramatically pointed to Rosenthal as the man who offered him $5,000 to fix last fall's Oregon-Michigan game. Bruce, of El Cajon, Calif., said the bribe was offered in a hotel on the eve of the game at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Bruce said he exposed the offer to the Oregon coaching staff and police were called in.

Rosenthal, of Chicago and Miami, stared impassively as Bruce leveled a finger at him. Then Rosenthal invoked the Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination and refused to testify about the incident.

The other gambler, David Budin, 28, a former New York school teacher, was arrested at the hotel. He was tried and fined $100 on a charge of registering under a false name.

Last June, Budin, former co-captain of the Brooklyn College basketball team, was indicted in New York on bribery charges in college basketball scandals.

No Immediate Health Danger

U.S. Experts May Detect Soviet A-Fallout Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radioactive fallout from the Soviet Union's third nuclear test may be detected today by U.S. observers.

Officials have said there was no immediate health danger from the fallout.

Due to a weather freak, the radioactive cloud from the third nuclear test passed across to the North American continent ahead of fallout from the second blast.

Dr. Lester Machta, a U.S. Weather Bureau scientist, said that due to the weather at the time of Monday's second shot, the radioactive cloud was largely caught in a high pressure cell above northern Siberia.

The third test — touched off Tuesday—presumably was caught by strong winds and went scooting underneath the high pressure area toward the east.

Machta said the cloud from the third shot was moving at about 60 miles an hour and was due over this continent Friday night or today.

If no fallout is detected today, Machta said, U.S. scientists will presume that the third shot may have been exploded at high altitude. It would take longer for fallout from a high shot to tumble back down where it can be detected.

Machta and other Weather Bureau scientists estimate that the first test was exploded below 40,000 feet. This is indicated, they say, by the relatively rapid ar-

De Gaulle Shrugs Off Plot Against His Life

Mr. K Snubs Appeal For A-Test Ban

Formally Rejects U.S.-British Bid Against Air Blasts

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev formally rejected today the U.S.-British appeal for a ban on nuclear tests in the earth's atmosphere. He suggested a big power study of major world problems to stave off the threat of nuclear war.

"It goes without saying that the Soviet government cannot and will not agree to such a deal," Khrushchev said of the Western proposal for the embargo on further atmospheric tests.

In a broadcast statement concerning the move by President Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, Khrushchev said they were trying to divorce the question of weapon testing from the over-all problem of disarmament.

They were trying to have the question considered "in isolation," he complained in identical notes delivered to the U.S. and British embassies.

Khrushchev went on: "Every line of their statement revealed a desire to ensure, cost what it may, for the Western powers and their allies in aggressive military blocs, unilateral military advantages to the detriment of the security interests of the Soviet Union and the other socialist states."

Khrushchev called the Western offer dishonest.

At the same time he issued a counterappeal to the United States and Britain for a big power study of major world problems to stave off the threat of nuclear war over Berlin.

Kennedy and Macmillan had appealed to Khrushchev for an all-time, unpoliced ban on nuclear testing in the atmosphere.

Khrushchev urged the Western leaders "to embark together on the solution of the major problem of our times—universal and total disarmament."

He said, "Let us seek seriously, in good faith, a solution to the question of concluding a German peace treaty so as to arrest in good time the sliding of states into the inferno of a rocket-nuclear war. Then everything will be set in place again; there will not only be no nuclear tests but even no threat of a nuclear war."

Jobless Claims Here Continue To Decline

Claims for jobless benefits processed through the East Liverpool office of the Ohio State Employment Service continued to decline this week, Harry L. Dinsmore, manager, said today.

Dinsmore reported claims this week totaled 509 — 87 fewer than were filed for the week ending Sept. 2. The total included 369 filed under the state program and 140 received under the federal extension plan.

The breakdown showed 44 new claims and 325 continuing under the regular benefits plan and seven new and 133 continuing under the federal law, Dinsmore said.

Pleasant Weather Slated Over Weekend

The Ohio Valley will have pleasant weather over the weekend — with little humidity and no rain. Skies will be fair.

Temperatures, with cool nights and moderate daytime weather, will continue through Sunday.

The Ohio weatherman said today's high will range between 82 and 88 and tonight's low 58 to 64.

The downtown had a 59 this morning — the lowest mark in over two weeks. But there may be lower temperatures soon — autumn will arrive officially Sept. 23.

'In Immediate Future'

U.S. Will Send 40,000 More Troops To Europe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced today that about 40,000 additional regular Army troops would be sent to Europe "in the immediate future."

Most of them will go to Germany to strengthen combat because of forces in the Soviet Union's threat to West Berlin.

The Pentagon also announced that transportation of dependents to Europe would be suspended, beginning Oct. 9.

The suspension covers all means of travel and applies to travel to the following countries: Belgium, Denmark, France, West Germany, Greece, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Turkey and the United Kingdom.

The suspension of travel applies to dependents of both combat troops and civilian employes of the Defense Department. It does not apply to West Berlin. The Pentagon said West Berlin was a "special case" but did not explain this.

The 40,000 men being sent abroad are all regular Army troops. Officials would not name the units or tell exactly where they are coming from.

An announcement said these reinforcements would bring the 7th Army, stationed in Germany, and other U.S. units committed to North Atlantic Treaty Organization to full combat strength. They will also provide additional combat, combat-support and logistical units for U.S. Army forces in Europe.

The 40,000 includes 3,000 men the Army had previously announced were going to Germany. Gen. George H. Decker said Friday that each of the three infantry divisions in the critical German area was being given 1,000 additional men.

Present strength of U.S. forces in Germany includes five divisions —three infantry and two armored.

There are about 250,000 troops in Germany.

President Calls Effort Little Joke

Explosive Failed To Discharge; Man Quickly Arrested

PARIS (AP) — President De Gaulle escaped injury in a bizarre assassination attempt with fire and explosives on a country road Friday night, official sources said today. The old soldier shrugged off the incident.

"This was just a little joke in bad taste," De Gaulle said.

The presidential limousine had sped safely through a wall of flame from an inflammable mixture apparently touched off to serve as the fuse for a plastic bomb. The plastic charge, weighing eight pounds, had failed to go off.

Police quickly arrested a man. There was no immediate indication whether he had anything to do with the incident.

Plastic explosives are frequently used by right-wing Algerian settlers in acts of terrorism against De Gaulle's Algerian policies.

Official sources said De Gaulle ordered the cars in his party halted after they had passed through the flames. He got out, hunched his shoulders, and said scoffingly: "This was just a little joke in bad taste."

Then the 70-year-old president got back into his limousine and resumed the trip to his country home about 150 miles east of Paris.

De Gaulle at first insisted that the incident not be made public because he considered it "of no importance at all," government sources said. Later, he relented when his advisors told him word of it was certain to get out.

A palace communique said: "An inflammable mixture along with an explosive charge last night was placed between Nogent and Romilly, on the road that the chief of state was taking to Colombey-les-Deux Eglises.

"This inflammable mixture took fire without provoking an explosion towards 2200 hours (10 p.m.) at the moment when the presidential cars passed. The speed of the cars was not slackened.

"Gen. De Gaulle arrived at Colombey-les-Deux Eglises at the scheduled time."

One of the regular gendarmes patrols located at intervals along the Paris-Colombey route dashed to the area when the flames shot up.

Investigators said that the "inflammable mixture" was apparently intended to serve as a fuse for the plastic charge but something went amiss.

The 15-member panel will be seated Tuesday morning and will be sworn in by Judge Joel H. Sharp, who will handle criminal cases this term. A venire of 50 prospective grand jurors have been called.

After inspection of the County Jail in the forenoon, the panel will return after lunch and it will hear witnesses in seven cases, Brokaw said.

Padlock Step Seen Against Lisbon Firm

Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy said today he plans legal action to padlock the Lisbon Salesbook Co., which was raided Wednesday as an alleged source of numbers slips for rackets in 12 to 15 states.

He said in a statement thanking Columbiana County officials for their help in the raid that he plans an early conference with Prosecutor G. William Brokaw "to aid in bringing legal action to padlock the printing conern."

McElroy sent letters to Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard, Prosecutor Brokaw and Lisbon Police Chief Dalton Pike, who accompanied him and other state men on the raid.

The printing plant was turning out more than 20,000 books a day at the time of the raid. McElroy called it the third largest numbers or "bug" book printing plant in the country.

In the letter to Brokaw, McElroy said:

"I'm sure this operation could not have been stopped . . . . without your help . . . . ."

He also thanked Pike and Judge Buzzard and said the co-operation of various law enforcement agencies indicates the state "is serving notice on all manufacturers of gambling equipment that the state means business and will not tolerate violations of its laws."

Faulty Valve Causes Atlas Missile To Fall

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —A faulty fuel valve apparently caused an Atlas missile to fall into the Atlantic Ocean about 200 miles offshore Friday night shortly after it lifted off on the start of an intended 5,000-mile test flight.

Air Force technicians studied data radioed from the missile in an effort to pinpoint the trouble.

West Efforts For Parley On Berlin Fail

U.S. Officials Still Express Confidence For Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Western efforts to open up a basis for negotiation of a Berlin settlement with the Soviet Union were reported today to have been unsuccessful so far.

U.S. officials still expressed confidence, however, that exploration through diplomatic channels, including the American Embassy in Moscow and contacts at the United Nations, eventually will lead to negotiations between the Soviet Union and the Western powers.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk declared here Friday night that "we expect negotiations on Berlin as soon as it is apparent that negotiations of a serious and constructive character can occur."

But he said there is nothing in the "fine print" of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's statements on Berlin to "show the path to agreement."

Rusk warned the Soviet government against risking disaster by single-handed action against Allied interests in West Berlin. He also warned the Kremlin not to mistake the West's desire for peace as a willingness to yield to the Soviets' Berlin demand.

At the moment, Rusk said, the channels of communication available between Moscow and Western capitals "are not being neglected."

It is understood that U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson had a talk with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Moscow earlier this week.

1,600 Miles From Home

Blind Texan Stops In City On Hitch-Hiking Trip

People in many peculiar guises and on many strange missions are everyday sights at police headquarters, but Chief Americo J. Radeschi confessed he was flabbergasted by the 65-year-old blind man found standing in the middle of Route 30 in California Hollow Friday afternoon.

With just five pennies in his pocket, he was attempting to hitch-hike back to his home in West Texas, a distance of over 1,600 miles!

The plucky traveler, Clayton Pierce, finally agreed to stay overnight in East Liverpool while police tried to figure out a more conventional way of getting him back to his home — and assuring that he will have some sort of food and lodging along the way.

Pierce insisted he felt perfectly at home in his long jaunt, even though he had only a vague idea of the route he would follow and his total baggage consisted of a battered little suitcase with toilet articles and a change of underclothing and socks.

"I have a road map in my head," he said. "I know where I'm headed. And I can sleep and eat at missions along the way."

Pierce said he is on his way back to the Lone Star State after a swing around the country "to see some of my friends during the nice summer weather."

He said he started back to Texas Wednesday after a visit with

Plane Snaps Mooring Blocks, Takes Off On Erratic Flight

BURLINGTON, Iowa (AP)—Doren Bumgardner planned a short airplane flight around Burlington Friday. He didn't make it—but the plane did.

The plane, a Civil Air Patrol L16, jumped its mooring blocks at Municipal Airport after Bumgardner started the engine.

Then the shiny silver craft tried its wings without a pilot on an erratic two-hour flight that ended in an Illinois bean field.

"I sure hope it doesn't happen to me again," said the 29-year-old pilot, a member of the Burlington CAP squadron.

The plane's unusual behavior had this city of 34,000 persons in a tizzy for an hour as it circled lazily at 1,200 feet over downtown buildings and outlying residential areas.

Finally the plane straightened out, climbed to 12,000 feet, ran out of gas and plunged onto the J. L. Garmer farm four miles west of Aledo, Ill. The only damage was to the plane—demolished—and to the bean field.

"When that engine started, it started real fast," said Bumgardner, a rated pilot for six years. He said he ran to the side of the plane, grabbed the control stick, but couldn't get inside.

"I tried to do everything in my power to hold her down," he said. "I just couldn't. I had to let go."

Bumgardner suffered a skinned right side from ankle to hip. He was taken to a hospital.

Roller For Driveway Disabled By Vandals

A three - wheel roller being used in the blacktopping of the driveway and parking lot at the Trinity United Presbyterian Church was disabled by vandals, police were told Friday afternoon.

Ralph Froehlich, foreman for the Tri-State Asphalt Co., which has the blacktopping contract, told police the vandals placed sand in the battery, dirt in the oil pan and disconnected and removed the wiring to the distributor.

The vandals also filled a switch with mud and splattered mud over the controls, Froehlich said. The damage occurred Thursday night or early Friday while the roller was parked in the driveway from Maine Blvd.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wickenham of Wheeling R.D. 4.

However, officials said a check through the Ohio County sheriff's office revealed no one by that name, and there was no telephone listing in the name despite Pierce's statement that he had called the family when he arrived in Wheeling and they picked him up in their car.

Pierce related that he hitchhiked as far as Steubenville, arriving there Thursday. He hopped a bus in Steubenville and wound up in East Liverpool to get onto Route 30 and head due west. He stayed Thursday night at the Rescue Mission on Broadway.

"I expect to go as far west as Davenport, Iowa, and then bear south and west to Amarillo," he said. When I get there, all I have to do is find my way to Wichita Falls and then on to Vernon."

Pierce said he is staying off the shortest and quickest highway route to Texas "because it goes through too many big cities" — Columbus, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Oklahoma City.

"My feet aren't any good any more and I don't like that long walk clear across those big towns," he said.

Pierce conceded his planned route is more roundabout, but added he won't have a single metropolis to contend with.

Balding and of slight build, Pierce is attired in grey chino shirt and trousers, wears a floppy felt hat and carries a battered white cane.

Proud of his self-sufficiency, he said: "I have just five pennies in my pocket."

Pierce related that he had been totally blind since he was injured in an auto accident 32 years ago in Idaho that also left him with a fractured back. He said he has no close relatives.

He said he draws a $68-a-month blind pension from his native state, but the September payment is gone and the next check isn't due until early October.

Before he was injured, Pierce was a truck-driver, he related.

"That was back in the days when trucks had solid rubber tires," he said.

Pierce arrived at the Rescue Mission about 5 p.m. Thursday. Allowed to stay overnight, he remained until about 1:30 Friday afternoon. Meanwhile, Pierce insisted on leaving and Kenneth Steen, the mission superintendent, tried to persuade him to stay while efforts were made to raise money for bus fare to Texas.

But Pierce finally won the argument and Steen agreed to drive him to the city limits on Route 30 so he could resume his hitchhiking. Returning to town, he decided to tell the police department about the strange traveler and see what the officers thought should be done.

Chief Radeschi dispatched Patrolman William A. Devon in a cruiser to check. He found Pierce standing in the middle of the highway.

He brought Pierce to headquarters and police and Steen set about again to find if they could raise money somehow for bus fare and traveling expenses.

Cites Ballot Discrimination

Rights Group Urges Law To Ensure Voting Rights

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Rights Commission recommended today that Congress enact legislation to ensure the right of all qualified Americans to vote. It said six years of schooling should meet any state literacy requirement.

Evidence of balloting discrimination has been found in eight Southern states, the commission reported.

The commission divided 4 to 2 on the recommendation that Congress pass laws to deal with discrimination against Negroes and other minority groups in voting.

This recommendation was in two parts. Citing the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Constitution as establishing a federal say in voting matters, the commission majority said Congress should:

Declare that voter qualifications other than age, residence, confinement and conviction of a crime are susceptible to use and have been used to deny the right to vote on grounds of race and color.

Enact legislation providing that all citizens shall have a right to vote in federal or state elections and that this right shall not be interfered with except for inability to meet reasonable age or length of residence requirements or on grounds of conviction of a crime.

The right to vote, the commission added, should also include the right to register or otherwise qualify to vote and have the vote counted.

The majority included Chairman John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University; the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University; Spottswood W. Robinson III, dean of the Howard University Law School, and Dean Erwin N. Griswolf of the Harvard Law School.

The dissenters were Vice Chairman Robert G. Storey, former dean of the Law School of Southern Methodist University, and Robert S. Rankin, chairman of the Department of Political Science at Duke University.

County Posts Ask Action In Relief Setup

A resolution calling for remedial legislation of the 105th General Assembly in connection with the Soldiers & Sailors Relief Fund was passed unanimously by the Columbiana County American Legion Council Friday night.

Forty attended the session in the Post 4 home on the Diamond.

The resolution calls upon the Legion's State Department committee to seek remedial legislation enabling county officials to retain unencumbered balances in the relief fund from year to year.

Under the present law, all balances at the end of the fiscal year go to the general fund.

The council voiced an opinion that the unspent balances should remain in the relief fund from year to year to be used when the demands are heaviest.

Kenneth Bell, county auditor, told the group he hopes the new property appraisal will boost the tax valuation of Columbiana County from $199 million to $220 million when it goes into effect early in 1962.

Walter McCoy of Lisbon, county commander, presided. Louis Krawiec, chaplain, offered a memorial prayer for four members who died the past month, including Lee Mackey and Homer McVay of East Liverpool, Lawrence Schaeffer of Salem, and Paul Marks of East Palestine.

Next meeting is Oct. 13 at Wellsville Post 70.

Coroner Reports 99 Deaths So Far In '61

A total of 99 deaths have been recorded in Columbiana County in 1961 up to Aug. 30, according to a report issued today by Dr. William A. Kolozsi, county coroner.

A breakdown shows 34 accidental deaths, 54 natural, four suicides and two homicides.

Dr. Kolozsi reported 26 autopsies have been performed and 28 "reports of investigation" made.

rival over the United States of radioactive debris from the initial blast Sept. 1.

Fallout from the first blast was detected earlier this week by a station in Alaska, but there have been no reports of spotting it elsewhere.

Machta said the cloud from the first test should begin passing over the Atlantic towards Europe by Sunday. He said there were two possible explanations as to why it had not been reported elsewhere:

1. The radioactive cloud may be on a course that takes it over Canada, and it may not be as wide as the 700 miles originally estimated.

2. There are delays of about 24 hours in reporting by the detection stations of the health service network.

By the time the radioactive debris from the second and fourth shots arrives over the United States, Machta said, the cloud from the first test probably will have gone around the world again and the subsequent clouds will mix in with it. This will make it hard to detect the later tests.

Appellate Court Will Air 7 Cases

Experimenter Gets Pears On Apple Tree

Willen Baumgarner of Midway Ln. is preparing to pick some pears from a tree in his yard.

Nothing strange about this, to be sure, except the pears are growing on an apple tree.

Baumgarner, who raises fruit trees as a hobby, also experiments with grafting procedures. About six years ago he grafted a branch from a bartlett pear tree to the apple tree which basically is of the red delicious variety.

The pear branch has had blossoms in the past but this is the first year it has produced any fruit. The same tree also has at least two other types of apples on it.

Baumgarner, who works for a Leetonia construction firm, has another tree with three varieties of apples and a cherry tree with six varieties of fruit.

He has about 10 apple trees with which he experiments.

Prison Inmate Asks County Lift Detainer

Common Pleas Court Judge Raymond S. Buzzard has taken under advisement a plea of John Cieselski that Columbiana County's detainer is depriving him of some of his rights in a federal prison.

The Pittsburgh man, indicted for the burglary of the Peoples Drugstore in East Liverpool June 24, 1960, is now in a federal penitentiary because of another crime.

He was freed on $10,000 bond in the city case and his attorneys petitioned Lisbon court for dismissal of the burglary charge and the detainer.

Prosecutor G. William Brokaw refused to drop the charge and withdraw the detainer and will furnish Judge Buzzard a brief for study in connection with Cieselski's plea.

A Tribute

To Our School Teachers!

Today, as no time before in history, the school teacher is recognized as the builder of tomorrow's America! With juvenile delinquency increasing apace, and foreign ideologies creeping into our school books, it is high time that glowing tribute was paid to these patient men and women who instruct our young. Let's remember that teachers are human beings, not machines. Let's give them the support and confidence they so richly deserve. Let's attend P-T-A meetings and contribute something more than children. This community is fortunate in having such fine schools and outstanding educators. We applaud their work and their good American achievements!

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin was expected to bring the 34-month-old parley to a formal end by delivering the Kremlin's rejection of the last-minute Western proposal for a ban on tests that contaminate the earth's atmosphere.

The deadline set by the West for the Soviet Union's answer on their offer expired with today's meeting.

Facts You Should Know About Septic Tanks

A Septic Tank is actually the "stomach" of the disposal system, its purpose being to digest and liquefy the solids entering it, discharging liquids to the disposal area.

In general, Septic Tanks are constructed of steel or concrete, varying in size from 500 to 10,000 gallon capacities. Correctly made and installed, they form an airtight and watertight chamber.

The inlet carries the raw sewage into the first chamber of the tank. Most of the solids will settle to the bottom of this chamber, developing bacterial colonies which "feed" on these solids. This bottom layer is termed, "sludge". A crust or "mat" will usually form on the top, this being composed mainly of grease and fatty substances which have a tendency to float. The second chamber enables further clarification of the water prior to passing out to the drainage area. Water leaving a Septic Tank is referred to as "effluent".

Septic Tanks will operate satisfactorily as long as the "mat" and "sludge" do not build up to the point where they start feeding through into the second chamber, and then out to the drainage area. Unfortunately, most people wait until the system "backs-up", which means that the tank is completely clogged and that large amounts of solids have passed through with the effluent.

Most Septic Tank failures are caused by (1) introduction of chemicals which destroy the bacteria life, (2) overloading, i.e., putting more into the tank in any 24-hr. period than its designed capacity, (3) temperature changes which slow down the bacterial digestion, and (4) excessive use of greases and fats.

Regular use of "SEA-CAL", preferably combined with an initial "seeding" of the tank with "SEA-CAL" will usually eliminate all of the problems by introducing powerful glandular enzymes which accelerate the digestive action and prevent the passage of solids to the drainage area. Enzymes, such as are used in "SEA-CAL", are also extremely resistant to temperature and pH changes, and the addition of millions of bacterial cultures (80,000,000 per gram) in SEA-CAL replaces the bacterial colonies that may have been destroyed.

It would be untrue to state that a Septic Tank need never be pumped, since sewage can only be digested to a point of "ash", and the introduction of inorganic materials, such as sand, grit, metal, and glass, will create a build-up over a period of time that will have to be removed. However, with regular monthly treatments of SEA-CAL, these pumpings should occur only at ten or twenty-year intervals.

Virtue Was Triumphant

We'll have to take the word of observers on the scene that the result of the Democratic primary in New York City was a triumph for virtue.

The city's mayor, Robert F. Wagner Jr., seeking a third term, won.

He was the reform candidate. Therefore, virtue must have been triumphant.

The catch is that we followed the campaign via newspapers and magazines and had the idea that virtue also would have been triumphant if Mayor Wagner had been licked.

This is because things haven't gone well during his two terms in office. There have been many scandals.

Because of the fact he had been put in office by Tammany Hall, symbol of Democratic bossism in New York City, this looked like a problem for the New York County Democratic Committee, which runs Tammany Hall.

Narrowed down still further, it looked like a problem for Carmine G. DeSapio, chief of Tammany Hall — the man who made it possible for Robert F. Wagner Jr. to become mayor of the nation's largest city.

BUT MAYOR WAGNER didn't wait for Mr. DeSapio to solve the problem. He discovered, instead, that he was opposed to Tammany Hall, Mr. DeSapio and all the bosses of the Democratic organizations throughout New York County. He was not their responsibility, he insisted.

He fled to the "reformers," as typified by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Herbert H. Lehman, former New York governor and U.S. senator. He became their white knight.

This is an old and standard move in New York politics — to get into office by running as an organization Democrat, then to stay in office by running against the organization. It works in other places, too.

It has worked again in the New York City primary.

There was an exceptionally heavy vote, showing that New Yorkers were in arms over the reform issue. They really thought Mayor Wagner, after two terms under auspices of the Democratic organization, had seen the light and would show the way to future civic virtue. You can fool some of the voters all of the time; you can bet on it.

MEANWHILE, Republicans will take hope. Their nominee for mayor is Louis J. Lefkowitz, with plenty of backing and the blessing of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

It has been 20 years since New York had a Republican mayor, the unforgettable Fiorello A. La Guardia. With the Democratic organization rebuked by Robert Wagner, its own man, Lefkowitz might have a chance.

To top off the triumph of virtue, incidentally, Mr. DeSapio lost his own district leadership which puts him on the political sidelines. Perhaps with some hocus-pocus he can run as a reformer the next time, too. Voters always love a reformer.

That Was The Very Idea

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has been forced to defend himself for a policy that is rooted in the foundation of American government.

Critics in Congress have accused him of exercising civilian control over a military department. Their specific complaint is that he used his civilian authority to censor forthcoming public statements of military officers and that some of the statements were anti-Communist.

To be sure, the complaint is made in connection with an accusation that statements against the Communist Conspiracy were toned down, thereby giving the complainants the benefit of anti-Communist feeling. But their complaint should be evaluated in terms of general policy, not in terms of the particular subject matter of one group of public speeches.

As far as the Communist Conspiracy is concerned, Secretary McNamara has made it abundantly clear that he is just as opposed to it as any of the militarists under his authority, or any of the backers some of them have found for the claim that their speeches should not be subject to review. The secretary of defense is not being soft on Communism.

He is, instead, being tough about his historic prerogative as secretary of defense. George Washington, the first president, laid down the policy of civilian control of military departments.

When the Department of Defense was created in 1947, the first secretary was James V. Forrestal, a civilian. With the exception of Gen. George C. Marshall, who served briefly at the beginning of the last decade, all subsequent secretaries have been from civilian life. Secretary McNamara, like the others, has had to prove his right to hold his authority against generals, admirals and other military critics who have resented his presence.

This is what he is doing now.

The issue is not the Communist Conspiracy. It is the rule that civilians should control the military power of the United States. Secretary McNamara's position should be understood. He is fighting for a traditional right.

Say It Isn't So

Teachers in district schools may be confronted by smug students with the news that the word "ain't" has been recognized by Webster's dictionary as used in "cultivated" circles.

The laws of Ohio recognize murder, and the courts recognize it is practiced in cultivated circles. But, regardless, it is frowned on most strongly.

In a world where it is becoming increasingly more difficult to find someone taking a stand, The Review takes a stand against "ain't".

Despite the dictionary's action, we feel in this case its reasoning "ain't necessarily so" and that the aforementioned "cultivated" should be plowed under if they continue to throw the word in the face of those who take pride in proper speech.

Live Film From West Berlin

Before newspapers tee off on the report that the United States Army faked some action in West Berlin for Jack Paar, the TV personality, they would do well to confess their own transgressions.

Press photographers have been known to take posed pictures of politicians ostensibly making speeches. Studio technicians have made judicious retouches on photographs. Reporters have asked questions designed to get the answers they wanted.

The press has no license to cast a first stone at Jack Paar, who went to Berlin to get live film for his TV show and is doing his job. It does have a right to wonder how the U.S. Army got mixed up in the dido, of course — and this will take some explaining.

IN ACTUAL TRUTH, here is a dilemma in the graphic arts — how to walk a straight line and still be graphic. Things do not always shape up the way they should to have understandable form; that's the problem. That's why there's a dilemma.

Take the Berlin tension.

To show what is happening, Jack Paar and his crew needed action. But there was no action, so the Army provided a semblance of action. If Paar had been a sports writer in need of an action picture on a football field when no game was in progress, the boys would have been ordered to furnish a little action. It's that simple.

EXCEPT THAT IT ISN'T that simple. In New Orleans, when school desegregation was popping, TV cameramen were responsible for taking pictures of screaming women away from the actual scene of the trouble. The women then trotted home to watch themselves on their TV sets, ostensibly doing something they hadn't done. The pictures appeared on TV sets all over the United States and gave a wrong impression of what was happening in New Orleans.

The dilemma of the graphic arts isn't going to be straightened out suddenly. Jack Parr is tangled up in something that he won't be able to talk himself out of without a lot of stuttering. He has lots of company.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

New York mayoralty primary is over and the city is suffering no more than expected as a result of "fallout" from candidates' speeches. Lucky was any New Yorker who had an underground shelter to protect him from the oratory. At the finish the public slogan was "May the least abused candidate win!"

All speeches charged rivals with crookedness, ignorance, inefficiency, double dealing, dirty work at crossroads, chronic lethargy, and almost everything but hay fever and the lack of a cure for the common cold. They made thousands of voters afraid to vote for anybody in the race.

City was fortunate that campaign was concluded before any candidate was blamed for resumption of bomb tests, Punjab disturbance, Brazilian crisis and Mickey Mantle's arm sprain. It was one of the few campaigns in which dressing-stations had to be set up for each candidate while another was speaking.

Wagner and Levitt should have been allowed Hollywood stunt men as "standins" to sub for them during extra violent routines.

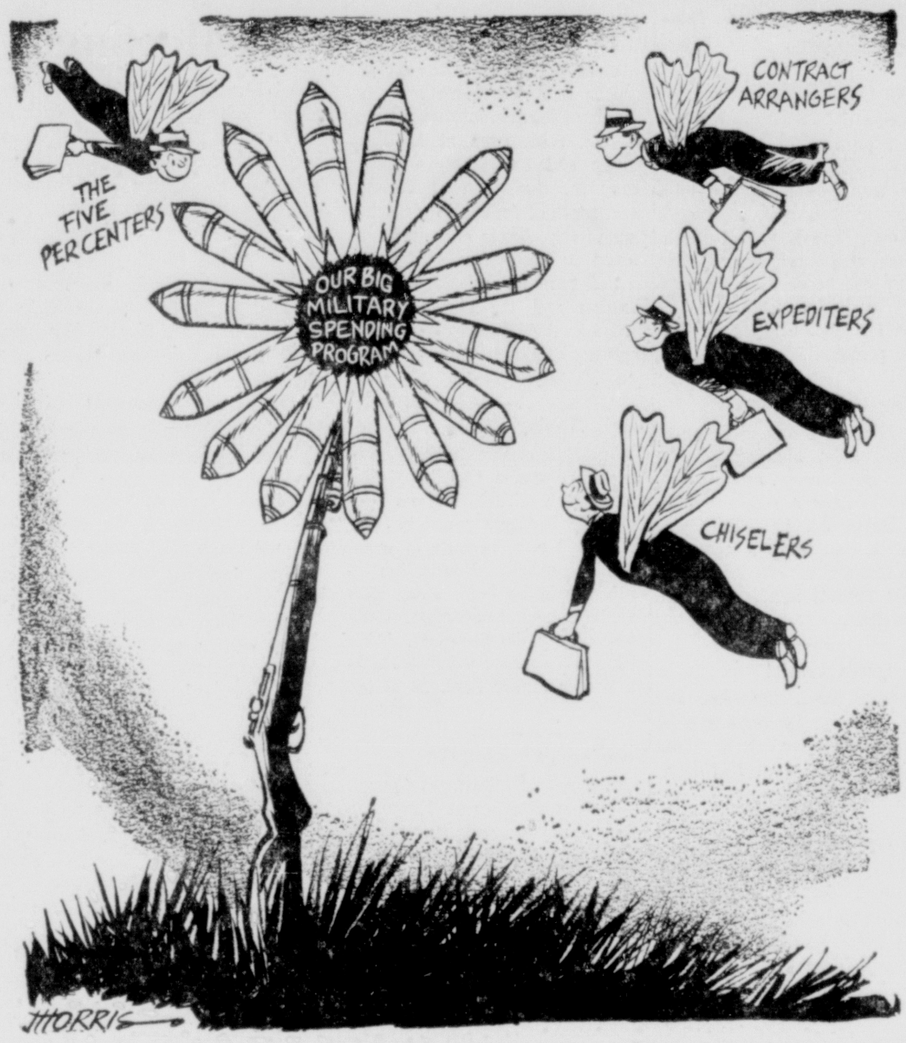

It means an election for mayor in which men with the best record for consumption of hot dogs, blintzes, knishes and Coney Island box-lunches may win, if he also exceeds his opponent in opposition to "This door not working" subway signs, slow snow removals, general skulduggery and dirty towels at soda fountains. (The Metropolitan Opera crisis didn't enter in the primary, after it was apparent that Arthur Goldberg had won it.)

It was one battle so dangerous that President Kennedy kept out. He didn't even send a wire to neutrals. Primary conclusion: New York City Hall should be leased for pro wrestling bouts and Park Row set aside for rodeo shows. Onward, voters, to the polls for co-existence between political candidates!

Harry Truman was at recent big ball game in New York. He is one fan who gets a special kick out of "walks".

Porpoises have intelligence close to that of humans, says a scientist who has made close studies of fish and people. He says they can be taught to talk. It would be somewhat disconcerting to see a school come up just off the starboard quarter and ask "Why doncher look where ya going?"

Anti-Strike Weapon Put Away

By Victor Riesel

There's a top secret label on the "secret weapon" which John Kennedy and Arthur Goldberg had in their private "arsenal" for use against General Motors and Walter Reuther's union if there had been an auto strike. The gadget, whatever it is, goes back in the bin — undisclosed — for possible action against the much tougher crisis coming in "steel" next spring.

Victor Riesel

In White House circles it is no secret that President Kennedy has told Arthur Goldberg he will not tolerate crippling national strikes.

The President did not get tough with both sides in the automobile dispute because he took Arthur Goldberg's word some four months ago that there would not be a strike. The labor secretary predicted this quietly at a Cabinet meeting just about the time Reuther first called for auto contract bargaining.

AS THE PRESIDENT and the other Cabinet members listened, the secretary of labor said there would be a non-inflationary, peaceful settlement. Goldberg then urged his colleagues and advised his chief to be careful in any statements or comments on the coming auto "crisis."

While everybody else was predicting a strike, Goldberg stuck to his analysis — and even booked passage for Scandinavia on Sept. 21. The other night he dined with a newsman who said to him, "We're the only two in the land who believe there will be no national stoppage."

There were really three — the other was the President. Nonetheless John Kennedy rode herd hard on this one. So intensely did Mr. Kennedy feel about a paralyzing auto strike which would hit 19 states — and perhaps some 35 in all if other companies went down — that he reached for the phone almost the moment he arrived from Hyannis Port last Tuesday morning. Despite the atomic disturbances, he called Goldberg. The President was assured there would be no stoppage.

THE NEXT MORNING, with the last of the breakfasting congressmen hardly out of the White House door, Mr. Kennedy was on the phone with the labor secretary. Again the chief executive was assured by his minority of one.

What made Goldberg so certain he was not positioning his chief? To some friends, Goldberg says it was his "intuition." But Mr. G. takes as many chances as a professional gambler—none!

For months he had been warning both sides the government would move in fast if there was a stoppage — even though it would not rush in during the "crisis" with all sorts of public or private proposals.

He did this in private telephone conversations with GM's talented industrial war veteran, Louis Seaton, and the publicly fiery Walter Reuther.

GOLDBERG, who believes that "communication amongst the parties" really is a towering fence at the brink, also made this quite plain at a party on the night of Saturday, Aug. 26, in the University of Detroit.

Earlier that evening Goldberg had been the chief speaker at the National Catholic Social Action Conference banquet.

He was introduced by William Gossett, vice president and general counsel of Ford. Dining with them were Louis Seaton, Walter Reuther, Kenneth Cassidy of Ford, John D. Leary, vice president in charge of personnel at Chrysler and Ed Cushman, creator of "progress sharing" for American Motors.

Later they socialized. There was considerable jesting. Someone told Reuther he looked like he had eaten the canary along with the roast beef.

But, as Mr. Goldberg later told friends, there was hard realism behind the jesting — and he had, in effect, let them all know that the government would not tolerate a strike.

WHAT THIS MEANT, no one really knows. Insiders are guessing that in view of the Berlin emergency, John Kennedy would have seized the industry or would have gone to Congress for extraordinary powers to fix wages and prices.

At 5 p.m., Sept. 5, Goldberg sat with the President. They, in effect, dotted the "i" and crossed the "t" in the word intolerable. They worked out the President's statement asking for a settlement.

After a while Goldberg went home. At 1 a.m., Wednesday morning, the phone rang. The federal mediator calling in from Detroit, said it looked very good. At 4 a.m. one of the principals called. It was over. They had agreed on the money package.

There would be no strike that morning or next week either! There was only the matter of non-economic clauses — the kind which give both sides ulcers.

But Goldberg was able to call the President a few hours later on the direct White House phone that they could stack away the secret weapon until springtime.

Political Smears

By Raymond Moley

A rough, windy primary campaign in New York City has ended. The results, published over the nation, are not relevant to the purpose of this article. Our abiding interest should be the low level which political campaigning in this country so often reaches.

In the final days of the campaign, an issue arose which is never absent from any campaign, especially when there is little choice among candidates on any pertinent ground. It is the issue of religious and racial prejudice, designated in headlines—because it is a short word—as "bias."

Arthur Levitt, state controller and candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor, according to the press, charged that Mayor Robert Wagner, also a candidate, permitted some of his chieftains to circulate an anti-Semitic attack against Levitt.

This is called the "smear direct."

Then it was charged by some of Wagner's people that some of Levitt's people had manufactured the defamatory literature against Levitt to afford the charge of bigotry against Wagner.

That is called the "smear indirect."

Thus the variations on the theme are many and diverse.

OF COURSE, everyone deplores an appeal to racial or religious prejudice. And in some places everyone uses it.

I well remember the crisis of a campaign for mayor in New York in 1933. Fiorello LaGuardia, who proved to be a good mayor, but could play the demagogue with the best of his time, charged that Joseph McKee, who was running as an anti-Tammany Democrat, had written an essay in his school days casting aspersions upon Italian and Jewish boys. Since the "Little Flower" was both Italian and Jewish, it was a deadly weapon in his capable hands.

I was present when McKee's managers were discussing ways to meet the attack.

After some discussion, a member of the group who could have made a fortune in Hollywood portraying the political hack, said: "Let's start a 'wispering' campaign." I never knew whether his advice was taken. But, if so, it was unavailing. LaGuardia was elected.

The two parties in New York are meticulous in embracing all races and religions. In the old days the city-wide ticket was generally composed of a Catholic, a Jew, and a Protestant. The district attorneys for some reason were always Protestant.

IN TIME, an Italian name was substituted for that of a Protestant. Witness the current Republican slate: Lefkowitz, Fino, and Gilhooley.

As the Negroes became politically powerful, one of that race was nominated by the Democrats for president of the Borough of Manhattan.

As I have noted, there are many varieties of the "bias" smear. When there is no possibility of proof and it seems impractical to manufacture one, a candidate repeats over and over, hand on heart, his right to public office, "under the Constitution of the United States, despite religious affiliation."

This casts abroad the suspicion that his opponent is indeed opposed to him on grounds of religion.

It is very effective. For the opponent cannot answer that he is really and truly a friend of all Americans, etc. That would get people thinking that he "protests too much" and must be guilty.

I ONCE HEARD a fine old Catholic bishop say most forcefully to his congregation: "You will stand up for your religion when you won't kneel down for it."

I might conclude by suggesting that all resorts to religious and racial themes in politics are reflections on the intelligence of voters.

Whoever raises the issue—in whatever form, direct, indirect, and by inference — should be repudiated.

Race and religion as a qualification for office should be irrelevant. But with human nature what it has been and is and will be, that ideal cannot be expected in our time.

No Other Choice

'Organized Murder' At Its Highest Level

The testaments of all religions contain the equivalent of the commandment: "Thou shalt not kill." Yet the world today is witnessing a resumption of nuclear tests designed to find more and more weapons that can destroy human life.

David Lawrence

This paradox seems to be taken for granted as one of the inevitable consequences of international rivalry. War is roundly denounced as each side professes to be interested in attaining peace while the other side is blamed for provocations that could lead to armed conflict.

Governments frown at one another and send out sharply worded diplomatic notes but the means of disarming reckless men who may bring on war is yet to be discovered.

There are no tests to find ways of depriving dictators of the power suddenly to plunge their own country and the world into a nuclear war.

No decision which President Kennedy has made could have caused him more anguish than the authorization to American scientists and military men to resume nuclear tests. Even though the American tests are to be underground and in laboratories, while the Soviets have already held four tests in the atmosphere —presumably producing fallout— there is a revulsion of feeling about all of them on the theory that a decision to test means a decision some day actually to use nuclear bombs.

Never in history has the world faced so powerful and so devastating a weapon as the big nuclear bomb. Estimates vary as to the millions of persons who can be killed or the wide area that can be destroyed but those scientists who understand the effectiveness of these weapons have told congressional committees again and again of the awfulness of these new tools of war.

Under the circumstances, the world is challenged to find a way to prevent a disaster of incalculable proportions.

What is being done or likely to be done about it? A group of 25 nations who call themselves non-aligned but who, for the most part, play the Communist game has called on the governments at Moscow and Washington to enter into some kind of summit conference to secure a peaceful settlement of outstanding issues.

GREAT BRITAIN and France have expressed their concurrence with President Kennedy's action in ordering underground tests and have echoed a widely prevailing sentiment in this country that he had no other choice.

Mr. Kennedy had proposed that, before Sept. 9, a new agreement be made to suspend all tests in the air.

But there may be back of the recent moves some other maneuvers by the Soviets that have not yet appeared.

It is considered quite possible that only a compelling reason caused Premier Khrushchev to violate all the previous pledges in which he proclaimed his determination to resume nuclear testing only if the West did so.

One theory is that his own military people forced his hand. The probabilities are that the Soviets discovered they were somewhat behind in the nuclear-arms race and couldn't wait any longer for an opportunity to make certain tests.

Once these tests are over, however, it is being suggested that the Moscow government may be willing to enter into an agreement to ban further tests indefinitely—or at least until Soviet scientists again produce something on the drawing boards that absolutely requires testing in order to determine its effectiveness.

ASSUMING that there soon will be a moratorium again on nuclear tests, what assurance has the world that one man in the Kremlin may not take some military step that will compel the use first of smaller nuclear weapons and then later one of the bigger ones? Once a battle starts, it might be difficult to secure any sudden stoppage, and the final results could be a terrible loss of human lives.

Theoretically, the United Nations was supposed to be a forum in which such a vital subject might be debated but there are no signs as yet that world opinion has been mobilized to bring about action at the U.N. to require a binding agreement covering not just the tests but the actual use of nuclear weapons in the future.

One would think that the conscience of mankind would be troubled not only that nuclear war is seriously contemplated as a possibility but that no method of restraint has been devised by the peoples of the world to avoid what Prime Minister Lloyd George of Britain in 1919 called "organized murder." War today with nuclear weapons would be far more a fulfillment of that term than it ever has been in the past.

Down Through The Years

From The Review Files

THIRTY YEARS AGO — Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Poynter and family of Pennsylvania Ave. motored to Niagara Falls and Ontario, Canada.

Howard Osborn was elected president at the first annual reunion of the families of the late Joseph and Emma Osborn at Thompson Park.

Herbert Thompson, T. C. Toland, Lawrence Chamberlin and Ray Davis were candidates for two board of education places in St. Clair Township at the November election.

TWENTY YEARS AGO — Dr. and Mrs. James T. Jackson of Ohio Ave. attended the state optometrists' convention in Toledo.

Frederick Bright of East Liverpool and Miss Mildred Reeder of Lisbon were elected co-presidents of the Columbiana County Christian Endeavor Union.

Miss Margaret June Kidder was elected president of the Willing Workers Class of the Boyce Methodist Church.

TEN YEARS AGO — Dale Hardy of Carolina Ave., Chester, joined the Purdue University Varsity Glee Club for a 10-day tour, including stops at Washington, Canada and Chicago.

Donald Davis was named commandant of the Pfc. John Fox Detachment of the Marine Corps League.

The Rev. M. Rudolph Miller assumed his duties as president of the East Liverpool Ministerial Association.

Letter To Editor

I can't truthfully say that I can hear the beagle bays of Pope Ave. all the way here, but the injured bellows of Apache Duke II's (if I may stretch a point) master come through loud and strong.

The old phrase "love me - love my dog" can at times be sickening. Those misguided people who wish to share the pleasure of their dog with all the neighborhood would shudder were they to read the private thoughts of the offended neighbors with each trod tulip or dug daisy.

Aforementioned dog's (thought to be) master should realize that a pooch on the prowl can never be regarded as anything but a nuisance, night or day.

There was a time, when my wife was a girl, that Pope Ave. only had to watch out for children stomping the stuffing out of flower beds. Like the children of today, you only had to tell them once — a day, that is — to keep out of the flowers.

I feel our good lady of Pope Ave. has gotten her point across besides relieving the pressure. It's a safe bet that Apache Duke II is not one of her annoying howlers. He is definitely fenced and chained since Apache Duke I got hit by the car. None of the owners of the foot-loose and fancy-free hounds could think of an adequate answer — neither can I.

Strategic Bizerte

Bizerte, site of France's base in Tunisia, has held a strategic place in world history for more than 2,500 years.

Its position on the narrowest part of the Mediterranean Sea has earned Bizerte the title of the French Gibraltar. Only 150 miles separate Bizerte from Sicily; Rome is 350 miles distant.

Not far to the southeast lie the ruins of ancient Carthage, which once rivaled Rome in splendor and power. Now sheep graze where Hannibal mustered his army of elephants. Olive groves and vineyards climb the rolling hills around the harbor.

Bizerte has long had an active part in world affairs. Known in ancient times as Hippo Zarytus, it waged continuous war with Carthage. Both cities fell before Roman legions in the second century B. C.

Barley Grain Plan Slated For Beaver

The Beaver County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office announced today a barley feed grain program.

Mark Hilliker, chairman of the county committee, said that the barley program in many ways will be similar to the corn and grain sorghum program which went into operation last spring and early summer.

However, he noted that a separate signup will be held for 1962-crop barley because much of the barley crop is planted in the fall.

Hilliker said that in recent years, more and more barley has gone into livestock feed. This fact, coupled with a continuing increase in production since 1952, prompted the Congress to include barley in the upcoming 1962 feed grain program.

Coed Slayer Is Hunted In Pennsylvania

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — Police from Pennsylvania and Ohio focused their attention on the Carlisle area today in search of a 17-year-old youth charged with slaying a Kent State University coed.

The object of the manhunt was Richard J. Stewart of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio. Stewart has been charged with first-degree murder in the strangling and brutal beating of Judy Sooy, an 18-year-old blonde also from Cuyahoga Falls.

The search in this central Pennsylvania area was touched off late Friday when state police discovered an abandoned car about two miles east of Carlisle believed to be owned by Stewart's mother.

The Sooy girl's battered body was found at the home of Stewart's stepfather in Cuyahoga Falls Monday night.

Police theorized the girl was dead about 24 hours. The coroner ruled death was due to strangulation.

The girl's parents said their daughter apparently was lured from her home Sunday night by an unknown telephone caller who invited her to a party of some high school friends. She was picked up at a shopping center within sight of her home, Ohio police were told. That was the last she was seen alive.

Stewart's parents found the body of the girl after returning home from a holiday weekend trip. The boy did not go on that trip.

The Power Of Faith by Howard Brodie

PROMINENT MEN OF FAITH

Bishop Gerald Kennedy

"The little fearful man, who has only his timid candle burning, will find it being blown out by every wind of adversity. But when a man rests in the assurance of the Spirit, the wind . . . fans the flame of his faith into a mighty blaze," believes Bishop Gerald Kennedy.

The past President of the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church has been courageous in his convictions, yet understanding of others' points of view. He has inspired through his books and is considered one of America's greatest preachers: "The spiritual man is neither perfect nor static . . . He is still faced with dilemmas. But he knows at last that there is enough power available if he is willing to . . . surrender to the will of God."

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

Why Worry When You Can Pray?

"A man in Seattle is trying to reach you by telephone," said my secretary. "He seems very worried, says it is urgent." Picking up the phone, I presently heard the voice of a stranger rapidly, nervously introducing himself to me by name and occupation. Then he said, "I'm absolutely sick with worry." He spent some five minutes and a good many dollars describing his acute anxiety and the suffering it was causing him. When I could get a word in I asked him to tell me exactly what the problem was. It revolved around a business venture of very large proportions. He said he was the only man with the special competence required to put it over successfully. He had worked long and hard at it. Now the fate of this enterprise was hanging in the balance. And he was worried —"worried sick."

IT WAS EVIDENT I was talking with a man of real ability and accomplishment, but somehow he was lacking in the kind of confidence that kepes a person steady in time of crisis.

I asked if he had done everything within his power and knowledge to make his venture successful. He said yes, he had; so far as he could see there was nothing more he could do.

"Well, then," I said, "let's bring up against this worry of yours the one great resource that can overcome it."

"What's that?"

"Some real faith in God," I answered. "And to help you get that faith I suggest that we pray together now — you there in Seattle and I here in New York, but the two of us thinking together in the Lord's name over the telephone."

I offered aloud a prayer asking that this man might feel the reassuring presence of the Lord. I prayed that, being sure he had done his best, he would be content to trust and leave the outcome in God's hands. "Thank you, Lord," I concluded, "for your gracious help to this troubled child of yours."

To my surprise, my Seattle friend then prayed aloud himself, substantially the same prayer. A momentary silence followed. Then he said, "Isn't it foolish to worry when you can pray?"

Now there is a thought worth inscribing on your consciousness. Why worry when you can pray? Not only is worrying misery in itself but it can also make you ill.

A California physician practicing in a part of the country renowned for its healthful climate recently expressed the opinion that one-third of the people in his state have ailments traceable to worry. If that is true, what must be the percentage of people sick with worry in a city like New York or Chicago? No wonder the Bible says so much about prayer as the means of overcoming worry.

ST. PAUL wrote to the Philippians, "The Lord is at hand. Have no anxiety about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God."

Why is prayer the great antidote to worry? What happens when you pray? Many things. But one basic thing is that the act of prayer brings a fresh realization of God's sustaining presence everywhere and in all situations.

And we are told to pray with thanksgiving for this makes you mindful of your blessings, awakens gratitude in the heart and thereby stimulates the flow of new blessings. In other words, prayer is the greatest process for reconditioning your mind. It flushes out mistaken ideas. It frees the mind from obsessions. It cancels negativism and restores confidence. It clears your mental powers for a better understanding of your problems and improves your ability to handle them.

So, if you are a worrier, try this: Concentrate all the energy you have on realizing that God is with you. Use the following affirmation every day: "God is with me. I am with Him. God is helping me now. God is in my mind helping me to think constructively. With God's help I can solve every problem and solve it right."

Say this every morning and at intervals during the day — and believe it. Continue this affirmation regularly and one of these days you will feel His presence and really feel it with such force that you will have new power and strength. So why worry when you can pray?

Baptists Resume Evening Services

Evening services, which were discontinued during July and August at the First Baptist Church, will resume Sunday at 7. They will feature the first in a series of sermons on "The Personal Contacts of Jesus" by the Rev. Albert Rodenhausen. The series will continue through December.

A fellowship hour will follow in the social rooms. The pastor, assisted by members of the congregation, will show slides of summer church activities.

The first fall meeting of the youth groups will be held Sunday at 6 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Homer Mercer are advisors of the Junior High group, and Mrs. Rodenhausen is in charge of the Senior High group.

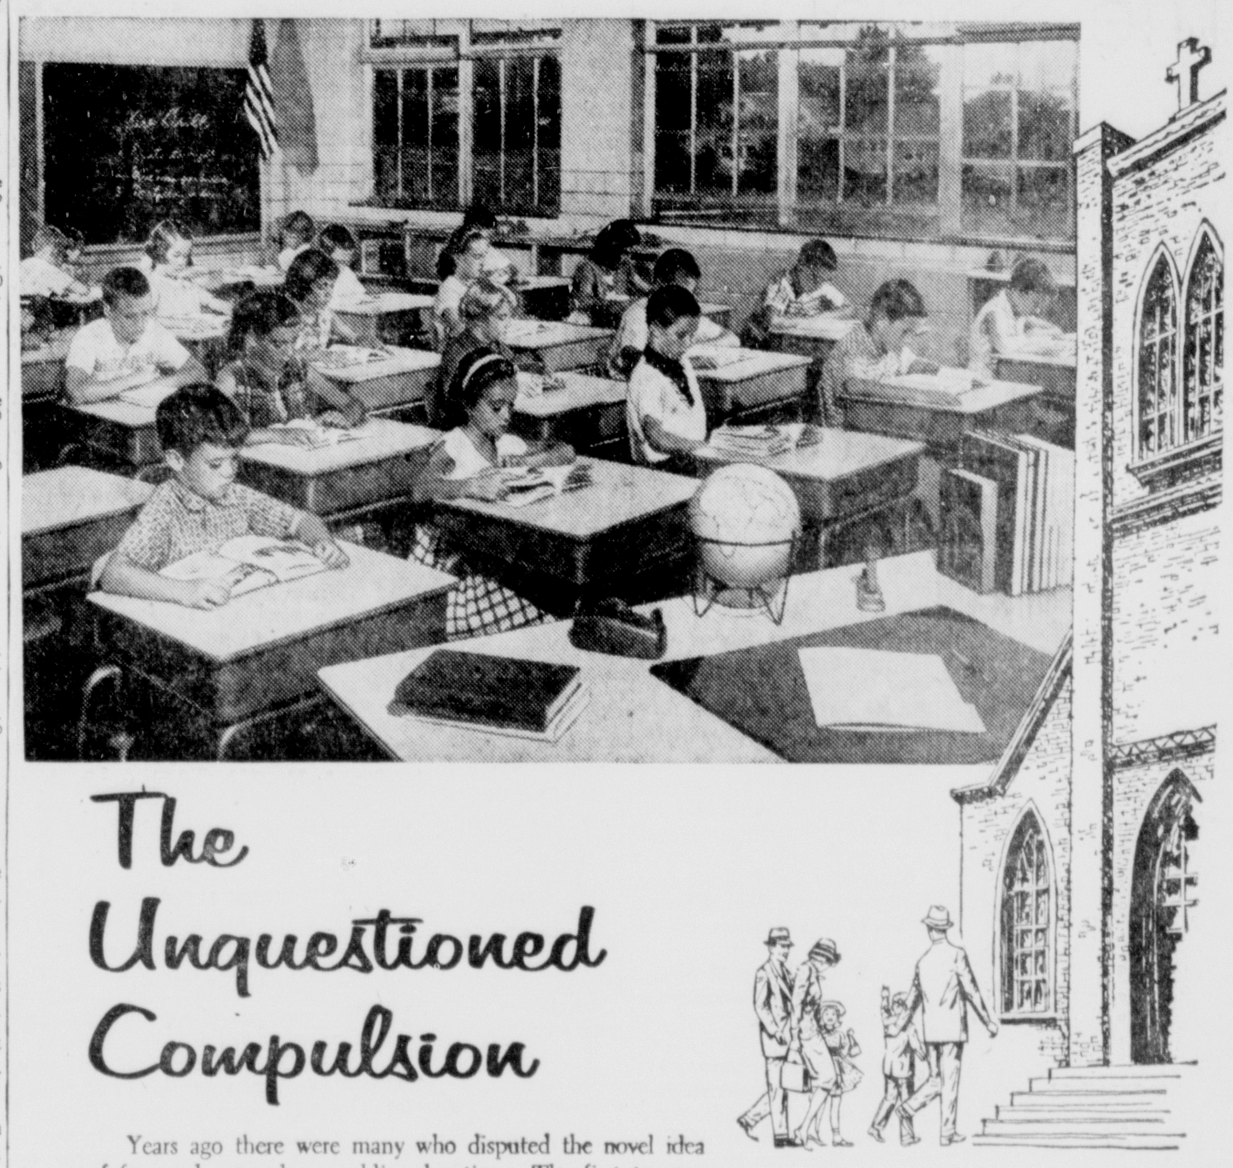

City Church To Join In Program Over TV

The Rev. James E. Hunton, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene, members of his congregation and the Church Choir will participate in a weekly telecast over Channel 9, WSTV, Steubenville, Sunday at 1:30 p. m.

The weekly gospel programs will be presented alternately with the Toronto church.

The duration of the services is indefinite but is expected to include the entire fall and winter season, Rev. Hunton said.

The local minister will present a brief message in each presentation and the choir and spiritual singers and musicians will provide music and song.

The Unquestioned Compulsion

Years ago there were many who disputed the novel idea of free and compulsory public education. The first truancy laws were opposed as infringements on liberty.

But as our children return this fall to schools that will mold their growing minds—does a single parent complain?

I believe in sound religious education, as well. The molding of the character should keep pace with the molding of the mind.

Naturally I never want my government to exercise compulsion in this sacred area. And my Church, while it offers a complete curriculum of religious training, does so on a free and voluntary basis.

But I'm a parent! And, though I find that example and encouragement usually suffice, I'm not above telling Johnny,

"YES, SON, YOU HAVE TO GO TO SUNDAY SCHOOL!"

As a child begins to see the importance Faith has in our lives and in the strength of our nation . . . you'll be surprised how quickly this becomes an unquestioned compulsion.

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and ready your Bible daily.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Overweights Should Set New Life For Selves

All of you who have been overweight since childhood, tune in. You will no doubt have a strong feeling of alliance with the troubled young mother who wrote the letter in today's story.

Ida Jean Kain

"Your story concerning the 'roly-poly child' really hit home with me as I am a victim of just such a mother. When I began turning into a fatty as a girl of about 10 years, everyone told my mother it was just 'that certain age' and that in a few years I would outgrow it.

"Having a mother who loved to cook and bake, I had more than enough food and pastry to keep me growing heavier. I outgrew tha tcertain age, but not the fat. Because of too good and too much food, my poundage did not diminish. Instead I just kept getting fatter.

"WHEN I BECAME a woman and was in the working world, I asked several doctors to help me get started on a safe, sure reducing course. Each prescribed some sort of appetite depressant and all failed.

"Now as a mother of three children (all under six) I find myself still getting heavier and my spirits are doing likewise. My nerves are jangled...nothing seems to help. I am 5 feet 1 tall and weigh 192 pounds.

"How I wish I could encourage other mothers to watch their children's weight and have it checked while they are still young. I firmly believe that if my weight problem had been controlled at about the age of ten years I would not be such a hippopotamus today."

It is true that those who have been overweight since childhood do have a more difficult time reducing — because there is more habit-breaking to do. We thank this young woman for writing to alert other mothers.

The sad part of this letter is that it expressed no glimmer of hope for herself. She has convinced herself that circumstances beyond her control are keeping her forever overweight.

There is hope! Go to a good medical man. Talk with him frankly about your jangled nerves. Instead of an appetite depressant, which obviously does not work for you, the doctor may prescribe a mood lifter.

WAKE UP TO the value of an about - face in your thinking. Continuing to blame someone else, or circumstances, is a way of finding justification for not coming to grips with the problem. Stop resenting and you can be set free to act.

Unconsciously you have "counted yourself out." Get a new viewpoint. You are still a young woman. Say to yourself, "I am in charge now." Then take charge of your life. Get a new concept of yourself.

It is amazing how your mind will help you when you start believing that it is possible for you to reduce and be an attractive, healthy young woman, leading a happy life.

Your new motivation can be an awareness of the increased happiness you can bring to your family by seeing yourself in a new role.

Open church was observed for the marriage of Miss Judith Ann Kinsey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kinsey of Apples Corners, and Eston Christis Farrell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Eston Christis Farrell of Falls Church, Va., last Saturday evening at 8 o'clock in the First Church of the Nazarene.

The Rev. O. L. Benedum, former pastor and retired district superintendent, who officiated at the bride's parents' wedding, performed the double-ring ceremony.

The altar was banked with baskets of white mums, palms and seven - branch candelabra. The family pews were marked with satin bows.

Mrs. Jean Bowlby, church organist, presented a half - hour recital of wedding music. Frank Tice sang "If I Could Tell You" and "I Love Thee." Following the prayer, Miss Margaret Kinsey and James Swartz sang "O Perfect Love."

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She wore a full-length gown of white satin designed with Basque bodice, scalloped bateau neckline and long, pointed sleeves. The skirt featured side fullness and a chapel train.

Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion was held in place by a band of pearls and sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of white Fuji mums and daisy pompoms. Observing the traditions, the six-pence in her shoe was borrowed from a cousin, Mrs. Marvin Kinsey.

Miss Margaret Kinsey, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. Ronald Mickel of Eau Claire, Wis., matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Karen Wright and Miss Sharon Farrell, sister of the bridegroom.

They wore identical street-length dresses of embroidered pale gold peau de soie. Square necklines and three-quarter sleeves featured the fitted bodices. Dior bows of mink brown and matching shoes completed their costumes.

They carried crescent bouquets of bronze Fuji mums and yellow daisy pompoms tied with satin streamers. For jewelry, they wore the gifts of the bride, jade and cultured pearl necklaces.

Michelle and Kristin Cairns, cousins of the bride, were flower girls. Dressed in white dotted Swiss, they wore gold velveteen vests. They carried Colonial bouquets of white carnations and yellow roses. Their gifts from the bride were gold chains featuring cultured pearl pendants.

David Farrell served as his brother's best man. Ushers were William Webb of Washington, James Swartz of Duquesne and Richard Mann of Wollaston, Mass.

The mother of the bride chose a gold brocade dress with matching jacket and gold and black accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue brocade dress and jacket with blue and black accessories. White rosebud corsages complemented their attire.

A reception for 150 was held at the home of the bride's parents. The buffet table, decorated in gold and white, was centered with a four-tier cake, topped with a miniature bridal couple.

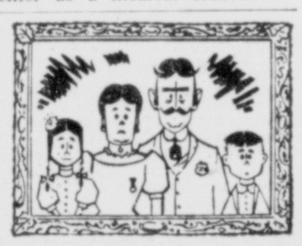

Aides were Mrs. Marvin Kinsey, Mrs. Ray Kinsey, Mrs. Robert Cairns, Mrs. Dolph Knott, Mrs. Clarence Wright, Mrs. Jay Kinsey and Mrs. Dale Kinsey.

Out-of-town guests were from Boston, Washington, Bucyrus, Warren, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Niles, Beaver Falls, Louisville and Chester.

For her honeymoon to Berkeley Springs, W. Va., the bride wore a red knit dress with black and gray accessories.

The bride is a 1957 graduate of East Liverpool High School. Her husband was graduated from George Mason High School in Falls Church in 1956.

Both were graduated last spring from the Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston, the bride with a degree in social science and the bridegroom, a general science degree. They are enrolled at the University of Virginia at Charlottsville, where they will reside. The bride will study medical technology and her husband will enter as a medical student.

Wellsville Handed 20-6 Defeat By Big Freedom Eleven

Beaver Local Ties Leetonia, 14-14, In Last 4 Minutes

Visitors Tally 3 TD's In 1st Half

By CHUCK CRONIN
Review Sports Writer

Getting into trouble early because of defensive woes, Wellsville High's Tigers bowed to strong Freedom, 20-6, in an opening season loss Friday night.

A crowd of 2,000 turned out at Nicholson Stadium to see the Tigers fall to Freedom's long-striking ground attack that produced three touchdowns.

A "move it—lose it" offensive attack and a ragged defense marked the stiff first game test for Coach Ken Woods' Orange and Black in their second battle in two years with the big Pennsylvania squad.

But there were a few bright spots in the long, drawn-out struggle, in particular a great running performance by Tiger fullback John Euill.

Euill, 170-pound senior, churned 115 yards in 17 carries to nearly overshadow the leaky defensive fortifications of the Tigers. He averaged 6.3 yards per carry.

Coach Alex (Kolakowski) Wheeler's Freedom squad, big and mobile, struck for three first half touchdowns to virtually settle the issue.

Wellsville recovered from the blitz long enough to ram across one score late in the game on quarterback Roger Ours' one-yard sneak.

The game, played in warm, 70-plus degree weather, found the action slowed by numerous penalties and an occasional fracas when tempers flared. The squads tied last year, 7-7.

The running of quarterback Ken Haglan and a pass attack that clicked often enough to keep the Wellsville defenders honest proved the difference this year.

Haglan raced 70 yards on a quarterback sneak in the first quarter and added another minutes later on a 21-yard pass from fullback Anthony Ciani for two touchdowns.

Ciani, exceptionally versatile for a fullback, pulled in a pass from quarterback Haglen and sped 54 yards up the middle for Freedom's third score.

Haglen, in having a hand in all of Freedom's scoring, rolled up 122 yards in only seven carries in breaking loose for several long runs.

Save for some poor tackling, the Tigers performed fairly well overall against one of the biggest squads they will see all season.

Wellsville's running game was probably the brightest part of the entire evening for the local fans. Euill bulled his way into the secondary for most of the team's yardage. Halfback Alvin Thompson and Mark Leyda broke loose momentarily for other gainers.

Wheeler, former Eastern Kentucky State College star, thought the better defense of his Freedom squad was the most vital factor in the opening victory.

"It was a real tough game, a hard - nosed game for a season opener," Wheeler declared. "I felt our line blocked well, and the backs hit the holes pretty good for the first game. Our entire line was outstanding," Wheeler added.

One of the toughest defenders on the Freedom front wall was big Dan Linta, 215-pound guard, who overcame a serious foot injury as a sophomore to develop into a strong tackler. He lost four toes when his foot became caught in a lawnmower, but has managed to perform ably with the handicap.

Euill and Ours carried most of Wellsville's attack, although the senior quarterback was contained on his end sweeps that were well known to opponents last season. Ours picked up 57 yards in 15 attempts.

The Tiger passing game failed to jell, with Ours completing one in six attempts. However, his receivers were always well covered.

Ours one-yard buck climaxed a drive of 49 yards for Wellsville's lone touchdown at 2:44 of the fourth quarter. His attempted end sweep for the conversion was halted short.

Wellsville tackle Alvin Jackson, 200-pound senior, was ejected in the third quarter, probably one of the longest periods on record (37 minutes.)

Possage Late Dash Nets Deadlock; Conrad Scores Twice For Bears

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Beaver Local turned on its new lights for the first time Friday night but the situation on the field was mighty dark until halfback Francis Possage raced 38 yards with four minutes to go in the game to give the Beavers a 14-14 tie in its 1961 opener with Leetonia.

A crowd estimated at 1,000 was on hand to witness the well-matched contest between two Columbiana County rivals.

After Possage scored, the 135-pound speedster added the all-important two-point conversion to provide the deadlock. He had to take a wobbly pitchout from quarterback Mike Klembara but streaked into the corner of the end zone for the two points.

COACH Jack O'Rourke's team drew first blood by pushing across a touchdown midway through the first quarter. Carl Hoppel accounted for the six-pointer from five yards out after he and his teammates had driven 78 yards.

What made things so bleak for the Beavers was a fine young junior halfback named Paul Conrad.

An all-county choice last year as a sophomore, Conrad put in an early bid by scoring both of his team's touchdowns and having a third one called back.

Coach Ike Farrah's boys put all their scoring into the second quarter. Halfway through the second period, Conrad tied the game when he took a handoff on a reverse, turned on the steam and raced 78 yards down the sideline.

FULLBACK Joe Gallo, who brought the foot back into football, added his first of two placement conversions to put Leetonia in front, 7-6.

Leetonia's second touchdown was set up by Conrad. Then the shifty halfback took the ball over from one-yard out after Gallo had bulled his way for a first down to the one-yard line. Gallo's placement was good and Leetonia took a 14-6 lead into the locker-room at halftime.

Neither team threatened in the third quarter, but on the third play of the fourth period Conrad took a short pass from quarterback Frank Guerrier and ran 75 yards to the end zone only to have the touchdown nullified because of a clipping penalty on the Beaver Local 25-yard line.

The penalty put Leetonia on the Beavers 40, but the Red and White stiffened and forced the visitors to punt.

Beaver Local took over on its own 25 and started a drive on the ground which netted three first downs to the Leetonia 38.

This set the stage for Possage to come on the scene and play the hero's role. Possage took the handoff from Klembara and started to his right. Finding the way blocked by white-shirted Leetonia defenders, Possage, behind some good blocking, reversed his field and sprinted into the end zone.

A key downfield block on the play was applied by end George Wilkinson.

LEETONIA held on to the ball and was satisfied to go for the tie. The Bears had to give up the ball with less than a minute remaining, but Beaver Local ran only two plays before the game ended.

The statistics were close as Beaver Local showed a 16-15 edge in first downs. O'Rourke had a gambling bunch of gridders last night. On three occasions, twice in their own territory, Beaver Local gambled on fourth down and made it.

One time was a fourth and 14 situation, but the Beavers executed a fake punt and the ancient "statue of liberty" play to make the yard markers.

Beaver Local showed 226 yards on the ground to Leetonia's 234.

The visitors outdistanced Beaver Local in total yardage by gaining 59 yards through the air to the Beavers' 14.

Defensively, the Beaver Local line turned in a fine job especially in the second half when the forward wall held Conrad and his mates to 46 yards on the ground and tossed the Bears for 25 yards in losses.

Outstanding on the front line were guard Dave Myers, a junior who is making another early bid to repeat on the All-County team; guards Dave Stacey and Gary Rambo, tackle Roger Walker and end Gary Berhar.

Hoppel was the busiest back for Beaver Local, with George Gaydos and Possage doing their share of the running.

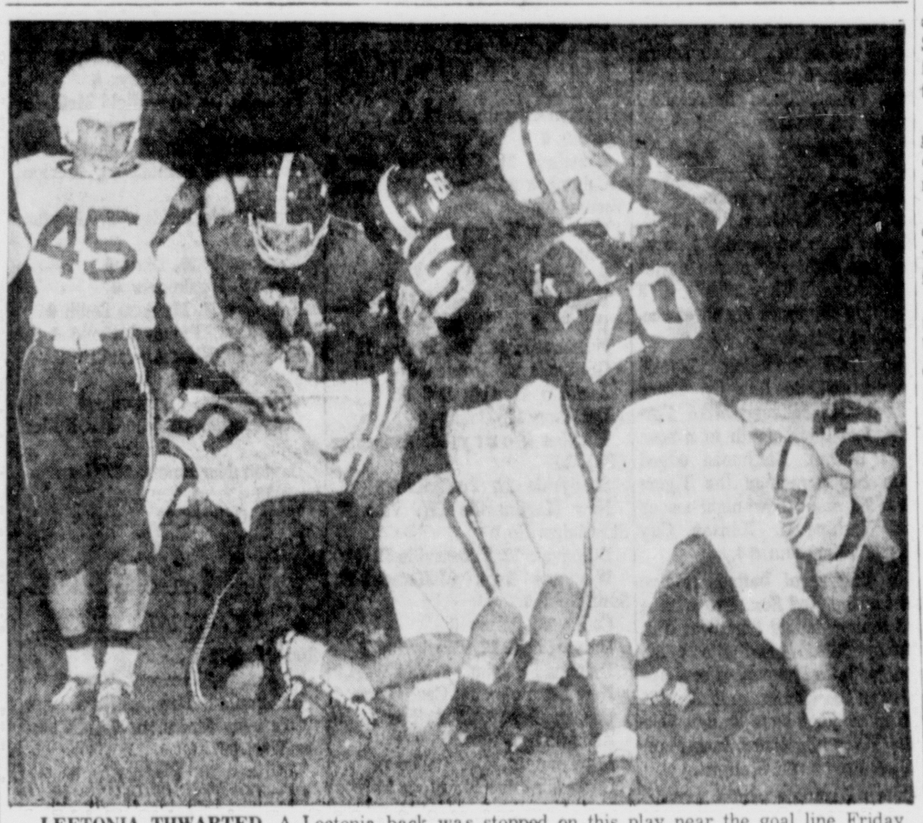

Leetonia's attack was centered around Conrad, while Gallo took shots up the middle during the evening.

Beaver Local returns to action next Friday night at Chester while Leetonia travels to Rootstown.

McBride's Debut Success In 26-12 Win For Stanton

IRONDALE — Stanton Local made Don McBride's debut as head coach a success here Friday night with a 26-12 victory over Hopedale before an opening night crowd of some 800 fans.

McBride, who coached at Hopedale last season, watched his new Stanton Local team pull away from a 6-6 tie in the second quarter to register the victory.

Stanton scored the first time it got possession. Stan Wickham capped a 65-yard drive when he roared over from four yards out.

Hopedale came back in the second period to tie the game at 6-6 when Jay Beadling tallied on a five-yard sprint.

The Irons then went in front to stay late in the second quarter by marching 45 yards and having quarterback Bob Mills go over from the 5-yard line.

Following intermission, Stanton, given a break on a recovered fumble, only had to go 35 yards for its third touchdown scored by John Pearson from 6 yards way. Stanton's only conversion came when Wickham plunged over to push the home team in front 20-6.

Bob Perkins on a 3-yard punch across the goal tallied the final touchdown for the Ironmen after a drive of 60 yards.

Hopedale scored last when Beadling raced 52 yards to set up the touchdown for Jim Murdock from the 5-yard line.

Stanton travels to Mt. Pleasant next Saturday.

Parker May Fill Brother's Slot In Bucks' Line

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Al Parker, Dover sophomore, figures prominantly to take over the same slot that brother Jim held with the Ohio State football team.

Jim Parker is the former All-America guard at Ohio State, now with the professional Baltimore Colts.

Al has been impressive the last three days of Buckeye workouts. He is being used a linebacker on defense but also has been in the offensive unit as a guard.

Buckeye quarterbacks worked on passing Friday, at one point completing 14 in a row. Elyria's Bill Mrukowski and Massillon's Joe Sparma. Each connected on seven straight.

Potter Fans To Form Auto Caravan Tonight

East Liverpool fans driving to Niles for tonight's Potter-Niles McKinley football game can travel in a caravan if interested, Russell E. Hall, president of the Blue and White Nonpareil Club, announced.

Drivers can meet at the Westgate parking lot at 6 and blue and white crepe paper streamers will be furnished to decorate the autos, Hall said.

The Potter gridders were invited to a free movie this afternoon at the American Theater, since they were unable to attend following the football parade held by the club Thursday night.

Several thousand saw the 26-unit parade that ushered in the local football season.

Reds Halt Slide, Regain Lead Of 2

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds, on the brink of falling out of first place in the National League pennant race, regained a two-game lead by beating St. Louis 3-2 in 10 innings Friday night when second place Los Angeles lost 7-3 at San Francisco.

Pittsburgh joined the Giants in helping out the Reds by chilling third-place Milwaukee 2-1, dropping the Braves seven games behind. The Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia 4-1.

Cincinnati, after losing four of seven, pulled back to .500 (10-10) since regaining first place Aug. 16, on Gus Bell's pinch single, a sacrifice and Eddie Kasko's single. They caught up with the Cards in the eighth when loser Ernie Broglio (9-11) gave up his first walk. An error and Frank Robinson's two-out, two-run double put the Reds back in the game. Jim Brosnan (9-3) was the winner in relief —his seventh in a row over the Cards.

The Dodgers' bid for a fifth straight victory didn't get past the first inning at San Francisco. The Giants stung Dodger ace Johnny Podres (18-5), who had won 10 in a row on the road, for four runs. Joey Amalfitano started it with a triple and came across on Jim Davenport's single. Willie Mays added a two-run homer. Orlando Cepeda socked his 39th home run and that was that.

Left-hander Mike McCormick (12-14), given extra help by Davenport's two-run homer in the second, was the winner as the Giants ended their losing skid at five, four at Los Angeles. The Dodgers had nine hits, as did the Giants, but only one was a homer, a two-run shot by Gil Hodges that completed their scoring in the sixth inning.

The Pirates managed only four hits but beat rookie Bob Hendley (5-4) with two runs in the fourth on two walks, Roberto Clemente's single and a doubleplay. Bob Friend (14-7) was the winner, getting Frank Bolling to hit into a force out with the bases loaded in the ninth. Milwaukee had eight hits, and scored in the sixth on a double by Ed Mathews and Hank Aaron's single.

11 Races Set At Waterford

Racing resumed today at Waterford Park after a four - day closing period following the Labor Day holiday card last Monday.

An impressive card of 11 races was set for this afternoon, with post time at 2.

Highlighting today's program is the Russet Purse, an allowance affair for older horses carrying a purse of $1,300, to be contested at a mile and 70 yards.

Devil Dare, racing in the blue and white silks of the Sam Mar stable, appears to have a slight edge in favoritism over R. W. Fitzgerald's Charlesgate. Bill Miller will ride the favorite, and Charles Clark will be aboard Charlesgate.

Others in the field include Nite of Suspense, Zoon, Hidden Mirth, Our Day, Dumar, Skyline, Dancing Roman and Rest Stop.

The secondary feature this afternoon is the September Purse, the eighth race for three-year-olds and upward vieing for $1,300, over six furlongs.

Perry High Romps Over Crestview, 72-0

Perry High School scored touchdowns in every quarter to romp over Crestview of Columbiana County, 72-0, in an opening season game Friday night at Perry.

The winners scored 16 points in the first quarter, 32 in the second, eight in the third and 16 in the fourth. Crestview formerly was known as Fairfield-Waterford.

Hawaii's economy is built principally upon sugar, pineapples and tourists.

Raiders Drop Opener, 6-0

New Cumberland High School lost its season debut Friday night at Northwestern (Pa.), 6-0, in a defensive struggle.

Coach John Kuzio's Blue Raiders yielded the touchdown on Dunlap's two-yard buck which capped a 70-yard third quarter march by the winners.

New Cumberland's deepest penetration came on the final play of the game, when fullback Allen Pettit broke loose to the Northwestern 40 yard line on a fake kick play.

Fumbles marred the attacks of both squads. The Blue Raiders fumbled seven times, the Northwestern six. The winners led in first downs, 7-4.

Hilda May Captures Trot, Sets Record

Midland Fails To Contain Ellwood City In 37-20 Setback

Mantle Socks 52nd As Yanks Open Up 10-Game Bulge

Perkins And Trbovich Combine For Two TD's

By ANDY NUZZO

The Midland Leopards met defeat Friday night at the hands of the Ellwood City Wolverines before some 2,000 spectators at Midland Stadium.

A hard-charging ground attack, along with two spectacular pass plays, led the Wolverines to a 37-20 triumph.

Ellwood reeled off 233 yards on the ground and 167 in the air for 400 total yards.

The big gainers were senior halfback Wayne Cole, with 130 yards in 12 carries, and sophomore halfback Don Pratt, 76 yards in 12 carries.

The game started in spectacular fashion when Cole took a handoff from quarterback Bob Latiano on the first play from scrimmage and raced 56 yards for the opening TD of a terrific offensive battle.

Senior quarterback Steve Trbovich put Midland back in the game with a playoff pass to junior end Gary Perkins from 14 yards out. The play completed a 55-yard drive on five plays for Midland.

JUNIOR halfback Rich Lake set up the TD when he raced 33 yards around left end to the Ellwood City 15. Ken Eppley converted to give Midland a momentary 7-6 lead.

Ellwood City struck again with 48 seconds gone in the second quarter. Senior fullback Frank Tavern carried over from four yards out on the second play of the quarter. The big plays in the drive were 10 and 11-yard passes from Latiano to end Jim Ritorto. This time Cole ran for the extra point.

Midland came right back and went 54 yards in four plays. Trbovich hitting Lake with a TD pass from 25 yards out for the score. Eppley's PAT hit the right upright and bounced over to give Midland its last lead of the night, 14-13.

AFTER an exchange of punts, Ellwood City went 86 yards in five plays. The climax was a triple reverse pass from quarterback Bob Webster to Ritorto, who was all alone behind the Midland defense. The play covered 38 yards.

Pratt's run for the extra point failed and the half ended with Ellwood City leading, 19-14.

The winners took the second half kickoff and went 52 yards in six plays, the payoff being the same triple reverse pass play from Webster to Ritorto for 43 yards, who was again behind the Midland secondary. That play was the clincher as Midland could only manage one touchdown off the Ellwood defense in the second half.

MIDLAND'S last TD was another pass, Trbovich to Perkins, this one covering four yards and climaxing a 55-yard drive. It came with five minutes remaining in the third quarter.

Latiano streaked into the end zone from two yards out with 3:20 remaining in the fourth quarter for the fifth Ellwood TD. The last TD by the visitors started on the Ellwood 48-yard line. The drive took 13 plays, all on the ground. That ate up most of the time in the fourth quarter and killed any remaining Midland hopes.

Midland displayed a balanced attack, gaining 145 yards on the ground and 149 in the air. Trbovich hit on 11 of 22 passes and handled the Leopards well throughout the evening.

Junior fullback Earl Vaughn led the Leopards on the ground, collecting 109 yards in 11 carries.

Maris Hitless But 'M-Boys' Tie Record

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Roger Maris was hitless, but Mickey Mantle hit his 52nd home run of the season Friday night, giving the New York Yankee's M-twins a share of the two-man major league record of 107 homers set by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig in 1927.

Mantle, tying his one season high (he also hit 52 in 1956), remained two games behind Ruth's record-60 pace of 1927, however. Maris, 0-for-3, leads the Babe's pace by six games.

The Yankees backed right-hander Bill Stafford (13-7) with 11 hits, one a two-run homer by Tony Kubek off Gary Bell (9-15), and now have walloped 213 home runs, just eight shy of the major league record. They also are a whomping 10 games ahead of second-place Detroit.

The still tumbling Tigers, checked on two hits by Tracy Stallard and reliever Mike Fornieles, lost their eighth in a row, 9-2 at Boston. Baltimore edged within two games of the Tigers with a 2-1 and 4-2 twi-night sweep over Washington. Kansas City whipped Minnesota 6-4.

Jim Pagliaroni batted in five runs for the Red Sox, two with a third inning double that beat Jim Bunning (17-11), and the other three with a homer. Fornieles (9-8) was the winner, and also hit his first major league homer. One of the Tiger hits was a home run by Dick Brown, off Stallard.

Whitey Herzog's single capped a two-run ninth for the Birds, who were shut out on three hits by loser Pete Burnside (1-8) until then in the first game. Herzog also singled in a two-run seventh as the Orioles broke up a 2-2 tie in the nightcap against Ed Houbaugh (6-9). Hoyt Wilhelm (9-7) won the first game in relief and Dick Hall (7-5) took the night cap with a four-hitter.

Minnie Minoso's two-run homer won it for the White Sox and winning reliever Billy Pierce (9-8). Jim Donohue (4-7) lost it.

East Palestine Gains First For New Coach

EAST PALESTINE — East Palestine's new head coach Ray Dempsey, showing a wide open brand of football with aerial and ground tactics, opened his first season here with the Bulldogs registering a 30-7 win over Canfield.

The Bulldogs condensed all of their scoring into the first three quarters as speedster Ron Doll and hard-running Bob Chaplow accounted for all four of East Palestine's touchdowns.

All the TD's were of the short variety and set up by the alert Palestine defenses.

Doll scored on runs of one and nine yards while Chaplow plunged over twice from one yard away.

One TD was set up on a recovered fumble by guard Walt Ashbridge which gave East Palestine the ball on the Canfield 25. Two others came on intercepted passes by Dave Seider and Dave Guy.

The final East Palestine touchdown came after a sustained march of 48 yards.

Canfield's lone tally was registered by Dove on a 37-yard pass play.

The Bulldogs scored twice in the first period and added one each in the second and third quarters.

Wertz Greets Trade With Mixed Emotions

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Vic Wertz has greeted his trade to Detroit with mixed emotions and took the occasion to remind fans that ball players are only human.

The veteran first baseman was swapped by Boston to the Tigers Friday for an undisclosed amount of money and a younger player to be named later.

A member of five different American League squads, the 36-year-old slugger reflected Friday on his 15 years of major league experience:

"The toughest thing for a ball player is to take a 'riding' from the home fans. The customer expects us to play like machines, forgetting we're only human.

"There are two things in baseball.

"First, it's a game of inches. You can be a hero or a bum by the width of a fielder's glove.

"Second, a player is just as likely to have an aching jaw, stomach pains or have been up all night with the baby as a mailman or bank president. If we have a bad day the guy who paid for the seat is entitled to boo us — he purchased the privilege.

"But it's not easy to take when you pop up, strike out or hit into a double play. A player never minds the jeers on the road. But it can be agony in front of the home folks.

"A player has to learn to build up his own safety valve, trying to let his feelings escape without gesturing at the crowd or blowing his top.

"You must learn to take it all in stride, realize it's a job, then concentrate on changing those boos to cheers with a big hit or big play. And I've had plenty of cheers."

Bears Nip Steelers, 24-21; Browns Face Lions Tonight

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago Bears of the National Football League were certain of one thing today — they have a quarterback problem but, what a problem.

Coach George Halas has not one but two fine quarterbacks ready now for the approaching NFL season if Friday night's 24-21 exhibition triumph over the Pittsburgh Steelers is any indication.

First, Ed Brown, and then Billy Wade electrified 45,223 spectators in Chicago's Soldier Field with dazzling passes which ignited touchdown plays of 92, 90 and 75 yards.

The Bears took a 17-0 halftime lead in the 16th annual Armed Forces Benefit game. Pittsburgh romped for three fourth-period scores.

The league's only unbeaten, untied team, the world champion Philadelphia Eagles, and the Green Bay Packers, get in their final exhibition licks tonight.

The Eagles (3-0) face the St. Louis Cardinals (0-3) at Hershey, Pa. Green Bay (4-0) runs into the Washington Redskins (0-4) at Columbus, Ga.

In other contests tonight, Detroit (3-1) invades Cleveland (3-1) and San Francisco (2-2) clashes with the Dallas Cowboys (2-2) at Sacramento, Calif.

Rounding out the exhibition campaign are two games Sunday the Los Angeles Rams (1-2-1) going to Minnesota (0-4) and the New York Giants (2-1-1) tangling with Baltimore (2-2) at New Haven, Conn.

U.S. Netters Face Another 'Gloomy Day'

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Another dark day for United States tennis dawns today with four foreigners in the semifinal round of the National Championships.

Roy Emerson of Australia meets Rafael Osuna of Mexico and Rod Laver of Australia tangles with Mike Sangster of England for the right to make the championship bracket.

Only once before in the long history of the Nations has an American failed to make the semifinals. That was in 1958.

The fnial four Americans were eliminated Friday. Top-seeded Laver took care of Donald Dell of Bethesda, Md., 6-4, 7-9, 6-3, 6-4. Emerson, ranked No. 3, whipped Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn, 6-4, 6-2, 7-5. Sangster, the No. 4 seed, trounced Jon Douglas of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-4, 7-5, 6-1. Osuna, unseeded, completed the shambles by downing Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., 6-8, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Even in the women's division, things are desperate. Except for defending champion Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., it's an all foreign semifinal. Miss Hard meets Margaret Smith of Australia in one semi and British Wightman Cuppers Angela Mortimer and Ann Haydon play the other.

Miss Mortimer, the Wimbledon champion, eliminated Lesley Turner of Australia, 6-4, 6-4 and Miss Haydon, seeded No. 7, downed Jan Lehane of Australia, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 Friday.

4th Place Battle Features Waning Campaign In IL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The battle for fourth place—the final playoff spot is the most exciting feature of the waning International League season.

Rochester moved to within one game of the coveted spot by defeating fourth-place Toronto, 5-4, Friday night, in the first of a four-game series.

Charleston dumped pennant-winning Columbus in both ends of a twi-night doubleheader, 2-0 and 3-2; Buffalo belted Syracuse, 11-6; Richmond and Jersey City split a pair. The Virginians captured the seven-inning opener, 4-2, but dropped the nightcap, 8-1.

Bob Veale gave up two hits and struck out 15 for Columbus in nine innings of the nightcap. Ageless Diomedes Olivo added five more whiffs in three frames, but lost on a squeeze bunt in the 12th. Veale boosted his league-leading strikeout total to 207. Charleston's Dean Stone gave up three hits in the first game for his 12th victory. Bob Tiefenauer won the afterpiece in relief.

NAACP Appeals To Grid Players On Picket Lines

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People wants Negroes on the Oakland Raiders football team to refuse to cross antisegregation picket lines tonight.

An NAACP official said the picket lines will be at the public school stadium, where the Raiders play the Houston Oilers in an American Football League game, to protest segregated seating.

Mrs. Hosea Evans, executive secretary of the Houston chapter of the NAACP, said she sent telegrams to four Raiders Friday night.

The telegrams asked them to "use your every influence" to bring pressure on the Oilers and get integrated seating at the pro football games, she said.

Mrs. Evans said the telegrams went to Charley Fuller, George Fleming, Hal Smith and Charley Hardy. There was no reply, she said.

A spokesman for the school district said it is a school board policy for seating in public school stadiums to be segregated.

SECTION 7. For the payment of the principal and interest of said notes, the full faith, credit and revenue of the City of East Liverpool, be and they are hereby irrevocably pledged.

SECTION 8. Said notes shall be first offered to the Treasurer of said City in his official capacity as being in charge of the Bond payment fund and so many of the same as shall not be taken by said Treasurer shall be sold at private sale by the City Auditor, but for not less than par and accrued interest thereon (and the amount thereof necessary for the payment of interest prior to the maturity of said notes), shall be paid into the proper fund and used for the purpose aforesaid and for no other purpose. Any premium and accrued interest (and the amount necessary for the payment of interest prior to their maturity) shall be transferred to the Treasurer to be applied by him in the payment of principal and interest of said notes in the manner provided by law.

SECTION 9. The proceeds of the bonds to be issued and all unexpended balance remaining unpaid in the fund after the cost and expense of the purchase have been paid, shall be applied to the payment of said notes and interest thereof as the same shall become due and to no other purposes whatsoever, until all of said notes and said interest have been fully paid.

SECTION 10. That for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the interest on the foregoing issue of notes, promptly when and as the same falls due and also to provide a fund sufficient to discharge the said notes at maturity, there shall be and is hereby levied on all the taxable property in said City of East Liverpool, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually during the period for which said notes are to run, in an amount sufficient to provide funds to pay interest upon said notes as and when the same falls due and also to provide a fund for the discharge of the principal of said notes at maturity, which said tax shall not be less than the interest and sinking fund tax required by Section 11 of the Article XII of the Constitution.

Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, extended and levied upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levied hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with the interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the interest and principal of said notes when and as the same fall due.

SECTION 11. The City Auditor is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the County Auditor.

SECTION 12. That this Ordinance is hereby declared by Council to be an emergency measure and shall be in force immediately upon passage. Said emergency lies in the fact that the present equipment is in a run down condition and is wholly inadequate to take care of the work for which it is intended and the services of the Garbage and Trash Removal Department are curtailed and is therefore necessary to protect the health, public peace and safety of the citizens of the City of East Liverpool.

PUZZLED

We, frankly, are puzzled at the fact that we didn't sell this fine three bedroom red brick home within a few days and we are seriously interested in finding out why.

The first unusual factor is that very few people have looked at it, although the price, is very fair. The ones who have seen it have said it is a wonderful buy, and three of them would have taken it if they could have arranged financing.

The only reason that we can attribute our luck to is that maybe our price is so low that folks don't realize how much we actually are offering for their dollar in this case.

It is well-located on a nice level lot in a good community, is only 7 years old and the price is only $14,500

Lions Inspect New Church

Lions Club members toured the new Trinity United Presbyterian Church on Maine Blvd. Friday afternoon following a luncheon at the Travelers Hotel.

David Beatty, vice president of the Potters Construction Co., general contractor for the new church, conducted the tour, showing the club members through the sanctuary and Sunday School section.

He explained the architect's intentions in design of the building, pointing out the design is new in this area, but has been used in Europe for years.

Constructed of pre-cast concrete beams and concrete block, the new church is nearing completion. It will replace the present church on E. 4th St.

Beatty was introduced by Jack Smith, second vice president who was acting program chairman.

A gift was presented Miss Joyce Massey, club pianist who is leaving for college, by Charles Herman, president. Herman also announced Miss Caroline Wilson will be the new pianist.

He announced a zone meeting will be held Wednesday night at Lisbon.

Widow Benefits Clarified By SSA

Widows 62 and over, who are collecting social security benefits based on their own work, did not get increases in their payments with the checks delivered this week, William J. McCauley, district manager of the Youngstown Social Security Office, pointed out today.

But some of the may find that they can get a small increase in their monthly payments by applying to their social security office.

The 10 per cent increase in widow's benefits, signed into the law by President Kennedy on June 30, is payable only to those widows 62 and over who are receiving benefits based on their husbands' work under social security, he said.

Under the social security law, a widow 62 or over who has worked under social security long enough to become insured is usually paid retirement benefits based on her own record of earnings.

She is paid the widow's benefits based on her husband's earnings only if those widow's benefits would be higher than her own retirement benefits.

Because of the 10 per cent increase in widow's benefits, McCauley said, a few women now find that the widow's benefits based on their husband's work are somewhat higher than their present benefits.

Any widow who believes she might qualify for higher benefits because of this change in the law can find out for sure by asking at her social security office.

Even FBI's Baffled Over Twins' Identity

TORRINGTON, Conn. (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation won't risk a guess, so John Scott Buckler and James Thomas Buckler, 11-week-old twins, are as mixed up as ever.

Word came from Washington Friday that the FBI had looked at footprints made of the babies on the day of their birth, June 21, and decided they "are not legible enough to be of value for identification."

The confused parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Buckler, Torrington, have been wondering which son is which ever since the boys got scrambled weeks ago during a diaper change.

OSU Trustees Okay TV, Peace Corps Plan

PUT-IN-BAY, Ohio (AP)—Trustees of Ohio State University have ratified agreements for a campus-wide TV system and to select and train peace corps volunteers for service in India's Punjab state.

The trustees met Friday on Gibraltar Island. They said the agreement with Ohio Bell Telephone Co. provides for a multi-channel system for a closed-circuit TV network. It is expected to save faculty time and allow fuller use of classroom space.

Belafontes Have Girl

NEW YORK (AP)—Julie Belafonte, wife of singer Harry Belafonte, gave birth Friday to a baby girl in Mount Sinai Hospital. They have a son, David, 4.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Family Companionship Eases Start At School

Perhaps the average child who enters school this fall for the first time, and the child who returns to school, will have fewer problems and emotional tensions than they had during the summer. Yet for a good many children the early days and weeks of school will mean physical and emotional strain.

Dr. Garry Meyers

Beginning kindergarten, or first grade, some children who were overdependent on their mothers, some who had not had normal play experiences with other children of their own age, some who are in great dread of bullies, may not be happy at school.

Then there may be a few of these children who will feel overwhelmed among so many other children. A few other children may be overstimulated by the new experiences, even when they are happy ones.

THERE'S THE child at any grade-level who may find it hard to be with so many strange children or a teacher he never had before.

For the school child of any age or grade-level who has moved with his family to a new community and school district, consider all the new experiences he may have, some easy and exciting, some hard and trying for him to adapt to.

It's in the early days and weeks of school that almost any school child may especially need a home where he feels understood and secure.

Most parents would be wise to plan their program, during the early days and weeks of school, so that they are able to be home on most evenings and have a minimum of pressures and responsibilities.

It would be wonderful if these parents might be especially cheerful, calm and relaxed during these early school days. Whereas abundant family companionship and enjoyments are always desirable, they are especially precious during this period.

IN THE IDEAL home atmosphere the school child with any kind of worries is inclined to talk about them. Also he is the more ready to relate at home his happy experiences and successes and thus build good school morale.

Let us remember that the child tends to take his home along with him to school and to bring his school along with him to his home. More than we realize we parents can provide a favorable home climate for him.

We get brisket from the forequarter of the beef. Brisket is the breast of beef.

Out Of The Air

By HAL HUMPHREY

Mrs. G. Still Will Be Molly To Fans

"Listen, darling, I'm not so happy about being opposite Perry Como. He's a nice boy, and I like to watch him myself. I'm just hoping there'll be enough for everybody," says a slightly disturbed Gertrude Berg.

Hal Humphrey

Gertrude, who is better known to millions of fans as Molly Goldberg, is talking about the time slot where CBS is putting her new TV show, "Mrs. G. Goes to College." It will be Wednesdy nights at 9:30 p.m. against the second half of Como's hour on NBC.

"Is the second half of Perry Como his good half?" asks Gertrude, then quickly replies to her own question, "I wouldn't know—maybe both halves are good."

"NOBODY WANTED the Goldbergs on TV. Imagine! After 17 years on radio, I couldn't sell it to TV. Finally I went to William Paley himself at CBS, and he put us on," recalls Gertrude.

"Why did the others turn you down?" I ask.

"They're experts, that's why. Who can answer such a question?"

The Goldbergs went on TV in 1949 and remained five years, except for a one-season interruption—an uncalled-for and tragic one. Philip Loeb, who had played Jake Goldberg for years, was listed in a publication purporting to expose Communists and fellow travelers in the entertainment business.

Loeb denied the charge but got no hearing along Madison Ave. As a result of his blacklisting, "The Goldbergs" couldn't find a sponsor. Gertrude reluctantly ("he was no Communist") let Loeb go but continued to pay his salary for the remaining two years of his contract. It cost her $80,000. Loeb wound up committing suicide.

LATER ON, "The Goldbergs" suffered from Madison Ave.'s jitters over so-called dialect shows. Agencies wanted (and still do) everyone to be Caucasian, nondenominational and young.

"I don't consider 'The Goldbergs' a dialect show," says Gertrude. "It was a show about a woman with a little accent. Ours was never a show that made jokes about people. The humor came from the love and warmth of the characters. Molly was never a joke, darling."

Sarah Green will be no different, either, except that she's a widow. Sir Cedric Hardwicke plays an exchange professor at the college where Sarah enrolls to resume her education. Gertrude and Sir Cedric are just out of the successful three-and-half-year run of "A Majority of One," the play now being made into a movie.

"I CHOSE CEDRIC for the TV series because our chemistry was good for the play, so why not this?" Gertrude says.

Rosalind Russell is playing the Mrs. Jacoby of "A Majority of One" for the movie version, and many of Gertrude's fans were ready to form a posse and lynch whoever made that decision.

"Listen, I was disappointed for 24 hours only," says Gertrude, philosophically. "What hurt most was being promised the movie role and then finding out I didn't have it by reading the New York Times. This is not nice, darling."

Most of the troubles Gertrude Berg has are buried under her work. When she isn't playing Sarah Green before the cameras, she's going over the scripts to make sure Sarah isn't saying something that would offend Molly Goldberg.

"Sure, I take the pencil home weekends," Gertrude admits. "We have different sets of writers, all good, mind you, but they may not always have the right words. It's got to be one piece of fabric."

She might have added: "All Molly, regardless!"

Group Discusses Youth Activities

Plans for a kickoff of the annual statewide youth campaign drive in Youngstown were discussed at a meeting of the six-point chairman of Carroll Council 509, Knights of Columbus, Wednesday night at the lodge rooms.

Attending the kickoff will be Homer Dray, local chairman, Jack Johnston, grand knight; Bob Pickering and Ray Satow. Dray will give a report at the council's meeting Tuesday night.

James McGowan, chairman for the six-point program meeting, announced the installation of officers will be held Sept. 30 with a party for members to follow with Ralph McNicol in charge.

McNicol also is in charge of arrangements for the high school coaches' night to be held this month.

The monthly Communion for members will be held Sept. 17 at the 10 a.m. Mass. Clubrooms will be open to members every night after 7:30, McGowan also announced.

He also announced Luke E. Hart of New Haven, Conn., supreme knight, will make a radio address on Columbus Day Oct. 12.

Yellow Creek Grange Holds Nominations

Officers were nominated when the Yellow Creek Grange met Thursday night in the Grange Hall.

The election will be Sept. 21. Dean Forbes, overseer, presided in the absence of Ralph Falconer, master.

A wiener roast followed business. Thirty attended, including members of the Juvenile Grange.

THE TRUTH ABOUT CAESAREAN BIRTHS

Too many babies are delivered by this method unnecessarily, says this obstetrical authority

By Col. H. L. RIVA, M. C.
Chief of Obstetrics and Gynecology, Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C.

as told to Theodore Irwin

One night last November, Mrs. John F. Kennedy was rushed by ambulance to Georgetown University Hospital. Less than two hours later, word flashed around the world that the wife of the President-elect had given birth to a son via Caesarean section. Millions of American wives facing childbirth have wondered: how safe is Caesarean delivery and when is it really necessary? For authoritative answers, FAMILY WEEKLY invited Dr. Humbert L. Riva, an obstetrician, to present his views.

OF THE MORE THAN 4,000,000 children born each year in the U. S. under the management of physicians, 3 to 5 percent (perhaps 200,000) are delivered by Caesarean section. In some private hospitals, as many as one out of five to 10 births are Caesareans.

Is childbirth by Caesarean becoming a fad? From our experience at Walter Reed General Hospital, where an average of 40 babies are born each week to Army wives, we believe that virtually half of the repeat Caesarean sections performed in the past have been unnecessary!

Many women who express interest in this technique fear labor and expect that surgery will solve their problem quickly and conveniently. Other women—timorous young wives especially—want to be sure they will receive enough attention; at a Caesarean, they reason, a doctor will be present throughout the procedure.

Another factor responsible for the trend is the busy physician. For him a Caesarean section—"childbirth by appointment"—is often a time-saving procedure when compared with standing by for a regular delivery.

Most doctors have been trained to believe that if a woman previously had a baby through surgery, her next child should also be delivered this way. The dictum is no longer true, as studies at Walter Reed have shown.

Just what is a Caesarean section? Briefly, it involves cutting through the walls of the abdomen and uterus to remove the child from the womb. A Caesarean section may be done before labor has started or at some time during its course.

Most women eager to take this "short cut" to avoid travail are blithely unaware of the drawbacks. First, a Caesarean mother loses three or four times as much blood as in a normal delivery. The chances of complications growing out of a transfusion are about the same as they are in acute appendicitis. Moreover, since a Caesarean requires more anesthesia, the mother is exposed to further potential jeopardy.

Besides, recovery is more difficult. In addition to the usual convalescence at home, the Caesarean mother has to go through the healing process of an abdominal incision. She has to have help longer and pay more visits to her doctor.

Any such operation means greater possibilities of intestinal obstructions as well as blood clots. A scar on the womb automatically makes the woman a potentially complicated case from that time on. The "repeat" Caesarean patient becomes vulnerable to rupture or hernia later, which would call for another operation. And despite antibiotics, the danger of infection is always present.

THE BABY, TOO, does not get all the benefit it should. There is no sure way to estimate the exact age of the unborn; to be on the "safe" side for the mother, a doctor may operate too soon, bringing forth a premature baby. Such a child has less chance of survival, and the death rate is higher than for others. Those who survive the first few hours are vulnerable to certain diseases.

So a Caesarean section, which to a woman may appear to be an easy and convenient way of having her baby, can lead to unforeseen tragedy. Undeniably, under certain circumstances, a Caesarean may become imperative. The greatest number of these cases occur when the mother is too small in proportion to the size of the baby to permit safe delivery by the normal process.

Nevertheless, we maintain that in many cases where Caesarean delivery seems to be indicated before labor, it may not necessarily be mandatory. We have tried natural birth even for a woman who has had as many as three previous Caesareans if she shows no present signs of abnormality. With modern surgical techniques in a well-staffed hospital, an operation can be performed quickly after this trial of labor, if required.

IN A STUDY we undertook, women with previous Caesareans were asked to enter the hospital approximately a week before their expected delivery date. When we examined them in labor prior to surgery, we were amazed to find that in many instances the woman's body was preparing itself for a normal delivery. As a result, of 214 women who had had Caesareans before, three out of four were delivered normally under our supervision—and without a single maternal or fetal death.

By permitting trial labor whenever possible, Walter Reed General Hospital has cut the Caesarean-section rate in half—from 2.9 percent to 1.5 percent of births—and we are keeping it at this low rate today, compared with about 5 percent in many big-city hospitals.

To women concerned about their forthcoming confinement: if your doctor suggests that you undergo a Caesarean section for the first time, remember that the standards of the Joint Commission for Accreditation of Hospitals require consultation with at least one other specialist in obstetrics before this operation may be performed. This is the rule in all first-class hospitals. After all, no one has yet been able to improve on the physiological mechanisms of the human body!

Lyndon Johnson's Two Loves: Family and Politics

The Vice President likes a rousing battle on Capitol Hill almost as much as pampering and perplexing his wife and two daughters

offered to coach the group. Word spread swiftly throughout the neighborhood, and soon Thomas got permission for his teams to use a nearby public park.

Having observed first, then shared in Thomas' activities, I joined with him in calling a meeting of parents and interested citizens. Out of this meeting bloomed the Mighty Mite Football League, Inc., of Springfield. Voluntary contributions support the program, and in 1960 the organization raised $3,000 to pay 20 part-time coaches, all of whom were college football players or physical-education majors.

Realizing that precautions must be taken to make the program safe for boys in the first to sixth grades, Thomas established strict rules. The playing field, for example, measures 40 by 60 yards. There are no goal posts. Each team is permitted four downs to gain six yards.

Play starts from midfield, eliminating the kickoff and runback, which we considered dangerous. For the same reason, punting is not permitted. This doesn't spoil the game for the kids because they're so evenly matched and have a bagful of game-busting tricks from passing to laterals to handoffs. Every boy in the league must have at least a helmet and shoulder pads as well as soft-soled shoes.

At registration, the players are divided into three categories: first and second graders; third and fourth graders; fifth and sixth graders. The groups are not permitted to play against each other. There is a division, too, of each group into squads of about 20 boys, and here the weight factor is considered. A qualified coach is assigned to each squad.

Only after three weeks of practice are the boys permitted to engage in intrasquad games, with professional officials. We require that every boy be allowed to play in each game. Fifth and sixth graders play eight-minute quarters; younger boys, six-minute quarters.

WHILE PARENTS are expected to provide shoulder pads, helmet, and shoes, the league supplies this equipment when necessary. It also provides jerseys for all participants—400!

Because of the emphasis on safety, there has been only one injury reported in four seasons, and this occurred when a boy tripped on his own shoelace, fell, and fractured a finger.

I prefer games that can be played outdoors since I believe the most rugged bodies are developed this way. I realize, however, that in order to accomplish this we must hurdle various obstacles. Such a program cannot be carried out now by our school systems because of the shortage of proper personnel and facilities. When these are lacking, as in Springfield's case, the program must be carried out by an adult nonprofit organization.

To delay offering a boy the opportunity to enjoy competitive athletics until he is in high school is a mistake. We must start when his body is in its early development.

It is the natural instinct of male children to show off their physical prowess. With such natural inclinations, it seems obvious that contact sports must begin early. Where else but in elementary school?

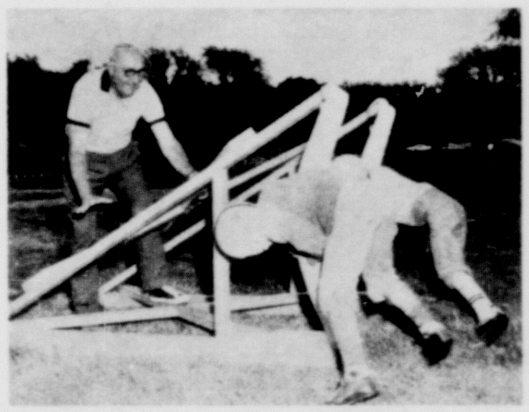

You need only look about you as football practice starts for high-school and college teams to see vacant lots and back yards filled with boys playing football. Such unorganized activity creates a fearful hazard.

Some of the participants have protective gear; most have none. Children as young as 6 and 7 may be competing against boys 10 to 14. Rarely is there any adult supervision. Since these children are going to play football anyway, it is better that they do it under adult guidance.

FOOTBALL is admittedly rough but is not, comparatively speaking, a dangerous game. The American Football Coaches Association's committee on injuries and fatalities listed 12 deaths resulting from football in 1960, 10 in high school and one each in college and professional competition.

The National Safety Council's 1960 edition of "Accident Facts" shows that, through the 12th grade, the percentage of injuries attributed to football was 9.9. Compare this with the 9.3 percent injured in auditorium and classroom accidents, or the 10.4 percent injured in unorganized activities on school property.

I feel that a football program such as that devised by Mighty Mite, Inc., is one that will give every boy an opportunity to play under the direction of skilled leaders, with maximum safety. The value of sportsmanship is stressed at all times, so a boy may learn to give and take, to win and lose.

Furthermore, this program plays a supporting role in youth guidance, teaching discipline and responsibility.

President Kennedy has pledged his administration to a program that will inspire and promote greater physical fitness. "We don't want in the United States a nation of spectators," he has said. "We want a nation of participants in the vigorous life."

This, I believe, is a strong endorsement of our approach: a parent-supported, professionally supervised athletic program to give preadolescent boys the opportunity to develop strong bodies capable of carrying them over the tough hurdles they will encounter as men.

IN THE EARLY afternoon of Sunday, Aug. 27, 1908, an elderly gentleman mounted a horse and rode through Johnson City, Texas. He hailed his neighbors with the greeting, "This morning a United States Senator was born—my grandson."

The grandson, Lyndon Baines Johnson, not only fulfilled the prophecy of Samuel Ealy Johnson, Sr., his grandfather, but went beyond it to become the youngest majority leader in the history of the United States Senate and last year was elected Vice President of the United States.

On the snowy day he was inaugurated as Vice President, he and his wife Lady Bird looked out into the sea of faces and felt the threads of their lives coming together in a single fabric.

Mrs. Johnson told me, "Somewhere in the crowd was Lyndon's first-grade teacher, Mrs. Loney, known as 'Miss Katie,' and Professor H. M. Green, who taught him government at Southwest State Teachers' College in San Marcos, Texas. Friends were there, too, from the days when he got his first taste of prominence as the 27-year-old National Youth Administrator for Texas—even Bishop Arthur McKinstry, who married us on Nov. 17, 1934, in St. Marks' Chapel, San Antonio."

To know the Vice President, we must see him with Lady Bird, his beguiling and intelligent wife, and with 17-year-old Lynda Bird and 14-year-old Lucy Baines, his effervescent daughters. We must see him, too, both as the man he is and as the boy and young man he was.

As effervescent as his daughters, he'll come home with an urgent, "Where's Mrs. Johnson? I want to kiss Mrs. Johnson." Or, "Where are my little daughters?" Impetuous, he has schooled Lady Bird to expect the unexpected and to act impromptu when he calls at the 11th hour to say, "I'm bringing six guests for dinner."

Welding an LBJ Team

His wish commands the Johnson household. It has been this way ever since the couple met at the home of Mrs. Gene Lasseter, a mutual friend, and Lyndon Johnson pursued his "Bird," as he calls her, in a whirlwind courtship. When she first demurred because of his haste, he protested, "Then you don't love me." He made her prove that she did. That very day they stood at the altar.

In the early days of their marriage, he instructed his wife to learn all the counties in his congressional district and the names of as many constituents as she could. A reliable weather vane of possible reactions to his ideas, she has also worked on his speeches, answered the phone in the middle of the night to hear the woes of an anxious constituent, and taken dictation at two in the morning. As Mrs. A. T. Thomas, Jr., her cousin, puts it: "Lyndon always had drive and endless ambition. Lady Bird had the ability to accomplish what he wanted. He intensified her own drive and ambition."

With his "little daughters," as he calls them, he is both an affectionate companion and a busy, preoccupied father who inspires them to call him "sir." Just three days before his inauguration, for instance, he took the time to take Lynda Bird to New York to buy her a suit for the ceremony after she ripped the one she had planned to use.

Johnson is interested in every detail about the girls' appearance. He himself will order 14 suits at a time from his tailor. His girls, too, must have the best of everything and as much as they like. Johnson wears contact lenses; Lynda must have them, too. Since his heart attack, he has counted calories. His girls should do the same. He even offered them $30 each to lose weight.

Johnson is what might be termed a "natural politician." He is a great handshaker, not only because it's good politics but because he genuinely likes people.

When he toured Asia, for example, he refused to insulate himself in an air-conditioned limousine. He also made it his business to have roadside chats with bystanders. "I wanted to press palms and feel the flesh," he explained.

In Karachi, Pakistan, the Vice President acted in typically human fashion when a reporter with the Johnson party received news that his 18-year-old son had been killed in an automobile accident. Lady Bird was visiting a hospital when the news came, and the Vice President, who usually relies upon her in such matters, had to act alone. Immediately upon receiving the news, he started a collection for a fund in the dead boy's memory. Then, through the American ambassador, Johnson located a Karachi boy of the same age who had lost his leg and used the memorial fund to outfit this boy with a new limb.

In an Indian village, the Vice President gave the natives a lesson in progress. Seeing a man hauling water out of a well with a rope, he stepped forward and pulled the bucket up himself. "The reason I did this," he told the crowd, "is that 40 years ago in Texas we used to do just that. We used to burn our hands with the rope. Today it is different. We brought electrification to our farms, and our hands don't have to burn. You can have this kind of future, too. That is why I'm telling you about it." And as the interpreter spelled out the Vice President's words, the crowd showed that it understood.

The Vice President is a man who can not only give advice but take it—and improve on it. When he suffered a heart attack and was a patient at the Bethesda Naval Hospital, he followed doctors' orders and even went a step further. When the doctors limited his intake of calories to 1,500, he decided on 1,200. When they wanted him to reduce from 200 to 180 pounds, he set his goal at 170.

A chain smoker before the attack, he had pleaded in an ambulance rushing him to the hospital: "Take away my seat in the Senate, do anything, but don't take cigarettes away from me." Yet when he faced the reality of the heart attack, he stopped smoking and kept a package of cigarettes at his bedside table just to test himself. He hasn't smoked since.

Johnson's working day has often merged into a working night. Striving for the best, he says that he has often had "to settle for the possible." Yet he has always aimed to make the possible the best. To do so, he has driven himself and others hard, taking time for few small pleasures.

He finds pleasure in things mechanical, as befits the chairman of the President's Advisory Council on Outer Space. At the LBJ Ranch, for instance, he has had a loudspeaker installed, with music piped into every room. He indulges a hi-fi enthusiasm, showing a greater interest in the mechanism than the music.

Johnson loves good conversation, and his own abounds in humor and colloquial expressions as Texan as his drawl or his cowboy hat. He has an irrepressible sense of humor and, as Lynda Bird says, "The papers print Daddy's jokes as facts."

Even during his hospitalization, his humor came through. When Lady Bird told him that a tailor who was making two suits for him wanted to know what to do about them, he replied, "Tell him to go ahead with the blue suit. We can use it no matter what happens."

From ABC's to Silver Star

In Johnson City, where the Vice President was born to a family of politicians, government administrators, teachers, and ministers, he showed early that his grandfather's prediction might come true. Before he was two, he learned the alphabet from ABC blocks. At three, he could recite not only Mother Goose rhymes but poems by Tennyson. At four, he could read. When his mother read the Bible, history, and mythology to him, he showed what was to be his lifelong passion for the facts. "Is it true? Did it really happen?" he would ask.

School, however, had no allure for him. When his mother discovered that he had not prepared his lessons, she would place the textbook on the breakfast table. Then she and her husband would talk about the subject. Listening to them, young Lyndon had no choice but to learn. Then, following him to the front gate, his mother would continue this bootleg instruction by chatting about history, geography, and algebra. So Lyndon would arrive at school—prepared.

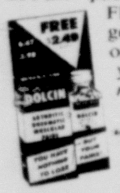

When high school was over, however, he ran away from home to escape his parents' insistence that he go to college. After his funds ran out, he returned to Johnson City to take a job in a road gang. His parents, knowing that he shoveled gravel and pushed a wheelbarrow on the highway, dreamed he'd "outgrow" his rebellion. After several months of hard work in the blazing sun, he did. If college was the way to become someone, then he would go to college, he decided.

There was no money for tuition. Borrowing $75 on his own note to get started at Southwest State Teachers' College, he continued to support himself there as school janitor and secretary to the college president. Yet at the same time he studied intensively, became a leader in campus politics and debate, and rehearsed his rhetoric as he swept. Within

Should Kids

Play Football?

"Yes!" says this doctor who helped put elementary pupils on the gridiron in a successful, carefully supervised program in Springfield, Mo.

By H. A. LOWE, M.D.

A practicing surgeon, Dr. Lowe also has taken an active interest in Springfield (Mo.) municipal affairs, serving as a member of the commission which wrote the city's home-rule charter. At St. Louis University, he was a starting end on the 1906 football team, which has been credited with developing the forward pass. His recreational sports include fishing and golf.

THE ONLY THING wrong with organized football for boys in the elementary grades is that there isn't enough of it!

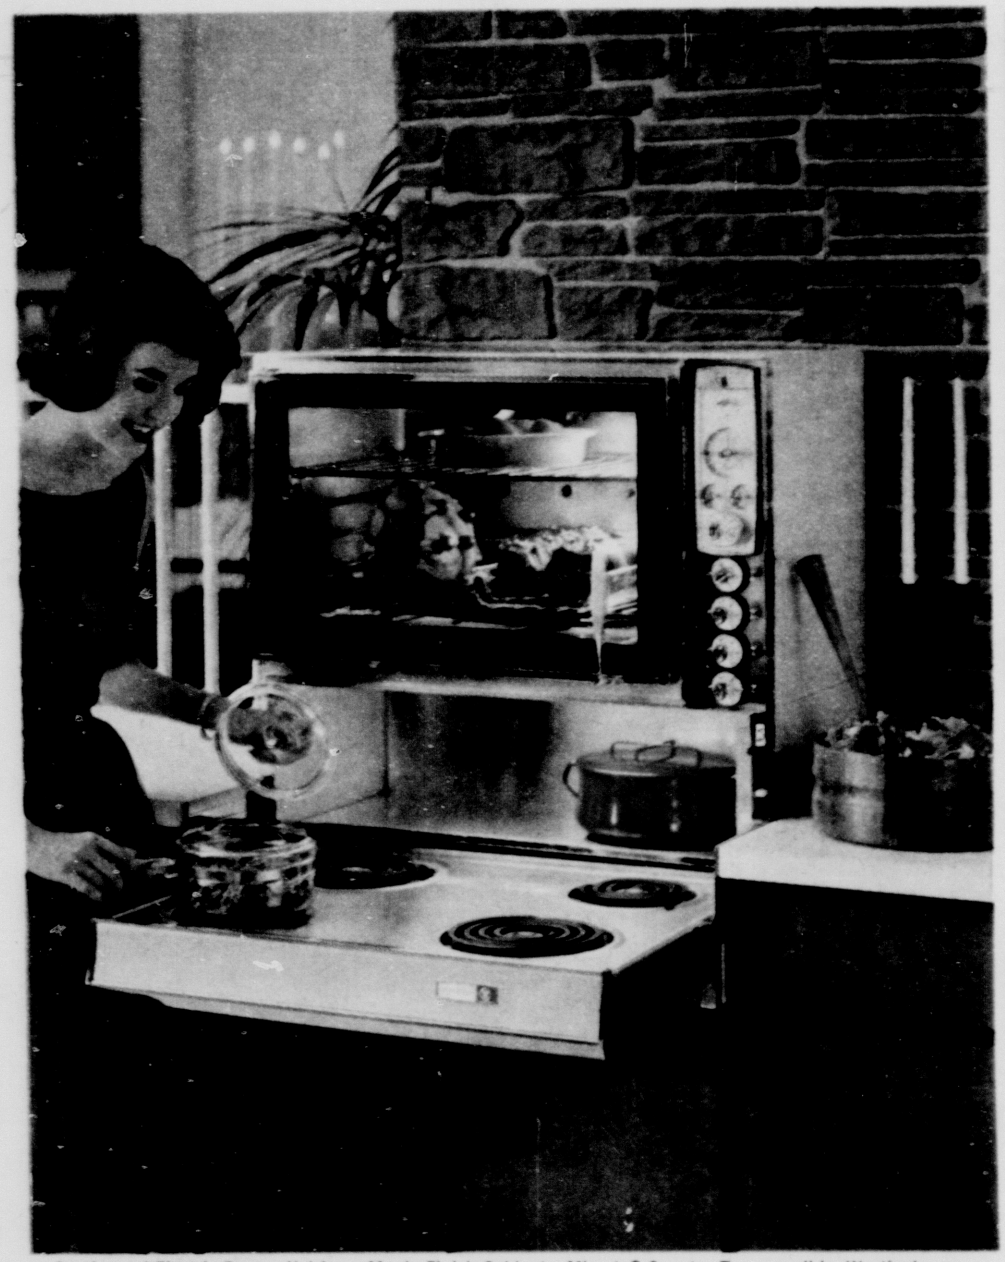

During a half-century as a physician—a career made possible by athletics—I have become increasingly alarmed at the way we neglect the physical fitness of youth. Our young people receive splendid scholastic opportunities, but who wants to be a member of a race of mental giants and physical pygmies?

I recognize that football is a controversial subject, and there probably are authorities who will dispute my contentions. But more often than not, I suspect, their arguments against elementary-grade competition are based on the number of injuries suffered in sand-lot games,which I deplore just as vigorously as any other physican.

A football program that is carefully organized, tailored to the physical capacities of preadolescents, and conducted under trained supervision can succeed. It also can be the means of developing strong bodies for the boys of today so that they may be better equipped to direct the nation's destiny in the years ahead.

I know, for I have seen such a program in action.

It originated in Springfield, Mo., four years ago when Bill Thomas, a former football captain at the University of Arkansas and now a schoolteacher, saw a group of assorted youngsters playing a game on a vacant lot. The danger to the younger, lighter children appalled Thomas, and he

Lyndon Johnson

Wading through the mail is a lot easier when the Vice President's older daughter Lynda Bird lends a helping hand.

3½ years, he had his degree.

For a year after graduation he taught public speaking in a Houston high school. Then he went to Washington as secretary to Texas Congressman Richard M. Kleberg, and three years later he met Lady Bird Taylor.

Together they have weathered many crises—there was the childlessness of their first 10 years of marriage, his Navy service that earned him a Silver Star for gallantry (which Gen. Douglas MacArthur bestowed on him), and later his miraculous survival after the crash landing of a Flying Fortress in Australia.

There were also illnesses—his kidney infection and his heart attack. There were the moments of political decision to be made and acted upon.

When, for instance, he went to Los Angeles to vie for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination, he knew that he had started his campaign too late and that his chances were not good. "When he didn't get it," says Diana Tschursin, his niece who was working with the Johnson delegation, "it was not a big blow. Nobody shed a tear.

A Turning Point

"The next day, however, when it was put to him that he was needed for the second spot, we all felt that, in accepting it, he was giving up too much. There was something noble about the way he accepted. That's when we did cry. For we felt as though he was stepping out of the driver's seat he had occupied as majority leader to take off his coat and pick up the broom."

Lady Bird, practical and down to earth, assesses her family's current situation coolly. "I think," she told me, "that the girls can get much good out of this strange milieu they're in. They can learn from Lyndon's friends and colleagues and the many people they meet. Yet we all know that the spotlight is temporary and that the time will come when we must return to Texas, where our roots are."

Long before that time comes, however, there are the years of the Vice Presidency—the crowded years of doing. Just before the election, I quoted Lady Bird Johnson in FAMILY WEEKLY (Oct. 23, 1960) as saying, "I know he is going to want to make the office of Vice President just as dynamic as is consonant with the Constitution. We've been studying the Constitution very carefully."

Expanded Role

The Constitution specifies nothing more for the Vice President than that he should preside over the Senate and succeed to the Presidency if the Chief Executive dies. Richard M. Nixon, Johnson's predecessor, expanded the functions of the office beyond that of any of the 35 Vice Presidents before him.

Johnson and Nixon are called by some "the smartest politicians in their respective parties," and today Lyndon carries on the new tradition of a more meaningful Vice Presidency.

Like Nixon before him, Johnson represents the President on missions abroad. Says George E. Reedy, Jr., assistant to the Vice President: "Vice President Johnson's trip to Asia was an actual working trip, during which he had specific authority to negotiate. As a result of that trip, we increased our assistance to Vietnam and Thailand in return for assurances from their chiefs of state that they would take certain actions favorable to us."

Thus the new Vice Presidency is expanded even further under Johnson. If Samuel Ealy Johnson, Sr., were alive today, he could tell his Texas neighbors that his grandson, in the role of a vigorous Vice President, is making friends for America throughout the world.

- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- ¼ teaspoon salt

CONVENIENCE FOOD RECIPE

TO PREPARE: 15 MIN. TO BAKE: 10 MIN.

- 1 pkg. refrigerated fan-tan rolls
- 2 slices (about 2 oz.) process Cheddar cheese, cut in 1½-in. squares
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 1/16 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- Few grains cayenne pepper

1. Remove roll dough from package and divide into 36 rounds, each round consisting of 2 layers of dough. Place a square of cheese on half the rounds.

2. Blend together remaining ingredients and spread a thin coating of the mixture over cheese. Cover with remaining rounds of dough and press edges together lightly to seal in the filling.

3. Transfer to ungreased baking sheet.

4. Bake at 400°F about 10 min., or until rolls are lightly browned. Serve warm. 1½ dozen rolls

Raspberry Ribbon Cake

TO PREPARE: 30 MIN.

(allow time for baking and cooling cake and for chilling gelatin-topped layers)

- 1 pkg. lemon-flavored, butter-type layer-cake mix
- 1 3-oz. pkg. raspberry-flavored gelatin
- ¾ cup hot water
- ½ cup orange juice
- 1 8¾-oz. can crushed pineapple, drained; reserve ¼ cup sirup
- ½ cup chopped toasted almonds
- 1 cup chilled whipping cream
- ¼ cup sifted confectioners' sugar

1. Prepare and bake cake layers according to package directions; set aside to cool.

2. To prepare gelatin topping, add hot water to gelatin in a bowl and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in orange juice and reserved pineapple sirup. Chill over ice and water, stirring frequently, or chill in refrigerator, stirring occasionally, until mixture is slightly thicker than consistency of thick, unbeaten egg white. Blend in drained pineapple and almonds. Set aside.

3. Meanwhile, place 2-in. strips of waxed paper across bottoms of 2 layer-cake pans and extending over edges. Replace the cooled cake layers by placing one layer in pan upside down and the other layer in second pan right side up. (This will give a better looking cake when gelatin-topped layers are put together.)

4. Spoon thickened gelatin mixture evenly over the cake layers. Chill in refrigerator until gelatin is firm. Remove from refrigerator and, grasping extended ends of waxed paper, lift cake layers out of pans.

5. Using a chilled bowl and beater, whip cream until soft peaks are formed, beating in confectioners' sugar with final few strokes.

6. Place one layer of cake, gelatin side up, on serving plate. Spread ½ cup of the whipped cream evenly over gelatin topping. Place second layer, gelatin side up, over bottom layer. Using remaining whipped cream, frost sides of cake. Refrigerate until serving time. About 10 servings

MEAT LOAF
WITH ONION SOUP MIX
AND PET
the milk with twice the country cream in every drop...

Just three ingredients, three simple steps. Dried onion soup mix adds all the rich and savory seasonings you need. And double-rich PET firms the beef into a moist, tender loaf, holds in the good meat juices and blends the flavors as it bakes. No need to add an egg, for PET is the perfect binder. Thin milk just won't do. It takes thick-as-cream PET for this juicy, onion-flecked meat loaf—as easy as 1-2-3.

3. Bake in 350 oven (moderate) about 1 hour, or until brown. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

The barber looked with sadness upon the graying head of a good customer. "You're going to be all gray before you're 40," he said, "but I may have an answer." He took a bottle from the shelf. "I don't know what's causing your hair to turn gray, but some of this every day is sure to stop it."

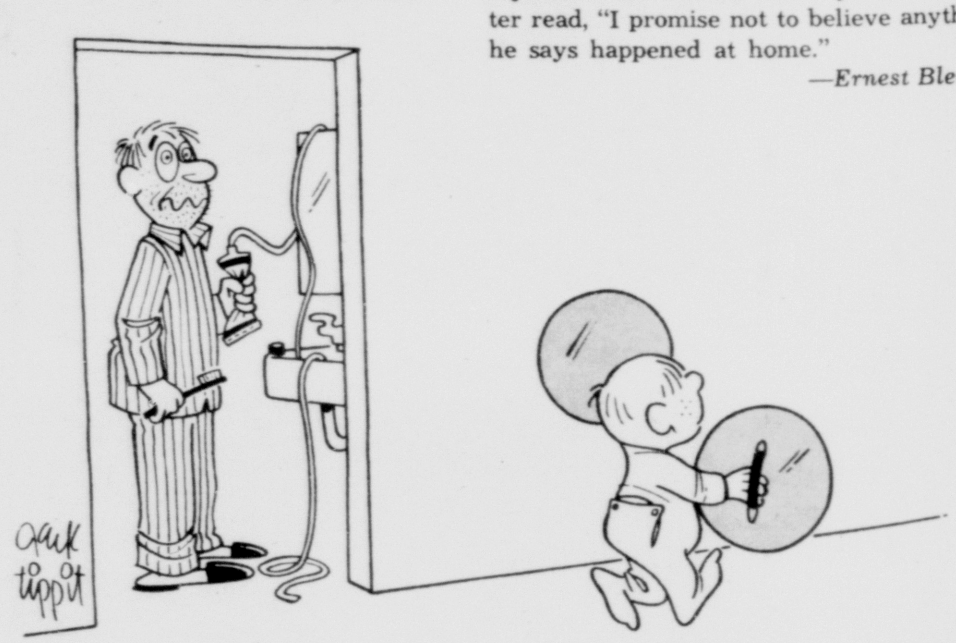

"That's fine," said the customer sadly, "but how do I get my wife to drink it?"
—F. G. Kernan

The first homework the little third-grader received for the new term was an essay, "What My Family Did During the Summer."

When he returned from the classroom the following afternoon, his mother asked him how his teacher had liked his work. "I don't know," he said, "she just gave me a letter for you."

The mother opened the letter. "If you promise not to believe anything your child says about the current school year," the letter read, "I promise not to believe anything he says happened at home."

—Ernest Blevins

Closing the Chapter

Tomorrow's the last of vacation,
The day all our traveling ends,
And we, with certain elation,
Get back to our numerous friends.

Yes, back to our friends who weren't touring (Too busy, too tired,
or too tight to);
To friends—and the thought is alluring—
At least we no longer need write to!

The youngster critically inspected his new baby brother. "Where did he come from," he asked after a time.

"He came from heaven," his mother said.

"Gee," the youngster said, "they sure cut hair close there, don't they?"

The fisherman stood nervously as the judge studied the arrest sheet. "It says here," the judge noted, "that you caught 10 bass over the limit, all well above seven pounds. How do you plead?"

"Guilty," said the fisherman.

"One hundred dollars and costs," the judge snapped. "Now I hope that teaches you a lesson."

"Yes, your honor," the fisherman said. "And now, if you please, I'd like several copies of the court record to show my friends."

head for the exclusive stores. This depleted my meager income in a hurry!

On the other hand, it was then that the self-discipline I had learned through her started to pay off. Once I realized what was happening, I had no difficulty putting myself on a strict budget.

What troubled me most about Mother's strictness was her attitude on dating. At the time, I thought it was terribly unfair that I wasn't allowed to go out as my classmates did. Often I was dejected because when I returned to school after a weekend of sitting at home, the other girls would all be talking about the dates they had had. I had no similar experiences to share.

For a while I was invited to parties or asked for a date. Always I had to say I was sorry, but I couldn't go. It wasn't long before I was no longer asked. They didn't understand that I simply wasn't permitted to go out. My friends thought I didn't want to! But I did—very much.

CONSEQUENTLY, my childhood was rather lonely. Mother didn't have much time for us because till she married executive Alfred Steele, she had to work to support us, and her thoroughness in preparing for a movie role left her little free time. She was sorry about it, and so were we, but we understood the necessity for it. In fact, when she arrived home after a long day at the studio and took time to ask us how we spent our day, we felt guilty about taking up the few moments she had to rest and relax.

I had hoped things would change after she married Mr. Steele, but they didn't.

True, she was no longer busy in pictures, but now she moved to New York and became involved in his work as well as in his private life. If anything, my existence became even lonelier.

After her marriage, Mother decided I would be better off at an academy in Pasadena, where she left instructions that I was not to leave the school during the entire semester. Since I was the only girl there on weekends, I spent my Saturdays and Sundays helping the nuns in the office. If it hadn't been for their kindness and understanding, I'd have felt I was in jail.

I was even confined to the school the summer after my graduation because Mother was away. I returned home three days before I was to leave for Carnegie Tech and found everything ready for my departure.

That was about the last time I was under Mother's supervision. When I got to college, I took advantage of my freedom to work—augmenting my $50 a month allowance from Mother—and to date.

I rather suspect that she went to such extremes for two reasons: to compensate for our lack of a father and because she was afraid of spoiling us. If one has to go to extremes, I'd rather be prepared for life with extreme strictness than extreme leniency.

Today, a starlet in "Wild in the Country."

Because we lived in a goldfish bowl, however, newspaper stories of what went on in our family were so exaggerated that Mother often appeared cruel, which was certainly not the case. Take the time Chris supposedly "ran away" from home.

One evening Mother became terribly concerned when my brother wasn't home as it got dark. When she couldn't find him in the neighborhood, she asked some friends to help look for him. They eventually found him on the Santa Monica beach and brought him home. The press got hold of the story and made it sound as if Chris was fleeing from his "mean" mother, instead of having a normal boy's adventure.

In all, I learned a lot from the discipline she imposed on me.

For instance, I can turn down an exciting date in favor of a good night's sleep if I know I have to work the next day. And I don't have to be driven to study for my parts because of the habits Mother forced me to develop in my school years.

Five years or so ago, I never would have believed I'd be thankful for Mother's discipline—but I am. I hope my own children will be disciplined and, someday, will understand why.

When childhood constipation occurs

More mothers use Fletcher's Castoria than any other laxative

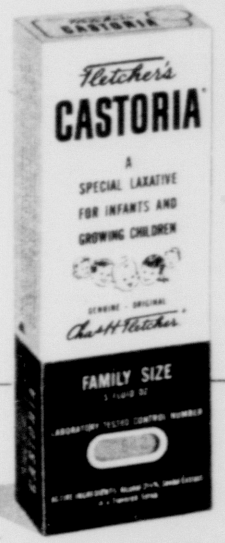

Because

Fletcher's Castoria gives the prompt, yet natural-like relief from temporary constipation that medical authorities agree is best for a child's young system. Its pure extract of Senna is considered one of nature's finest vegetable laxative products.

Fletcher's Castoria is gentle, the prime requisite for a child's laxative. It contains none of the harsh drugs which are so often found in adult laxatives, drugs that can upset your child's system.

Fletcher's Castoria is liquid, so exact dosage is sure: from drops to teaspoonfuls as needed. Very important, too, Castoria tastes good. So children take it willingly, even lick the spoon.

Fletcher's Castoria is the only nationally-recognized laxative made especially for children of all ages. So why take chances... the laxative that's "right" for you can well be "wrong" for your child. Get famous Fletcher's Castoria today.

It takes a child's laxative to fulfill a child's needs

HAVE YOU EVER NOTICED: That it's easier to forget a friend than an enemy?

That people who appear to be the wealthiest on the outside are often the poorest on the inside?

How well two men get along with each other until they remember they're related by marriage?

How much you look forward to using your tickets to a concert until the big night turns out to be the one on which you'd give money just to stay home?

That you never notice a stranger's flaws when he becomes a friend?

That until someone you like calls himself ugly, you saw him only as charming?

How slowly a reckless motorist drives just after he has passed a bad accident?

How wonderful a child is in the singular and how impossible in the plural?

THAT CHILDREN raised with nonchalance never seem to break their arms, have pneumonia, or get run over, but children raised with nervousness suffer all these —and so do their parents?

That the things you dread most seldom happen?

That, if they do, you manage to survive?

How much better you feel when you give someone something you know he wants than you do when someone gives you something he knows you want?

That, consequently, it must be more joyful to be generous than grateful?

That no matter how many clothes a woman has, there is never a day in which she doesn't struggle over what to wear?

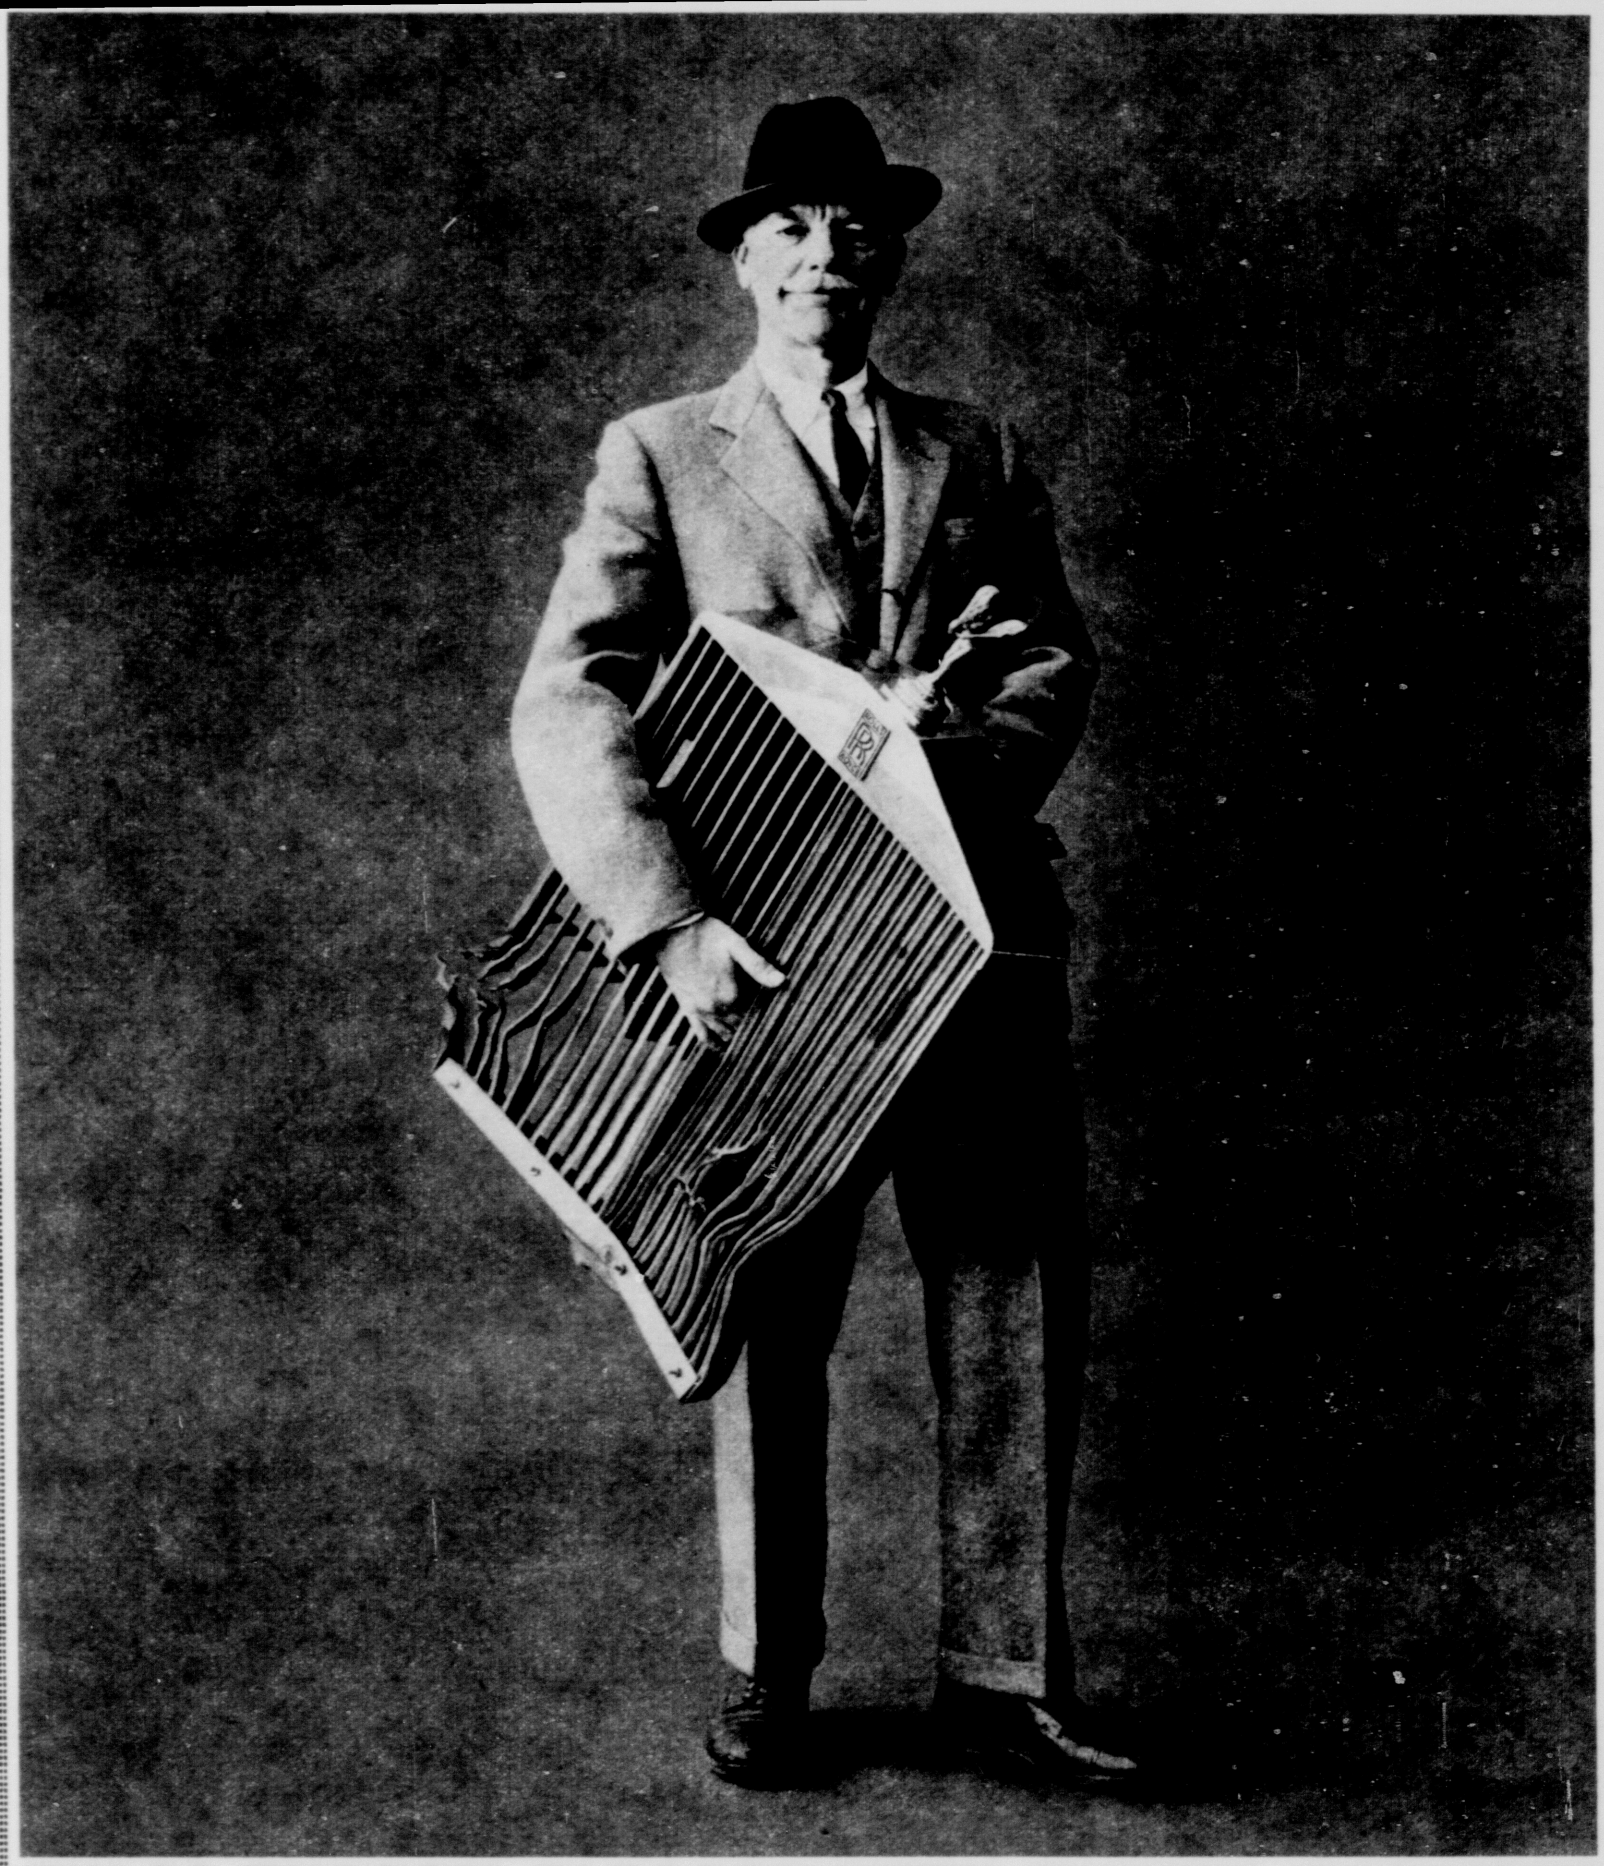

That the man who loves her best is the man who notices least?

How little is really worth hearing or saying in most conversations?

How desperately we strive for human relationships even with little conversations?

That the most important things in the world aren't really things at all?

Christina as a teen-ager with mother Joan.

MY MOTHER'S DISCIPLINE HELPED ME AFTER ALL!

Joan Crawford's daughter, who once resented her mother's sternness, is older and wiser now and tells a different story

By CHRISTINA CRAWFORD
Peer J. Oppenheimer

WHEN I'M MARRIED and have children of my own, I'll probably be a lot stricter with them than most mothers because I've learned that discipline—even in its strictest form—can be an asset.

When I was a child, however, there were times when I thought I couldn't stand the stern discipline of my mother—you know her as Joan Crawford. Many times I felt like crying out, "Leave me alone!" I wanted to rebel, even run away.

My mother's insistence on firm discipline never slackened from the day she adopted me until I finally quit school against her wishes and began an acting career of my own—without any support from her.

I remember when I was in my teens, I pleaded with Mother to let me wear the type of clothes the other girls were wearing, but she felt that teen-age fads were terrible. I agree—now—but at the time I resented it terribly.

One afternoon I couldn't stand being "different" from other teen-agers and donned a pair of pedal pushers at school—then made the mistake of wearing them home. When Mother saw me, she immediately ordered me to my room to change.

"When you've put on something more suitable," she told me sternly, "bring back those clothes. I'm going to give them away."

She did.

Contrary to popular belief about the children of movie stars, my brother Chris, who is now 18, my twin sisters Cindy and Cathy, who are 14, and I never had a maid waiting on us. Mother had household help, of course, but the maid only came into our rooms about once a month to do heavy cleaning. The rest of the time we had regular household chores.

We received allowances—25 cents a week when we were little, progressively more as we grew older—but scarcely in line with the allowances of other children of wealthy parents. However, we hardly got to touch the money. It was put into our banks and used only for special occasions.

MOTHER'S INSISTENCE on buying everything for me caused a number of difficulties when I was first on my own. After I quit college, I spent a summer in the Westport, Conn., Playhouse, and then went to the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York City. Mother was furious at me for failing to finish school and refused to pay for my keep after I left. But I had to assert myself.

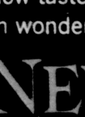

Those first few months in New York were rough. I took a job as a receptionist earning only $40 a week. Since I had become accustomed to expensive things through Mother's influence—her choice was always in good taste and extremely generous—I tended to

Mr. K Snubs Appeal For A-Test Ban

Formally Rejects U.S.-British Bid Against Air Blasts

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev formally rejected today the U.S.-British appeal for a ban on nuclear tests in the earth's atmosphere. He suggested a big power study of major world problems to stave off the threat of nuclear war.

"It goes without saying that the Soviet government cannot and will not agree to such a deal," Khrushchev said of the Western proposal for the embargo on further atmospheric tests.

In a broadcast statement concerning the move by President Kennedy and Prime Minister Harold Macmillan, Khrushchev said they were trying to divorce the question of weapon testing from the over-all problem of disarmament.

They were trying to have the question considered "in isolation," he complained in identical notes delivered to the U.S. and British embassies.

Khrushchev went on: "Every line of their statement revealed a desire to ensure, cost what it may, for the Western powers and their allies in aggressive military blocs, unilateral military advantages to the detriment of the security interests of the Soviet Union and the other socialist states."

Khrushchev called the Western offer dishonest.

At the same time he issued a counterappeal to the United States and Britain for a big power study of major world problems to stave off the threat of nuclear war over Berlin.

Kennedy and Macmillan had appealed to Khrushchev for an all-time, unpoliced ban on nuclear testing in the atmosphere.

Khrushchev urged the Western leaders "to embark together on the solution of the major problem of our times—universal and total disarmament."

He said, "Let us seek seriously, in good faith, a solution to the question of concluding a German peace treaty so as to arrest in good time the sliding of states into the inferno of a rocket-nuclear war. Then everything will be set in place again; there will not only be no nuclear tests but even no threat of a nuclear war."

'In Immediate Future'

U.S. Will Send 40,000 More Troops To Europe

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara announced today that about 40,000 additional regular Army troops would be sent to Europe "in the immediate future."

Most of them will go to Germany to strengthen combat because of forces in the Soviet Union's threat to West Berlin.

The Pentagon also announced that transportation of dependents to Europe would be suspended, beginning Oct. 9.

The suspension covers all means of travel and applies to travel to the following countries: Belgium, Denmark, France, West Germany, Greece, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Turkey and the United Kingdom.

The suspension of travel applies to dependents of both combat troops and civilian employes of the Defense Department. It does not apply to West Berlin. The Pentagon said West Berlin was a "special case" but did not explain this.

The 40,000 men being sent abroad are all regular Army troops. Officials would not name the units or tell exactly where they are coming from.

An announcement said these reinforcements would bring the 7th Army, stationed in Germany, and other U.S. units committed to North Atlantic Treaty Organization to full combat strength. They will also provide additional combat, combat-support and logistical units for U.S. Army forces in Europe.

The 40,000 includes 3,000 men the Army had previously announced were going to Germany. Gen. George H. Decker said Friday that each of the three infantry divisions in the critical German area was being given 1,000 additional men.

Present strength of U.S. forces in Germany includes five divisions —three infantry and two armored.

There are about 250,000 troops in Germany.

President Calls Effort Little Joke

Explosive Failed To Discharge; Man Quickly Arrested

PARIS (AP) — President De Gaulle escaped injury in a bizarre assassination attempt with fire and explosives on a country road Friday night, official sources said today. The old soldier shrugged off the incident.

"This was just a little joke in bad taste," De Gaulle said.

The presidential limousine had sped safely through a wall of flame from an inflammable mixture apparently touched off to serve as the fuse for a plastic bomb. The plastic charge, weighing eight pounds, had failed to go off.

Police quickly arrested a man. There was no immediate indication whether he had anything to do with the incident.

Plastic explosives are frequently used by right-wing Algerian settlers in acts of terrorism against De Gaulle's Algerian policies.

Official sources said De Gaulle ordered the cars in his party halted after they had passed through the flames. He got out, hunched his shoulders, and said scoffingly: "This was just a little joke in bad taste."

Then the 70-year-old president got back into his limousine and resumed the trip to his country home about 150 miles east of Paris.

De Gaulle at first insisted that the incident not be made public because he considered it "of no importance at all," government sources said. Later, he relented when his advisors told him word of it was certain to get out.

A palace communique said: "An inflammable mixture along with an explosive charge last night was placed between Nogent and Romilly, on the road that the chief of state was taking to Colombey-les-Deux Eglises.

"This inflammable mixture took fire without provoking an explosion towards 2200 hours (10 p.m.) at the moment when the presidential cars passed. The speed of the cars was not slackened.

"Gen. De Gaulle arrived at Colombey-les-Deux Eglises at the scheduled time."

One of the regular gendarmes patrols located at intervals along the Paris-Colombey route dashed to the area when the flames shot up.

Investigators said that the "inflammable mixture" was apparently intended to serve as a fuse for the plastic charge but something went amiss.

2 States Set Defenses For Storm Carla

Louisiana, Texas Coasts Preparing Against Hurricane

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The Louisiana and Texas coasts, an 800-mile strip from New Orleans to the Mexican border, buttressed their defenses today for the first of Hurricane Carla's 125-mile an hour winds.

The Weather Bureau in New Orleans, in its 1 a.m. bulletin, said the storm was about 400 miles south of New Orleans in the Gulf of Mexico. It plowed along at about nine miles per hour in a west northwest direction.

There was still no definite indication where the "large and dangerous" storm might move inland. It maintained its curve westward during the night.

But hundreds in the Louisiana coastal marsh country heeded the Weather Bureau's note of caution to evacuate the lowlands and seek higher ground.

In Cameron, La., devastated by Hurricane Audrey in 1957 with more than 500 killed, only a hardy handful—police estimated less than 25—of the town's 5,000 population remained. All stores and business were boarded up.

Police guarded all roads into Cameron, perched atop a ridge about 30 miles south of Lake Charles, La., and only 40 miles from the Texas state line.

Carla pushed tides two to three feet higher than normal toward the mainland and the Weather Bureau said hurricane warnings would supplant the hurricane watch from the Mississippi River along the entire Texas coast sometime today.

There were no reports of distress in any of the southwest Louisiana parishes, but evacuation centers were set up at Lake Charles high schools—one white and one Negro—to handle those seeking refuge.

Oil and gas operations in the rich Gulf tidelands off the coasts of both states came to a stop Friday night as Carla approached. Oil companies took workers and equipment from the big rigs and few stayed on duty at the drilling stations.

In Lake Charles, 30 miles above the Louisiana coastline, there was little to indicate a killer storm lay out in the Gulf.

Breezes were calm Friday night and there was no rain. A big crowd turned out for a high school game, played across the street from the gymnasium evacuation center.

Fear arose at Crowley, self-styled rice capital of the world, for a $5-million rice crop only three weeks from harvest.

Crowning Set Tonight For Miss America

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—10-5-4-3-2-1. That's the way the countdown will go tonight, and when it reaches its climax—along about midnight—one of the 55 lissome lassies competing here will be launched on a thrilling year's reign as Miss America.

After three nights of preliminary competition the big prize—the Miss America crown, which carries with it a $10,000 scholarship plus personal appearance tours for a year which will net the winner about $75,000—is up for grabs.

Early in the evening, 10 semi-finalists will be chosen. Later on, the field will be narrowed to five finalists.

East, West, North and South all were represented among the six winners of the three nights of preliminary competition. Friday night, a red-haired California cutie and a brunette from North Carolina broke the monopoly blondes held during Wednesday's and Thursday's competition.

Susan Ann Henryson of Fresno, Calif., took the talent award in the third and final round. The swim suit prize went to Maria Beale Fletcher, an Asheville, N.C., beauty who measures 35-34-35.

Probers Offer Aid In Player Bribe Attempt

Senate Committee Hears Testimony Of Oregon Gridder

WASHINGTON (AP) —Senate investigators offered today to help prosecute two gamblers accused of trying to bribe a University of Oregon football player.

Lt. Carl Robinson, head of the Michigan state police rackets squad, told a reporter he would urge immediate reopening of the case now that the Senate Investigations subcommittee has turned up one of the gamblers, Frank Rosenthal.

At subcommittee hearings Friday, the player, Michael Bruce, 20, dramatically pointed to Rosenthal as the man who offered him $5,000 to fix last fall's Oregon-Michigan game. Bruce, of El Cajon, Calif., said the bribe was offered in a hotel on the eve of the game at Ann Arbor, Mich.

Bruce said he exposed the offer to the Oregon coaching staff and police were called in.

Rosenthal, of Chicago and Miami, stared impassively as Bruce leveled a finger at him. Then Rosenthal invoked the Fifth Amendment protection against self-incrimination and refused to testify about the incident.

The other gambler, David Budin, 28, a former New York school teacher, was arrested at the hotel. He was tried and fined $100 on a charge of registering under a false name.

Last June, Budin, former co-captain of the Brooklyn College basketball team, was indicted in New York on bribery charges in college basketball scandals.

No Immediate Health Danger

U.S. Experts May Detect Soviet A-Fallout Today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radioactive fallout from the Soviet Union's third nuclear test may be detected today by U.S. observers.

Officials have said there was no immediate health danger from the fallout.

Due to a weather freak, the radioactive cloud from the third nuclear test passed across to the North American continent ahead of fallout from the second blast.

Dr. Lester Machta, a U.S. Weather Bureau scientist, said that due to the weather at the time of Monday's second shot, the radioactive cloud was largely caught in a high pressure cell above northern Siberia.

The third test — touched off Tuesday—presumably was caught by strong winds and went scooting underneath the high pressure area toward the east.

Machta said the cloud from the third shot was moving at about 60 miles an hour and was due over this continent Friday night or today.

If no fallout is detected today, Machta said, U.S. scientists will presume that the third shot may have been exploded at high altitude. It would take longer for fallout from a high shot to tumble back down where it can be detected.

Machta and other Weather Bureau scientists estimate that the first test was exploded below 40,000 feet. This is indicated, they say, by the relatively rapid ar-

Jobless Claims Here Continue To Decline

Claims for jobless benefits processed through the East Liverpool office of the Ohio State Employment Service continued to decline this week, Harry L. Dinsmore, manager, said today.

Dinsmore reported claims this week totaled 509 — 87 fewer than were filed for the week ending Sept. 2. The total included 369 filed under the state program and 140 received under the federal extension plan.

The breakdown showed 44 new claims and 325 continuing under the regular benefits plan and seven new and 133 continuing under the federal law, Dinsmore said.

Pleasant Weather Slated Over Weekend

The Ohio Valley will have pleasant weather over the weekend — with little humidity and no rain. Skies will be fair.

Temperatures, with cool nights and moderate daytime weather, will continue through Sunday.

The Ohio weatherman said today's high will range between 82 and 88 and tonight's low 58 to 64.

The downtown had a 59 this morning — the lowest mark in over two weeks. But there may be lower temperatures soon — autumn will arrive officially Sept. 23.

29 Cases Due For Start Of Grand Jury

He said he expects the total may go as high as 35 before the session is completed probably late Friday.

The September term will officially open at noon Monday with the Columbiana County Bar Association's dinner at the First Presbyterian Church at Lisbon, followed by a bar meeting at the Courthouse in the afternoon with William Moore of Lisbon, president, in charge.

The 15-member panel will be seated Tuesday morning and will be sworn in by Judge Joel H. Sharp, who will handle criminal cases this term. A venire of 50 prospective grand jurors have been called.

After inspection of the County Jail in the forenoon, the panel will return after lunch and it will hear witnesses in seven cases, Brokaw said.

Cases to be heard include:

Hamblet Brooks, 83, of St. Clair Ave., East Liverpool, second degree murder in the shooting of his wife, Louisa Brooks, 81, in their home Aug. 26.

Homer R. Williams of Chester, first degree manslaughter in the death of Wilbert Willard Jr. of Tampa, Fla., when struck while in the Village Green June 4.

Padlock Step Seen Against Lisbon Firm

Atty. Gen. Mark McElroy said today he plans legal action to padlock the Lisbon Salesbook Co., which was raided Wednesday as an alleged source of numbers slips for rackets in 12 to 15 states.

He said in a statement thanking Columbiana County officials for their help in the raid that he plans an early conference with Prosecutor G. William Brokaw "to aid in bringing legal action to padlock the printing conern."

McElroy sent letters to Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard, Prosecutor Brokaw and Lisbon Police Chief Dalton Pike, who accompanied him and other state men on the raid.

The printing plant was turning out more than 20,000 books a day at the time of the raid. McElroy called it the third largest numbers or "bug" book printing plant in the country.

In the letter to Brokaw, McElroy said:

"I'm sure this operation could not have been stopped . . . . without your help . . . . ."

He also thanked Pike and Judge Buzzard and said the co-operation of various law enforcement agencies indicates the state "is serving notice on all manufacturers of gambling equipment that the state means business and will not tolerate violations of its laws."

Faulty Valve Causes Atlas Missile To Fall

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —A faulty fuel valve apparently caused an Atlas missile to fall into the Atlantic Ocean about 200 miles offshore Friday night shortly after it lifted off on the start of an intended 5,000-mile test flight.

Air Force technicians studied data radioed from the missile in an effort to pinpoint the trouble.

West Efforts For Parley On Berlin Fail

U.S. Officials Still Express Confidence For Negotiations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Western efforts to open up a basis for negotiation of a Berlin settlement with the Soviet Union were reported today to have been unsuccessful so far.

U.S. officials still expressed confidence, however, that exploration through diplomatic channels, including the American Embassy in Moscow and contacts at the United Nations, eventually will lead to negotiations between the Soviet Union and the Western powers.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk declared here Friday night that "we expect negotiations on Berlin as soon as it is apparent that negotiations of a serious and constructive character can occur."

But he said there is nothing in the "fine print" of Soviet Premier Khrushchev's statements on Berlin to "show the path to agreement."

Rusk warned the Soviet government against risking disaster by single-handed action against Allied interests in West Berlin. He also warned the Kremlin not to mistake the West's desire for peace as a willingness to yield to the Soviets' Berlin demand.

At the moment, Rusk said, the channels of communication available between Moscow and Western capitals "are not being neglected."

It is understood that U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson had a talk with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko in Moscow earlier this week.

Blind Texan Stops In City On Hitch-Hiking Trip

People in many peculiar guises and on many strange missions are everyday sights at police headquarters, but Chief Americo J. Radeschi confessed he was flabbergasted by the 65-year-old blind man found standing in the middle of Route 30 in California Hollow Friday afternoon.

With just five pennies in his pocket, he was attempting to hitch-hike back to his home in West Texas, a distance of over 1,600 miles!

The plucky traveler, Clayton Pierce, finally agreed to stay overnight in East Liverpool while police tried to figure out a more conventional way of getting him back to his home — and assuring that he will have some sort of food and lodging along the way.

Pierce insisted he felt perfectly at home in his long jaunt, even though he had only a vague idea of the route he would follow and his total baggage consisted of a battered little suitcase with toilet articles and a change of underclothing and socks.

"I have a road map in my head," he said. "I know where I'm headed. And I can sleep and eat at missions along the way."

Pierce said he is on his way back to the Lone Star State after a swing around the country "to see some of my friends during the nice summer weather."

He said he started back to Texas Wednesday after a visit with

Highway Head Outlines City Work At Democrats Meeting

William McKenna, head of the State Highway Department Division 11 office at New Philadelphia, spoke on highway construction in the area, including the California Hollow freeway and the proposed improvement of St. Clair Ave., at a general meeting of East Liverpool Democrats Friday night at the Travelers Hotel.

Seventy - two were present. McKenna said the city should continue working toward the second and third stages of the freeway. He said the state will complete the freeway at least to Route 170. He also said all cities in the district have financial troubles.

A question-and-answer period followed. The meeting opened with prayer and the flag salute. A silent prayer was held for the late Lee F. Copenhaver, safety-service director.

Mayor Bert Goodballet presented party candidates for various city offices. Plane Snaps Mooring Blocks, Takes Off On Erratic Flight

BURLINGTON, Iowa (AP)—Doren Bumgardner planned a short airplane flight around Burlington Friday. He didn't make it—but the plane did.

The plane, a Civil Air Patrol L16, jumped its mooring blocks at Municipal Airport after Bumgardner started the engine.

Then the shiny silver craft tried its wings without a pilot on an erratic two-hour flight that ended in an Illinois bean field.

"I sure hope it doesn't happen to me again," said the 29-year-old pilot, a member of the Burlington CAP squadron.

The plane's unusual behavior had this city of 34,000 persons in a tizzy for an hour as it circled lazily at 1,200 feet over downtown buildings and outlying residential areas.

Finally the plane straightened out, climbed to 12,000 feet, ran out of gas and plunged onto the J. L. Garmer farm four miles west of Aledo, Ill. The only damage was to the plane—demolished—and to the bean field.

"When that engine started, it started real fast," said Bumgardner, a rated pilot for six years. He said he ran to the side of the plane, grabbed the control stick, but couldn't get inside.

"I tried to do everything in my power to hold her down," he said. "I just couldn't. I had to let go."

Bumgardner suffered a skinned right side from ankle to hip. He was taken to a hospital.

Roller For Driveway Disabled By Vandals

A three - wheel roller being used in the blacktopping of the driveway and parking lot at the Trinity United Presbyterian Church was disabled by vandals, police were told Friday afternoon.

Ralph Froehlich, foreman for the Tri-State Asphalt Co., which has the blacktopping contract, told police the vandals placed sand in the battery, dirt in the oil pan and disconnected and removed the wiring to the distributor.

The vandals also filled a switch with mud and splattered mud over the controls, Froehlich said. The damage occurred Thursday night or early Friday while the roller was parked in the driveway from Maine Blvd.

The Communications Commission did this Friday by transferring Channel 20 from Coshocton, Ohio. Texan

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wickenham of Wheeling R.D. 4.

However, officials said a check through the Ohio County sheriff's office revealed no one by that name, and there was no telephone listing in the name despite Pierce's statement that he had called the family when he arrived in Wheeling and they picked him up in their car.

Pierce related that he hitchhiked as far as Steubenville, arriving there Thursday. He hopped a bus in Steubenville and wound up in East Liverpool to get onto Route 30 and head due west. He stayed Thursday night at the Rescue Mission on Broadway.

"I expect to go as far west as Davenport, Iowa, and then bear south and west to Amarillo," he said. When I get there, all I have to do is find my way to Wichita Falls and then on to Vernon."

Pierce said he is staying off the shortest and quickest highway route to Texas "because it goes through too many big cities" — Columbus, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Oklahoma City.

"My feet aren't any good any more and I don't like that long walk clear across those big towns," he said.

Pierce conceded his planned route is more roundabout, but added he won't have a single metropolis to contend with.

Balding and of slight build, Pierce is attired in grey chino shirt and trousers, wears a floppy felt hat and carries a battered white cane.

Proud of his self-sufficiency, he said: "I have just five pennies in my pocket."

Pierce related that he had been totally blind since he was injured in an auto accident 32 years ago in Idaho that also left him with a fractured back. He said he has no close relatives.

He said he draws a $68-a-month blind pension from his native state, but the September payment is gone and the next check isn't due until early October.

Before he was injured, Pierce was a truck-driver, he related.

"That was back in the days when trucks had solid rubber tires," he said.

Pierce arrived at the Rescue Mission about 5 p.m. Thursday. Allowed to stay overnight, he remained until about 1:30 Friday afternoon. Meanwhile, Pierce insisted on leaving and Kenneth Steen, the mission superintendent, tried to persuade him to stay while efforts were made to raise money for bus fare to Texas.

But Pierce finally won the argument and Steen agreed to drive him to the city limits on Route 30 so he could resume his hitchhiking. Returning to town, he decided to tell the police department about the strange traveler and see what the officers thought should be done.

Chief Radeschi dispatched Patrolman William A. Devon in a cruiser to check. He found Pierce standing in the middle of the highway.

He brought Pierce to headquarters and police and Steen set about again to find if they could raise money somehow for bus fare and traveling expenses.

Cites Ballot Discrimination

Rights Group Urges Law To Ensure Voting Rights

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Rights Commission recommended today that Congress enact legislation to ensure the right of all qualified Americans to vote. It said six years of schooling should meet any state literacy requirement.

Evidence of balloting discrimination has been found in eight Southern states, the commission reported.

The commission divided 4 to 2 on the recommendation that Congress pass laws to deal with discrimination against Negroes and other minority groups in voting.

This recommendation was in two parts. Citing the 14th and 15th Amendments to the Constitution as establishing a federal say in voting matters, the commission majority said Congress should:

Declare that voter qualifications other than age, residence, confinement and conviction of a crime are susceptible to use and have been used to deny the right to vote on grounds of race and color.

Enact legislation providing that all citizens shall have a right to vote in federal or state elections and that this right shall not be interfered with except for inability to meet reasonable age or length of residence requirements or on grounds of conviction of a crime.

The right to vote, the commission added, should also include the right to register or otherwise qualify to vote and have the vote counted.

The majority included Chairman John A. Hannah, president of Michigan State University; the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame University; Spottswood W. Robinson III, dean of the Howard University Law School, and Dean Erwin N. Griswolf of the Harvard Law School.

The dissenters were Vice Chairman Robert G. Storey, former dean of the Law School of Southern Methodist University, and Robert S. Rankin, chairman of the Department of Political Science at Duke University.

County Posts Ask Action In Relief Setup

A resolution calling for remedial legislation of the 105th General Assembly in connection with the Soldiers & Sailors Relief Fund was passed unanimously by the Columbiana County American Legion Council Friday night.

Forty attended the session in the Post 4 home on the Diamond.

The resolution calls upon the Legion's State Department committee to seek remedial legislation enabling county officials to retain unencumbered balances in the relief fund from year to year.

Under the present law, all balances at the end of the fiscal year go to the general fund.

The council voiced an opinion that the unspent balances should remain in the relief fund from year to year to be used when the demands are heaviest.

Kenneth Bell, county auditor, told the group he hopes the new property appraisal will boost the tax valuation of Columbiana County from $199 million to $220 million when it goes into effect early in 1962.

Walter McCoy of Lisbon, county commander, presided. Louis Krawiec, chaplain, offered a memorial prayer for four members who died the past month, including Lee Mackey and Homer McVay of East Liverpool, Lawrence Schaeffer of Salem, and Paul Marks of East Palestine.

Next meeting is Oct. 13 at Wellsville Post 70.

A Tribute

To Our School Teachers!

Today, as no time before in history, the school teacher is recognized as the builder of tomorrow's America! With juvenile delinquency increasing apace, and foreign ideologies creeping into our school books, it is high time that glowing tribute was paid to these patient men and women who instruct our young. Let's remember that teachers are human beings, not machines. Let's give them the support and confidence they so richly deserve. Let's attend P-T-A meetings and contribute something more than children. This community is fortunate in having such fine schools and outstanding educators. We applaud their work and their good American achievements!

Fallout

rival over the United States of radioactive debris from the initial blast Sept. 1.

Fallout from the first blast was detected earlier this week by a station in Alaska, but there have been no reports of spotting it elsewhere.

Machta said the cloud from the first test should begin passing over the Atlantic towards Europe by Sunday. He said there were two possible explanations as to why it had not been reported elsewhere:

1. The radioactive cloud may be on a course that takes it over Canada, and it may not be as wide as the 700 miles originally estimated.

2. There are delays of about 24 hours in reporting by the detection stations of the health service network.

By the time the radioactive debris from the second and fourth shots arrives over the United States, Machta said, the cloud from the first test probably will have gone around the world again and the subsequent clouds will mix in with it. This will make it hard to detect the later tests.

Experimenter Gets Pears On Apple Tree

Willen Baumgarner of Midway Ln. is preparing to pick some pears from a tree in his yard.

Nothing strange about this, to be sure, except the pears are growing on an apple tree.

Baumgarner, who raises fruit trees as a hobby, also experiments with grafting procedures. About six years ago he grafted a branch from a bartlett pear tree to the apple tree which basically is of the red delicious variety.

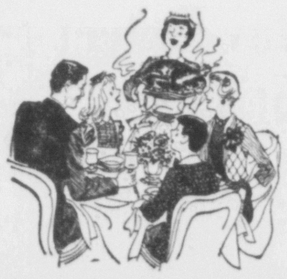

The pear branch has had blossoms in the past but this is the first year it has produced any fruit. The same tree also has at least two other types of apples on it.

Baumgarner, who works for a Leetonia construction firm, has another tree with three varieties of apples and a cherry tree with six varieties of fruit.

He has about 10 apple trees with which he experiments.

Prison Inmate Asks County Lift Detainer

Common Pleas Court Judge Raymond S. Buzzard has taken under advisement a plea of John Cieselski that Columbiana County's detainer is depriving him of some of his rights in a federal prison.

The Pittsburgh man, indicted for the burglary of the Peoples Drugstore in East Liverpool June 24, 1960, is now in a federal penitentiary because of another crime.

He was freed on $10,000 bond in the city case and his attorneys petitioned Lisbon court for dismissal of the burglary charge and the detainer.

Prosecutor G. William Brokaw refused to drop the charge and withdraw the detainer and will furnish Judge Buzzard a brief for study in connection with Cieselski's plea.

Convicted Youth Hangs Himself

WESTON, W. Va. (AP)—An Ohio youth convicted of strangling a Parkersburg area woman was found hanged in the criminal ward of the Weston State Hospital Friday by a fellow inmate.

Lewis County Coroner D. D. Chapman said Roger Dean Wilson, 19, ended his own life by using strips from a bed sheet as a noose. He tied one end to bars in the window of the ward in the mental hospital.

Wilson was convicted in Parkersburg last May 18 of voluntary manslaughter in the death of Mrs. LeLight Shepard, 37. She was found strangled in her living quarters back of a small grocery store she operated on Marrtown Road near Parkersburg.

Wilson, a jobless truck driver from Waterford, Ohio, was captured two days later in Gallipolis, Ohio.

Circuit Judge Donald F. Black sent him to Weston for examination before imposing sentence. Wilson could have received from one to five years in prison.

X-Ray Unit Due At Wellsville In 2-Day Program

The mobile X-ray unit of the Ohio Department of Health will be stationed in Wellsville Monday and Tuesday, according to the Wellsville Board of Health.

The unit will be on the Public Square at 4th and Main Sts. Monday from 2 to 5 and 6 to 9 p.m. at Garfield School on 18th St. the same hours on Tuesday.

Anyone 18 or older is eligible to receive a free chest X-ray. Dr. G. A. Peller, health commissioner, urged that anyone over 40 obtain the check since tuberculosis is most prevalent in this age group.

Each person tested will receive a confidential report of the X-ray and signs of other chest abnormalities also will be reported. Dr. Peller said it is possible to have tuberculosis and not know it. A person with the disease can unknowingly pass it on to others.

The Board of Health also requires all food handlers and owners of establishments selling food to show evidence of a recent chest X-ray.

The board will meet Thursday, Sept. 28. Members are John Grafton, president, W. J. Palmer, John Minor, George Hardmen and Nicholas Puch, clerk.

"Blue sky" laws are laws designed to prevent the sale of fraudulent securities.

'Burial Rites' Set For Test Ban Meeting

GENEVA (AP) — The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union perform burial rites today for the nuclear test ban conference after 340 sessions. It was doomed when the Soviets decided to resume tests.

Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin was expected to bring the 34-month-old parley to a formal end by delivering the Kremlin's rejection of the last-minute Western proposal for a ban on tests that contaminate the earth's atmosphere.

The deadline set by the West for the Soviet Union's answer on their offer expired with today's meeting.

Facts You Should Know About Septic Tanks

A Septic Tank is actually the "stomach" of the disposal system, its purpose being to digest and liquefy the solids entering it, discharging liquids to the disposal area.

In general, Septic Tanks are constructed of steel or concrete, varying in size from 500 to 10,000 gallon capacities. Correctly made and installed, they form an airtight and watertight chamber.

The inlet carries the raw sewage into the first chamber of the tank. Most of the solids will settle to the bottom of this chamber, developing bacterial colonies which "feed" on these solids. This bottom layer is termed, "sludge". A crust or "mat" will usually form on the top, this being composed mainly of grease and fatty substances which have a tendency to float. The second chamber enables further clarification of the water prior to passing out to the drainage area. Water leaving a Septic Tank is referred to as "effluent".

Septic Tanks will operate satisfactorily as long as the "mat" and "sludge" do not build up to the point where they start feeding through into the second chamber, and then out to the drainage area. Unfortunately, most people wait until the system "backs-up", which means that the tank is completely clogged and that large amounts of solids have passed through with the effluent.

Most Septic Tank failures are caused by (1) introduction of chemicals which destroy the bacteria life, (2) overloading, i.e., putting more into the tank in any 24-hr. period than its designed capacity, (3) temperature changes which slow down the bacterial digestion, and (4) excessive use of greases and fats.

Regular use of "SEA-CAL", preferably combined with an initial "seeding" of the tank with "SEA-CAL" will usually eliminate all of the problems by introducing powerful glandular enzymes which accelerate the digestive action and prevent the passage of solids to the drainage area. Enzymes, such as are used in "SEA-CAL", are also extremely resistant to temperature and pH changes, and the addition of millions of bacterial cultures (80,000,000 per gram) in SEA-CAL replaces the bacterial colonies that may have been destroyed.

It would be untrue to state that a Septic Tank need never be pumped, since sewage can only be digested to a point of "ash", and the introduction of inorganic materials, such as sand, grit, metal, and glass, will create a build-up over a period of time that will have to be removed. However, with regular monthly treatments of SEA-CAL, these pumpings should occur only at ten or twenty-year intervals.

Virtue Was Triumphant

We'll have to take the word of observers on the scene that the result of the Democratic primary in New York City was a triumph for virtue.

The city's mayor, Robert F. Wagner Jr., seeking a third term, won.

He was the reform candidate. Therefore, virtue must have been triumphant.

The catch is that we followed the campaign via newspapers and magazines and had the idea that virtue also would have been triumphant if Mayor Wagner had been licked.

This is because things haven't gone well during his two terms in office. There have been many scandals.

Because of the fact he had been put in office by Tammany Hall, symbol of Democratic bossism in New York City, this looked like a problem for the New York County Democratic Committee, which runs Tammany Hall.

Narrowed down still further, it looked like a problem for Carmine G. DeSapio, chief of Tammany Hall — the man who made it possible for Robert F. Wagner Jr. to become mayor of the nation's largest city.

BUT MAYOR WAGNER didn't wait for Mr. DeSapio to solve the problem. He discovered, instead, that he was opposed to Tammany Hall, Mr. DeSapio and all the bosses of the Democratic organizations throughout New York County. He was not their responsibility, he insisted.

He fled to the "reformers," as typified by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Herbert H. Lehman, former New York governor and U.S. senator. He became their white knight.

This is an old and standard move in New York politics — to get into office by running as an organization Democrat, then to stay in office by running against the organization. It works in other places, too.

It has worked again in the New York City primary.

There was an exceptionally heavy vote, showing that New Yorkers were in arms over the reform issue. They really thought Mayor Wagner, after two terms under auspices of the Democratic organization, had seen the light and would show the way to future civic virtue. You can fool some of the voters all of the time; you can bet on it.

MEANWHILE, Republicans will take hope. Their nominee for mayor is Louis J. Lefkowitz, with plenty of backing and the blessing of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

It has been 20 years since New York had a Republican mayor, the unforgettable Fiorello A. La Guardia. With the Democratic organization rebuked by Robert Wagner, its own man, Lefkowitz might have a chance.

To top off the triumph of virtue, incidentally, Mr. DeSapio lost his own district leadership which puts him on the political sidelines. Perhaps with some hocus-pocus he can run as a reformer the next time, too. Voters always love a reformer.

That Was The Very Idea

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has been forced to defend himself for a policy that is rooted in the foundation of American government.

Critics in Congress have accused him of exercising civilian control over a military department. Their specific complaint is that he used his civilian authority to censor forthcoming public statements of military officers and that some of the statements were anti-Communist.

To be sure, the complaint is made in connection with an accusation that statements against the Communist Conspiracy were toned down, thereby giving the complainants the benefit of anti-Communist feeling. But their complaint should be evaluated in terms of general policy, not in terms of the particular subject matter of one group of public speeches.

As far as the Communist Conspiracy is concerned, Secretary McNamara has made it abundantly clear that he is just as opposed to it as any of the militarists under his authority, or any of the backers some of them have found for the claim that their speeches should not be subject to review. The secretary of defense is not being soft on Communism.

He is, instead, being tough about his historic prerogative as secretary of defense. George Washington, the first president, laid down the policy of civilian control of military departments.

When the Department of Defense was created in 1947, the first secretary was James V. Forrestal, a civilian. With the exception of Gen. George C. Marshall, who served briefly at the beginning of the last decade, all subsequent secretaries have been from civilian life. Secretary McNamara, like the others, has had to prove his right to hold his authority against generals, admirals and other military critics who have resented his presence.

This is what he is doing now.

The issue is not the Communist Conspiracy. It is the rule that civilians should control the military power of the United States. Secretary McNamara's position should be understood. He is fighting for a traditional right.

Say It Isn't So

Teachers in district schools may be confronted by smug students with the news that the word "ain't" has been recognized by Webster's dictionary as used in "cultivated" circles.

The laws of Ohio recognize murder, and the courts recognize it is practiced in cultivated circles. But, regardless, it is frowned on most strongly.

In a world where it is becoming increasingly more difficult to find someone taking a stand, The Review takes a stand against "ain't".

Despite the dictionary's action, we feel in this case its reasoning "ain't necessarily so" and that the aforementioned "cultivated" should be plowed under if they continue to throw the word in the face of those who take pride in proper speech.

Live Film From West Berlin

Before newspapers tee off on the report that the United States Army faked some action in West Berlin for Jack Paar, the TV personality, they would do well to confess their own transgressions.

Press photographers have been known to take posed pictures of politicians ostensibly making speeches. Studio technicians have made judicious retouches on photographs. Reporters have asked questions designed to get the answers they wanted.

The press has no license to cast a first stone at Jack Paar, who went to Berlin to get live film for his TV show and is doing his job. It does have a right to wonder how the U.S. Army got mixed up in the dido, of course — and this will take some explaining.

IN ACTUAL TRUTH, here is a dilemma in the graphic arts — how to walk a straight line and still be graphic. Things do not always shape up the way they should to have understandable form; that's the problem. That's why there's a dilemma.

Take the Berlin tension.

To show what is happening, Jack Paar and his crew needed action. But there was no action, so the Army provided a semblance of action. If Paar had been a sports writer in need of an action picture on a football field when no game was in progress, the boys would have been ordered to furnish a little action. It's that simple.

EXCEPT THAT IT ISN'T that simple. In New Orleans, when school desegregation was popping, TV cameramen were responsible for taking pictures of screaming women away from the actual scene of the trouble. The women then trotted home to watch themselves on their TV sets, ostensibly doing something they hadn't done. The pictures appeared on TV sets all over the United States and gave a wrong impression of what was happening in New Orleans.

The dilemma of the graphic arts isn't going to be straightened out suddenly. Jack Parr is tangled up in something that he won't be able to talk himself out of without a lot of stuttering. He has lots of company.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

New York mayoralty primary is over and the city is suffering no more than expected as a result of "fallout" from candidates' speeches. Lucky was any New Yorker who had an underground shelter to protect him from the oratory. At the finish the public slogan was "May the least abused candidate win!"

All speeches charged rivals with crookedness, ignorance, inefficiency, double dealing, dirty work at crossroads, chronic lethargy, and almost everything but hay fever and the lack of a cure for the common cold. They made thousands of voters afraid to vote for anybody in the race.

City was fortunate that campaign was concluded before any candidate was blamed for resumption of bomb tests, Punjab disturbance, Brazilian crisis and Mickey Mantle's arm sprain. It was one of the few campaigns in which dressing-stations had to be set up for each candidate while another was speaking.

Wagner and Levitt should have been allowed Hollywood stunt men as "standins" to sub for them during extra violent routines.

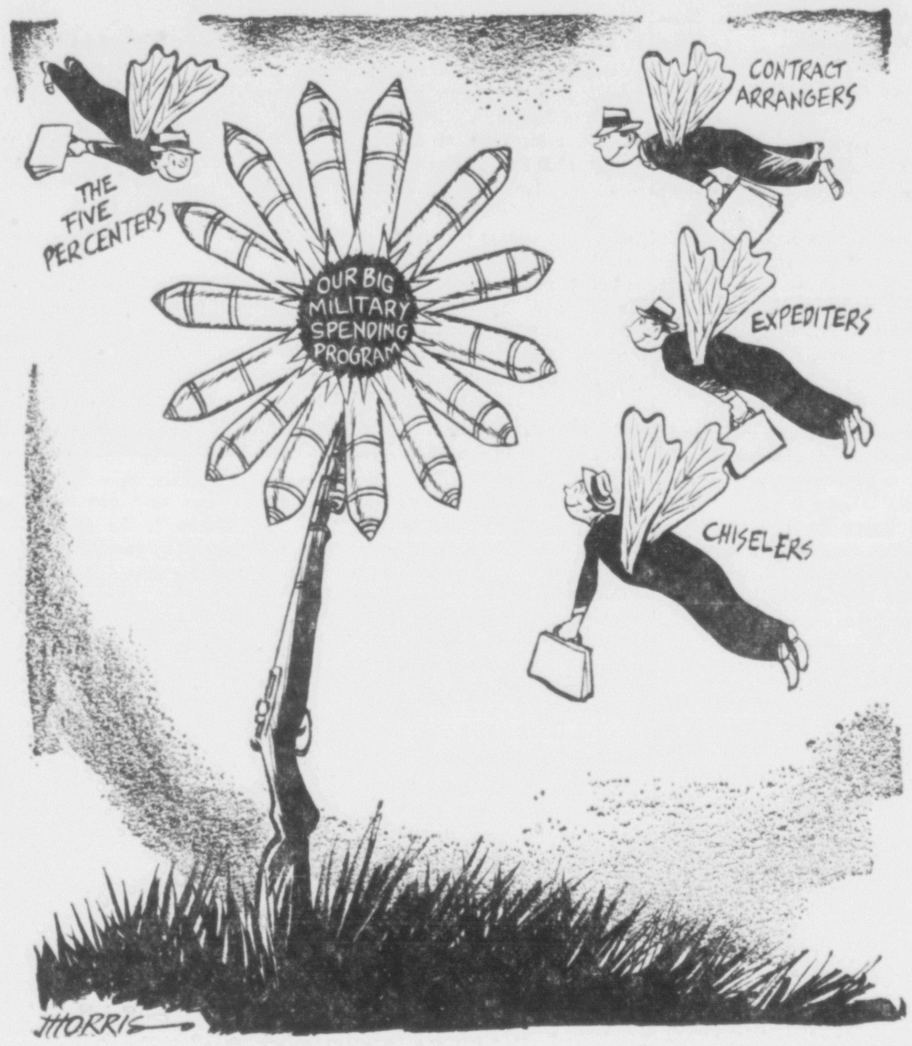

It means an election for mayor in which men with the best record for consumption of hot dogs, blintzes, knishes and Coney Island box-lunches may win, if he also exceeds his opponent in opposition to "This door not working" subway signs, slow snow removals, general skulduggery and dirty towels at soda fountains. (The Metropolitan Opera crisis didn't enter in the primary, after it was apparent that Arthur Goldberg had won it.)

It was one battle so dangerous that President Kennedy kept out. He didn't even send a wire to neutrals. Primary conclusion: New York City Hall should be leased for pro wrestling bouts and Park Row set aside for rodeo shows. Onward, voters, to the polls for co-existence between political candidates!

Harry Truman was at recent big ball game in New York. He is one fan who gets a special kick out of "walks".

Porpoises have intelligence close to that of humans, says a scientist who has made close studies of fish and people. He says they can be taught to talk. It would be somewhat disconcerting to see a school come up just off the starboard quarter and ask "Why doncher look where ya going?"

Anti-Strike Weapon Put Away

By Victor Riesel

There's a top secret label on the "secret weapon" which John Kennedy and Arthur Goldberg had in their private "arsenal" for use against General Motors and Walter Reuther's union if there had been an auto strike. The gadget, whatever it is, goes back in the bin — undisclosed — for possible action against the much tougher crisis coming in "steel" next spring.

Victor Riesel

In White House circles it is no secret that President Kennedy has told Arthur Goldberg he will not tolerate crippling national strikes.

The President did not get tough with both sides in the automobile dispute because he took Arthur Goldberg's word some four months ago that there would not be a strike. The labor secretary predicted this quietly at a Cabinet meeting just about the time Reuther first called for auto contract bargaining.

AS THE PRESIDENT and the other Cabinet members listened, the secretary of labor said there would be a non-inflationary, peaceful settlement. Goldberg then urged his colleagues and advised his chief to be careful in any statements or comments on the coming auto "crisis."

While everybody else was predicting a strike, Goldberg stuck to his analysis — and even booked passage for Scandinavia on Sept. 21. The other night he dined with a newsman who said to him, "We're the only two in the land who believe there will be no national stoppage."

There were really three — the other was the President. Nonetheless John Kennedy rode herd hard on this one. So intensely did Mr. Kennedy feel about a paralyzing auto strike which would hit 19 states — and perhaps some 35 in all if other companies went down — that he reached for the phone almost the moment he arrived from Hyannis Port last Tuesday morning. Despite the atomic disturbances, he called Goldberg. The President was assured there would be no stoppage.

THE NEXT MORNING, with the last of the breakfasting congressmen hardly out of the White House door, Mr. Kennedy was on the phone with the labor secretary. Again the chief executive was assured by his minority of one.

What made Goldberg so certain he was not positioning his chief? To some friends, Goldberg says it was his "intuition." But Mr. G. takes as many chances as a professional gambler—none!

For months he had been warning both sides the government would move in fast if there was a stoppage — even though it would not rush in during the "crisis" with all sorts of public or private proposals.

He did this in private telephone conversations with GM's talented industrial war veteran, Louis Seaton, and the publicly fiery Walter Reuther.

GOLDBERG, who believes that "communication amongst the parties" really is a towering fence at the brink, also made this quite plain at a party on the night of Saturday, Aug. 26, in the University of Detroit.

Earlier that evening Goldberg had been the chief speaker at the National Catholic Social Action Conference banquet.

He was introduced by William Gossett, vice president and general counsel of Ford. Dining with them were Louis Seaton, Walter Reuther, Kenneth Cassidy of Ford, John D. Leary, vice president in charge of personnel at Chrysler and Ed Cushman, creator of "progress sharing" for American Motors.

Later they socialized. There was considerable jesting. Someone told Reuther he looked like he had eaten the canary along with the roast beef.

But, as Mr. Goldberg later told friends, there was hard realism behind the jesting — and he had, in effect, let them all know that the government would not tolerate a strike.

WHAT THIS MEANT, no one really knows. Insiders are guessing that in view of the Berlin emergency, John Kennedy would have seized the industry or would have gone to Congress for extraordinary powers to fix wages and prices.

At 5 p.m., Sept. 5, Goldberg sat with the President. They, in effect, dotted the "i" and crossed the "t" in the word intolerable. They worked out the President's statement asking for a settlement.

After a while Goldberg went home. At 1 a.m., Wednesday morning, the phone rang. The federal mediator calling in from Detroit, said it looked very good. At 4 a.m. one of the principals called. It was over. They had agreed on the money package.

There would be no strike that morning or next week either! There was only the matter of non-economic clauses — the kind which give both sides ulcers.

But Goldberg was able to call the President a few hours later on the direct White House phone that they could stack away the secret weapon until springtime.

Political Smears

By Raymond Moley

A rough, windy primary campaign in New York City has ended. The results, published over the nation, are not relevant to the purpose of this article. Our abiding interest should be the low level which political campaigning in this country so often reaches.

In the final days of the campaign, an issue arose which is never absent from any campaign, especially when there is little choice among candidates on any pertinent ground. It is the issue of religious and racial prejudice, designated in headlines—because it is a short word—as "bias."

Arthur Levitt, state controller and candidate for the Democratic nomination for mayor, according to the press, charged that Mayor Robert Wagner, also a candidate, permitted some of his chieftains to circulate an anti-Semitic attack against Levitt.

This is called the "smear direct."

Then it was charged by some of Wagner's people that some of Levitt's people had manufactured the defamatory literature against Levitt to afford the charge of bigotry against Wagner.

That is called the "smear indirect."

Thus the variations on the theme are many and diverse.

OF COURSE, everyone deplores an appeal to racial or religious prejudice. And in some places everyone uses it.

I well remember the crisis of a campaign for mayor in New York in 1933. Fiorello LaGuardia, who proved to be a good mayor, but could play the demagogue with the best of his time, charged that Joseph McKee, who was running as an anti-Tammany Democrat, had written an essay in his school days casting aspersions upon Italian and Jewish boys. Since the "Little Flower" was both Italian and Jewish, it was a deadly weapon in his capable hands.

I was present when McKee's managers were discussing ways to meet the attack.

After some discussion, a member of the group who could have made a fortune in Hollywood portraying the political hack, said: "Let's start a 'wispering' campaign." I never knew whether his advice was taken. But, if so, it was unavailing. LaGuardia was elected.

The two parties in New York are meticulous in embracing all races and religions. In the old days the city-wide ticket was generally composed of a Catholic, a Jew, and a Protestant. The district attorneys for some reason were always Protestant.

IN TIME, an Italian name was substituted for that of a Protestant. Witness the current Republican slate: Lefkowitz, Fino, and Gilhooley.

As the Negroes became politically powerful, one of that race was nominated by the Democrats for president of the Borough of Manhattan.

As I have noted, there are many varieties of the "bias" smear. When there is no possibility of proof and it seems impractical to manufacture one, a candidate repeats over and over, hand on heart, his right to public office, "under the Constitution of the United States, despite religious affiliation."

This casts abroad the suspicion that his opponent is indeed opposed to him on grounds of religion.

It is very effective. For the opponent cannot answer that he is really and truly a friend of all Americans, etc. That would get people thinking that he "protests too much" and must be guilty.

I ONCE HEARD a fine old Catholic bishop say most forcefully to his congregation: "You will stand up for your religion when you won't kneel down for it."

I might conclude by suggesting that all resorts to religious and racial themes in politics are reflections on the intelligence of voters.

Whoever raises the issue—in whatever form, direct, indirect, and by inference — should be repudiated.

Race and religion as a qualification for office should be irrelevant. But with human nature what it has been and is and will be, that ideal cannot be expected in our time.

No Other Choice

By David Lawrence

'Organized Murder' At Its Highest Level

The testaments of all religions contain the equivalent of the commandment: "Thou shalt not kill." Yet the world today is witnessing a resumption of nuclear tests designed to find more and more weapons that can destroy human life.

David Lawrence

This paradox seems to be taken for granted as one of the inevitable consequences of international rivalry. War is roundly denounced as each side professes to be interested in attaining peace while the other side is blamed for provocations that could lead to armed conflict.

Governments frown at one another and send out sharply worded diplomatic notes but the means of disarming reckless men who may bring on war is yet to be discovered.

There are no tests to find ways of depriving dictators of the power suddenly to plunge their own country and the world into a nuclear war.

No decision which President Kennedy has made could have caused him more anguish than the authorization to American scientists and military men to resume nuclear tests. Even though the American tests are to be underground and in laboratories, while the Soviets have already held four tests in the atmosphere —presumably producing fallout— there is a revulsion of feeling about all of them on the theory that a decision to test means a decision some day actually to use nuclear bombs.

Never in history has the world faced so powerful and so devastating a weapon as the big nuclear bomb. Estimates vary as to the millions of persons who can be killed or the wide area that can be destroyed but those scientists who understand the effectiveness of these weapons have told congressional committees again and again of the awfulness of these new tools of war.

Under the circumstances, the world is challenged to find a way to prevent a disaster of incalculable proportions.

What is being done or likely to be done about it? A group of 25 nations who call themselves non-aligned but who, for the most part, play the Communist game has called on the governments at Moscow and Washington to enter into some kind of summit conference to secure a peaceful settlement of outstanding issues.

GREAT BRITAIN and France have expressed their concurrence with President Kennedy's action in ordering underground tests and have echoed a widely prevailing sentiment in this country that he had no other choice.

Mr. Kennedy had proposed that, before Sept. 9, a new agreement be made to suspend all tests in the air.

But there may be back of the recent moves some other maneuvers by the Soviets that have not yet appeared.

It is considered quite possible that only a compelling reason caused Premier Khrushchev to violate all the previous pledges in which he proclaimed his determination to resume nuclear testing only if the West did so.

One theory is that his own military people forced his hand. The probabilities are that the Soviets discovered they were somewhat behind in the nuclear-arms race and couldn't wait any longer for an opportunity to make certain tests.

Once these tests are over, however, it is being suggested that the Moscow government may be willing to enter into an agreement to ban further tests indefinitely—or at least until Soviet scientists again produce something on the drawing boards that absolutely requires testing in order to determine its effectiveness.

ASSUMING that there soon will be a moratorium again on nuclear tests, what assurance has the world that one man in the Kremlin may not take some military step that will compel the use first of smaller nuclear weapons and then later one of the bigger ones? Once a battle starts, it might be difficult to secure any sudden stoppage, and the final results could be a terrible loss of human lives.

Theoretically, the United Nations was supposed to be a forum in which such a vital subject might be debated but there are no signs as yet that world opinion has been mobilized to bring about action at the U.N. to require a binding agreement covering not just the tests but the actual use of nuclear weapons in the future.

One would think that the conscience of mankind would be troubled not only that nuclear war is seriously contemplated as a possibility but that no method of restraint has been devised by the peoples of the world to avoid what Prime Minister Lloyd George of Britain in 1919 called "organized murder." War today with nuclear weapons would be far more a fulfillment of that term than it ever has been in the past.

Down Through The Years

From The Review Files

THIRTY YEARS AGO — Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Poynter and family of Pennsylvania Ave. motored to Niagara Falls and Ontario, Canada.

Howard Osborn was elected president at the first annual reunion of the families of the late Joseph and Emma Osborn at Thompson Park.

Herbert Thompson, T. C. Toland, Lawrence Chamberlin and Ray Davis were candidates for two board of education places in St. Clair Township at the November election.

TWENTY YEARS AGO — Dr. and Mrs. James T. Jackson of Ohio Ave. attended the state optometrists' convention in Toledo.

Frederick Bright of East Liverpool and Miss Mildred Reeder of Lisbon were elected co-presidents of the Columbiana County Christian Endeavor Union.

Miss Margaret June Kidder was elected president of the Willing Workers Class of the Boyce Methodist Church.

TEN YEARS AGO — Dale Hardy of Carolina Ave., Chester, joined the Purdue University Varsity Glee Club for a 10-day tour, including stops at Washington, Canada and Chicago.

Donald Davis was named commandant of the Pfc. John Fox Detachment of the Marine Corps League.

The Rev. M. Rudolph Miller assumed his duties as president of the East Liverpool Ministerial Association.

Letter To Editor

I can't truthfully say that I can hear the beagle bays of Pope Ave. all the way here, but the injured bellows of Apache Duke II's (if I may stretch a point) master come through loud and strong.

The old phrase "love me - love my dog" can at times be sickening. Those misguided people who wish to share the pleasure of their dog with all the neighborhood would shudder were they to read the private thoughts of the offended neighbors with each trod tulip or dug daisy.

Aforementioned dog's (thought to be) master should realize that a pooch on the prowl can never be regarded as anything but a nuisance, night or day.

There was a time, when my wife was a girl, that Pope Ave. only had to watch out for children stomping the stuffing out of flower beds. Like the children of today, you only had to tell them once — a day, that is — to keep out of the flowers.

I feel our good lady of Pope Ave. has gotten her point across besides relieving the pressure. It's a safe bet that Apache Duke II is not one of her annoying howlers. He is definitely fenced and chained since Apache Duke I got hit by the car. None of the owners of the foot-loose and fancy-free hounds could think of an adequate answer — neither can I.

Strategic Bizerte

Bizerte, site of France's base in Tunisia, has held a strategic place in world history for more than 2,500 years.

Its position on the narrowest part of the Mediterranean Sea has earned Bizerte the title of the French Gibraltar. Only 150 miles separate Bizerte from Sicily; Rome is 350 miles distant.

Not far to the southeast lie the ruins of ancient Carthage, which once rivaled Rome in splendor and power. Now sheep graze where Hannibal mustered his army of elephants. Olive groves and vineyards climb the rolling hills around the harbor.

Bizerte has long had an active part in world affairs. Known in ancient times as Hippo Zarytus, it waged continuous war with Carthage. Both cities fell before Roman legions in the second century B. C.

Barley Grain Plan Slated For Beaver

The Beaver County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service office announced today a barley feed grain program.

Mark Hilliker, chairman of the county committee, said that the barley program in many ways will be similar to the corn and grain sorghum program which went into operation last spring and early summer.

However, he noted that a separate signup will be held for 1962-crop barley because much of the barley crop is planted in the fall.

Hilliker said that in recent years, more and more barley has gone into livestock feed. This fact, coupled with a continuing increase in production since 1952, prompted the Congress to include barley in the upcoming 1962 feed grain program.

Coed Slayer Is Hunted In Pennsylvania

CARLISLE, Pa. (AP) — Police from Pennsylvania and Ohio focused their attention on the Carlisle area today in search of a 17-year-old youth charged with slaying a Kent State University coed.

The object of the manhunt was Richard J. Stewart of Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio. Stewart has been charged with first-degree murder in the strangling and brutal beating of Judy Sooy, an 18-year-old blonde also from Cuyahoga Falls.

The search in this central Pennsylvania area was touched off late Friday when state police discovered an abandoned car about two miles east of Carlisle believed to be owned by Stewart's mother.

The Sooy girl's battered body was found at the home of Stewart's stepfather in Cuyahoga Falls Monday night.

Police theorized the girl was dead about 24 hours. The coroner ruled death was due to strangulation.

The girl's parents said their daughter apparently was lured from her home Sunday night by an unknown telephone caller who invited her to a party of some high school friends. She was picked up at a shopping center within sight of her home, Ohio police were told. That was the last she was seen alive.

Stewart's parents found the body of the girl after returning home from a holiday weekend trip. The boy did not go on that trip.

The Power Of Faith by Howard Brodie

PROMINENT MEN OF FAITH

Bishop Gerald Kennedy

"The little fearful man, who has only his timid candle burning, will find it being blown out by every wind of adversity. But when a man rests in the assurance of the Spirit, the wind . . . fans the flame of his faith into a mighty blaze," believes Bishop Gerald Kennedy.

The past President of the Council of Bishops of the Methodist Church has been courageous in his convictions, yet understanding of others' points of view. He has inspired through his books and is considered one of America's greatest preachers: "The spiritual man is neither perfect nor static . . . He is still faced with dilemmas. But he knows at last that there is enough power available if he is willing to . . . surrender to the will of God."

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

Why Worry When You Can Pray?

"A man in Seattle is trying to reach you by telephone," said my secretary. "He seems very worried, says it is urgent." Picking up the phone, I presently heard the voice of a stranger rapidly, nervously introducing himself to me by name and occupation. Then he said, "I'm absolutely sick with worry." He spent some five minutes and a good many dollars describing his acute anxiety and the suffering it was causing him. When I could get a word in I asked him to tell me exactly what the problem was. It revolved around a business venture of very large proportions. He said he was the only man with the special competence required to put it over successfully. He had worked long and hard at it. Now the fate of this enterprise was hanging in the balance. And he was worried —"worried sick."

IT WAS EVIDENT I was talking with a man of real ability and accomplishment, but somehow he was lacking in the kind of confidence that kepes a person steady in time of crisis.

I asked if he had done everything within his power and knowledge to make his venture successful. He said yes, he had; so far as he could see there was nothing more he could do.

"Well, then," I said, "let's bring up against this worry of yours the one great resource that can overcome it."

"What's that?"

"Some real faith in God," I answered. "And to help you get that faith I suggest that we pray together now — you there in Seattle and I here in New York, but the two of us thinking together in the Lord's name over the telephone."

I offered aloud a prayer asking that this man might feel the reassuring presence of the Lord. I prayed that, being sure he had done his best, he would be content to trust and leave the outcome in God's hands. "Thank you, Lord," I concluded, "for your gracious help to this troubled child of yours."

To my surprise, my Seattle friend then prayed aloud himself, substantially the same prayer. A momentary silence followed. Then he said, "Isn't it foolish to worry when you can pray?"

Now there is a thought worth inscribing on your consciousness. Why worry when you can pray? Not only is worrying misery in itself but it can also make you ill.

A California physician practicing in a part of the country renowned for its healthful climate recently expressed the opinion that one-third of the people in his state have ailments traceable to worry. If that is true, what must be the percentage of people sick with worry in a city like New York or Chicago? No wonder the Bible says so much about prayer as the means of overcoming worry.

ST. PAUL wrote to the Philippians, "The Lord is at hand. Have no anxiety about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God."

Why is prayer the great antidote to worry? What happens when you pray? Many things. But one basic thing is that the act of prayer brings a fresh realization of God's sustaining presence everywhere and in all situations.

And we are told to pray with thanksgiving for this makes you mindful of your blessings, awakens gratitude in the heart and thereby stimulates the flow of new blessings. In other words, prayer is the greatest process for reconditioning your mind. It flushes out mistaken ideas. It frees the mind from obsessions. It cancels negativism and restores confidence. It clears your mental powers for a better understanding of your problems and improves your ability to handle them.

So, if you are a worrier, try this: Concentrate all the energy you have on realizing that God is with you. Use the following affirmation every day: "God is with me. I am with Him. God is helping me now. God is in my mind helping me to think constructively. With God's help I can solve every problem and solve it right."

Say this every morning and at intervals during the day — and believe it. Continue this affirmation regularly and one of these days you will feel His presence and really feel it with such force that you will have new power and strength. So why worry when you can pray?

The Unquestioned Compulsion

Years ago there were many who disputed the novel idea of free and compulsory public education. The first truancy laws were opposed as infringements on liberty.

But as our children return this fall to schools that will mold their growing minds—does a single parent complain?

I believe in sound religious education, as well. The molding of the character should keep pace with the molding of the mind.

Naturally I never want my government to exercise compulsion in this sacred area. And my Church, while it offers a complete curriculum of religious training, does so on a free and voluntary basis.

But I'm a parent! And, though I find that example and encouragement usually suffice, I'm not above telling Johnny,

"YES, SON, YOU HAVE TO GO TO SUNDAY SCHOOL!"

As a child begins to see the importance Faith has in our lives and in the strength of our nation . . . you'll be surprised how quickly this becomes an unquestioned compulsion.

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and ready your Bible daily.

Keep In Trim

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Overweights Should Set New Life For Selves

All of you who have been overweight since childhood, tune in. You will no doubt have a strong feeling of alliance with the troubled young mother who wrote the letter in today's story.

Ida Jean Kain

"Your story concerning the 'roly-poly child' really hit home with me as I am a victim of just such a mother. When I began turning into a fatty as a girl of about 10 years, everyone told my mother it was just 'that certain age' and that in a few years I would outgrow it.

"Having a mother who loved to cook and bake, I had more than enough food and pastry to keep me growing heavier. I outgrew tha tcertain age, but not the fat. Because of too good and too much food, my poundage did not diminish. Instead I just kept getting fatter.

"WHEN I BECAME a woman and was in the working world, I asked several doctors to help me get started on a safe, sure reducing course. Each prescribed some sort of appetite depressant and all failed.

"Now as a mother of three children (all under six) I find myself still getting heavier and my spirits are doing likewise. My nerves are jangled...nothing seems to help. I am 5 feet 1 tall and weigh 192 pounds.

"How I wish I could encourage other mothers to watch their children's weight and have it checked while they are still young. I firmly believe that if my weight problem had been controlled at about the age of ten years I would not be such a hippopotamus today."

It is true that those who have been overweight since childhood do have a more difficult time reducing — because there is more habit-breaking to do. We thank this young woman for writing to alert other mothers.

The sad part of this letter is that it expressed no glimmer of hope for herself. She has convinced herself that circumstances beyond her control are keeping her forever overweight.

There is hope! Go to a good medical man. Talk with him frankly about your jangled nerves. Instead of an appetite depressant, which obviously does not work for you, the doctor may prescribe a mood lifter.

WAKE UP TO the value of an about - face in your thinking. Continuing to blame someone else, or circumstances, is a way of finding justification for not coming to grips with the problem. Stop resenting and you can be set free to act.

Unconsciously you have "counted yourself out." Get a new viewpoint. You are still a young woman. Say to yourself, "I am in charge now." Then take charge of your life. Get a new concept of yourself.

It is amazing how your mind will help you when you start believing that it is possible for you to reduce and be an attractive, healthy young woman, leading a happy life.

Your new motivation can be an awareness of the increased happiness you can bring to your family by seeing yourself in a new role.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. She wore a full-length gown of white satin designed with Basque bodice, scalloped bateau neckline and long, pointed sleeves. The skirt featured side fullness and a chapel train.

Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion was held in place by a band of pearls and sequins. She carried a cascade bouquet of white Fuji mums and daisy pompoms. Observing the traditions, the six-pence in her shoe was borrowed from a cousin, Mrs. Marvin Kinsey.

Miss Margaret Kinsey, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and Mrs. Ronald Mickel of Eau Claire, Wis., matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Karen Wright and Miss Sharon Farrell, sister of the bridegroom.

They wore identical street-length dresses of embroidered pale gold peau de soie. Square necklines and three-quarter sleeves featured the fitted bodices. Dior bows of mink brown and matching shoes completed their costumes.

They carried crescent bouquets of bronze Fuji mums and yellow daisy pompoms tied with satin streamers. For jewelry, they wore the gifts of the bride, jade and cultured pearl necklaces.

Michelle and Kristin Cairns, cousins of the bride, were flower girls. Dressed in white dotted Swiss, they wore gold velveteen vests. They carried Colonial bouquets of white carnations and yellow roses. Their gifts from the bride were gold chains featuring cultured pearl pendants.

David Farrell served as his brother's best man. Ushers were William Webb of Washington, James Swartz of Duquesne and Richard Mann of Wollaston, Mass.

The mother of the bride chose a gold brocade dress with matching jacket and gold and black accessories. The bridegroom's mother wore a blue brocade dress and jacket with blue and black accessories. White rosebud corsages complemented their attire.

A reception for 150 was held at the home of the bride's parents. The buffet table, decorated in gold and white, was centered with a four-tier cake, topped with a miniature bridal couple.

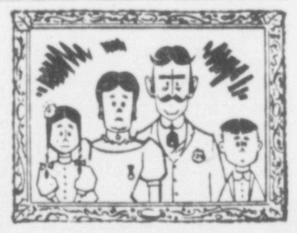

Aides were Mrs. Marvin Kinsey, Mrs. Ray Kinsey, Mrs. Robert Cairns, Mrs. Dolph Knott, Mrs. Clarence Wright, Mrs. Jay Kinsey and Mrs. Dale Kinsey.

Out-of-town guests were from Boston, Washington, Bucyrus, Warren, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Niles, Beaver Falls, Louisville and Chester.

For her honeymoon to Berkeley Springs, W. Va., the bride wore a red knit dress with black and gray accessories.

The bride is a 1957 graduate of East Liverpool High School. Her husband was graduated from George Mason High School in Falls Church in 1956.

Both were graduated last spring from the Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston, the bride with a degree in social science and the bridegroom, a general science degree. They are enrolled at the University of Virginia at Charlottsville, where they will reside. The bride will study medical technology and her husband will enter as a medical student.

Wellsville Handed 20-6 Defeat By Big Freedom Eleven

Beaver Local Ties Leetonia, 14-14, In Last 4 Minutes

Visitors Tally 3 TD's In 1st Half

By CHUCK CRONIN
Review Sports Writer

Getting into trouble early because of defensive woes, Wellsville High's Tigers bowed to strong Freedom, 20-6, in an opening season loss Friday night.

A crowd of 2,000 turned out at Nicholson Stadium to see the Tigers fall to Freedom's long-striking ground attack that produced three touchdowns.

A "move it—lose it" offensive attack and a ragged defense marked the stiff first game test for Coach Ken Woods' Orange and Black in their second battle in two years with the big Pennsylvania squad.

But there were a few bright spots in the long, drawn-out struggle, in particular a great running performance by Tiger fullback John Euill.

Euill, 170-pound senior, churned 115 yards in 17 carries to nearly overshadow the leaky defensive fortifications of the Tigers. He averaged 6.3 yards per carry.

Coach Alex (Kolakowski) Wheeler's Freedom squad, big and mobile, struck for three first half touchdowns to virtually settle the issue.

Wellsville recovered from the blitz long enough to ram across one score late in the game on quarterback Roger Ours' one-yard sneak.

The game, played in warm, 70-plus degree weather, found the action slowed by numerous penalties and an occasional fracas when tempers flared. The squads tied last year, 7-7.

The running of quarterback Ken Haglan and a pass attack that clicked often enough to keep the Wellsville defenders honest proved the difference this year.

Haglan raced 70 yards on a quarterback sneak in the first quarter and added another minutes later on a 21-yard pass from fullback Anthony Ciani for two touchdowns.

Ciani, exceptionally versatile for a fullback, pulled in a pass from quarterback Haglen and sped 54 yards up the middle for Freedom's third score.

Haglen, in having a hand in all of Freedom's scoring, rolled up 122 yards in only seven carries in breaking loose for several long runs.

Save for some poor tackling, the Tigers performed fairly well overall against one of the biggest squads they will see all season.

Wellsville's running game was probably the brightest part of the entire evening for the local fans. Euill bulled his way into the secondary for most of the team's yardage. Halfback Alvin Thompson and Mark Leyda broke loose momentarily for other gainers.

Wheeler, former Eastern Kentucky State College star, thought the better defense of his Freedom squad was the most vital factor in the opening victory.

"It was a real tough game, a hard - nosed game for a season opener," Wheeler declared. "I felt our line blocked well, and the backs hit the holes pretty good for the first game. Our entire line was outstanding," Wheeler added.

One of the toughest defenders on the Freedom front wall was big Dan Linta, 215-pound guard, who overcame a serious foot injury as a sophomore to develop into a strong tackler. He lost four toes when his foot became caught in a lawnmower, but has managed to perform ably with the handicap.

Euill and Ours carried most of Wellsville's attack, although the senior quarterback was contained on his end sweeps that were well known to opponents last season. Ours picked up 57 yards in 15 attempts.

The Tiger passing game failed to jell, with Ours completing one in six attempts. However, his receivers were always well covered.

Ours one-yard buck climaxed a drive of 49 yards for Wellsville's lone touchdown at 2:44 of the fourth quarter. His attempted end sweep for the conversion was halted short.

Wellsville tackle Alvin Jackson, 200-pound senior, was ejected in the third quarter, probably one of the longest periods on record (37 minutes.)

Possage Late Dash Nets Deadlock; Conrad Scores Twice For Bears

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

Beaver Local turned on its new lights for the first time Friday night but the situation on the field was mighty dark until halfback Francis Possage raced 38 yards with four minutes to go in the game to give the Beavers a 14-14 tie in its 1961 opener with Leetonia.

A crowd estimated at 1,000 was on hand to witness the well-matched contest between two Columbiana County rivals.

After Possage scored, the 135-pound speedster added the all-important two-point conversion to provide the deadlock. He had to take a wobbly pitchout from quarterback Mike Klembara but streaked into the corner of the end zone for the two points.

COACH Jack O'Rourke's team drew first blood by pushing across a touchdown midway through the first quarter. Carl Hoppel accounted for the six-pointer from five yards out after he and his teammates had driven 78 yards.

What made things so bleak for the Beavers was a fine young junior halfback named Paul Conrad.

An all-county choice last year as a sophomore, Conrad put in an early bid by scoring both of his team's touchdowns and having a third one called back.

Coach Ike Farrah's boys put all their scoring into the second quarter. Halfway through the second period, Conrad tied the game when he took a handoff on a reverse, turned on the steam and raced 78 yards down the sideline.

FULLBACK Joe Gallo, who brought the foot back into football, added his first of two placement conversions to put Leetonia in front, 7-6.

Leetonia's second touchdown was set up by Conrad. Then the shifty halfback took the ball over from one-yard out after Gallo had bulled his way for a first down to the one-yard line. Gallo's placement was good and Leetonia took a 14-6 lead into the locker-room at halftime.

Neither team threatened in the third quarter, but on the third play of the fourth period Conrad took a short pass from quarterback Frank Guerrier and ran 75 yards to the end zone only to have the touchdown nullified because of a clipping penalty on the Beaver Local 25-yard line.

The penalty put Leetonia on the Beavers 40, but the Red and White stiffened and forced the visitors to punt.

Beaver Local took over on its own 25 and started a drive on the ground which netted three first downs to the Leetonia 38.

This set the stage for Possage to come on the scene and play the hero's role. Possage took the handoff from Klembara and started to his right. Finding the way blocked by white-shirted Leetonia defenders, Possage, behind some good blocking, reversed his field and sprinted into the end zone.

A key downfield block on the play was applied by end George Wilkinson.

LEETONIA held on to the ball and was satisfied to go for the tie. The Bears had to give up the ball with less than a minute remaining, but Beaver Local ran only two plays before the game ended.

The statistics were close as Beaver Local showed a 16-15 edge in first downs. O'Rourke had a gambling bunch of gridders last night. On three occasions, twice in their own territory, Beaver Local gambled on fourth down and made it.

One time was a fourth and 14 situation, but the Beavers executed a fake punt and the ancient "statue of liberty" play to make the yard markers.

Beaver Local showed 226 yards on the ground to Leetonia's 234.

The visitors outdistanced Beaver Local in total yardage by gaining 59 yards through the air to the Beavers' 14.

Defensively, the Beaver Local line turned in a fine job especially in the second half when the forward wall held Conrad and his mates to 46 yards on the ground and tossed the Bears for 25 yards in losses.

Outstanding on the front line were guard Dave Myers, a junior who is making another early bid to repeat on the All-County team; guards Dave Stacey and Gary Rambo, tackle Roger Walker and end Gary Berhar.

Hoppel was the busiest back for Beaver Local, with George Gaydos and Possage doing their share of the running.

Leetonia's attack was centered around Conrad, while Gallo took shots up the middle during the evening.

Beaver Local returns to action next Friday night at Chester while Leetonia travels to Rootstown.

McBride's Debut Success In 26-12 Win For Stanton

IRONDALE — Stanton Local made Don McBride's debut as head coach a success here Friday night with a 26-12 victory over Hopedale before an opening night crowd of some 800 fans.

McBride, who coached at Hopedale last season, watched his new Stanton Local team pull away from a 6-6 tie in the second quarter to register the victory.

Stanton scored the first time it got possession. Stan Wickham capped a 65-yard drive when he roared over from four yards out.

Hopedale came back in the second period to tie the game at 6-6 when Jay Beadling tallied on a five-yard sprint.

The Irons then went in front to stay late in the second quarter by marching 45 yards and having quarterback Bob Mills go over from the 5-yard line.

Following intermission, Stanton, given a break on a recovered fumble, only had to go 35 yards for its third touchdown scored by John Pearson from 6 yards way. Stanton's only conversion came when Wickham plunged over to push the home team in front 20-6.

Bob Perkins on a 3-yard punch across the goal tallied the final touchdown for the Ironmen after a drive of 60 yards.

Hopedale scored last when Beadling raced 52 yards to set up the touchdown for Jim Murdock from the 5-yard line.

Stanton travels to Mt. Pleasant next Saturday.

Parker May Fill Brother's Slot In Bucks' Line

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Al Parker, Dover sophomore, figures prominantly to take over the same slot that brother Jim held with the Ohio State football team.

Jim Parker is the former All-America guard at Ohio State, now with the professional Baltimore Colts.

Al has been impressive the last three days of Buckeye workouts. He is being used a linebacker on defense but also has been in the offensive unit as a guard.

Buckeye quarterbacks worked on passing Friday, at one point completing 14 in a row. Elyria's Bill Mrukowski and Massillon's Joe Sparma. Each connected on seven straight.

Potter Fans To Form Auto Caravan Tonight

East Liverpool fans driving to Niles for tonight's Potter-Niles McKinley football game can travel in a caravan if interested, Russell E. Hall, president of the Blue and White Nonpareil Club, announced.

Drivers can meet at the Westgate parking lot at 6 and blue and white crepe paper streamers will be furnished to decorate the autos, Hall said.

The Potter gridders were invited to a free movie this afternoon at the American Theater, since they were unable to attend following the football parade held by the club Thursday night.

Nip Cards, 3-2, As Dodgers Lose, 7-3

Reds Halt Slide, Regain Lead Of 2

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds, on the brink of falling out of first place in the National League pennant race, regained a two-game lead by beating St. Louis 3-2 in 10 innings Friday night when second place Los Angeles lost 7-3 at San Francisco.

Pittsburgh joined the Giants in helping out the Reds by chilling third-place Milwaukee 2-1, dropping the Braves seven games behind. The Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia 4-1.

Cincinnati, after losing four of seven, pulled back to .500 (10-10) since regaining first place Aug. 16, on Gus Bell's pinch single, a sacrifice and Eddie Kasko's single. They caught up with the Cards in the eighth when loser Ernie Broglio (9-11) gave up his first walk. An error and Frank Robinson's two-out, two-run double put the Reds back in the game. Jim Brosnan (9-3) was the winner in relief —his seventh in a row over the Cards.

The Dodgers' bid for a fifth straight victory didn't get past the first inning at San Francisco. The Giants stung Dodger ace Johnny Podres (18-5), who had won 10 in a row on the road, for four runs. Joey Amalfitano started it with a triple and came across on Jim Davenport's single. Willie Mays added a two-run homer. Orlando Cepeda socked his 39th home run and that was that.

Left-hander Mike McCormick (12-14), given extra help by Davenport's two-run homer in the second, was the winner as the Giants ended their losing skid at five, four at Los Angeles. The Dodgers had nine hits, as did the Giants, but only one was a homer, a two-run shot by Gil Hodges that completed their scoring in the sixth inning.

The Pirates managed only four hits but beat rookie Bob Hendley (5-4) with two runs in the fourth on two walks, Roberto Clemente's single and a doubleplay. Bob Friend (14-7) was the winner, getting Frank Bolling to hit into a force out with the bases loaded in the ninth. Milwaukee had eight hits, and scored in the sixth on a double by Ed Mathews and Hank Aaron's single.

11 Races Set At Waterford

Racing resumed today at Waterford Park after a four - day closing period following the Labor Day holiday card last Monday.

An impressive card of 11 races was set for this afternoon, with post time at 2.

Highlighting today's program is the Russet Purse, an allowance affair for older horses carrying a purse of $1,300, to be contested at a mile and 70 yards.

Devil Dare, racing in the blue and white silks of the Sam Mar stable, appears to have a slight edge in favoritism over R. W. Fitzgerald's Charlesgate. Bill Miller will ride the favorite, and Charles Clark will be aboard Charlesgate.

Others in the field include Nite of Suspense, Zoon, Hidden Mirth, Our Day, Dumar, Skyline, Dancing Roman and Rest Stop.

The secondary feature this afternoon is the September Purse, the eighth race for three-year-olds and upward vieing for $1,300, over six furlongs.

Raiders Drop Opener, 6-0

New Cumberland High School lost its season debut Friday night at Northwestern (Pa.), 6-0, in a defensive struggle.

Coach John Kuzio's Blue Raiders yielded the touchdown on Dunlap's two-yard buck which capped a 70-yard third quarter march by the winners.

New Cumberland's deepest penetration came on the final play of the game, when fullback Allen Pettit broke loose to the Northwestern 40 yard line on a fake kick play.

Fumbles marred the attacks of both squads. The Blue Raiders fumbled seven times, the Northwestern six. The winners led in first downs, 7-4.

Midland Fails To Contain Ellwood City In 37-20 Setback

Mantle Socks 52nd As Yanks Open Up 10-Game Bulge

Perkins And Trbovich Combine For Two TD's

By ANDY NUZZO

The Midland Leopards met defeat Friday night at the hands of the Ellwood City Wolverines before some 2,000 spectators at Midland Stadium.

A hard-charging ground attack, along with two spectacular pass plays, led the Wolverines to a 37-20 triumph.

Ellwood reeled off 233 yards on the ground and 167 in the air for 400 total yards.

The big gainers were senior halfback Wayne Cole, with 130 yards in 12 carries, and sophomore halfback Don Pratt, 76 yards in 12 carries.

The game started in spectacular fashion when Cole took a handoff from quarterback Bob Latiano on the first play from scrimmage and raced 56 yards for the opening TD of a terrific offensive battle.

Senior quarterback Steve Trbovich put Midland back in the game with a playoff pass to junior end Gary Perkins from 14 yards out. The play completed a 55-yard drive on five plays for Midland.

JUNIOR halfback Rich Lake set up the TD when he raced 33 yards around left end to the Ellwood City 15. Ken Eppley converted to give Midland a momentary 7-6 lead.

Ellwood City struck again with 48 seconds gone in the second quarter. Senior fullback Frank Tavern carried over from four yards out on the second play of the quarter. The big plays in the drive were 10 and 11-yard passes from Latiano to end Jim Ritorto. This time Cole ran for the extra point.

Midland came right back and went 54 yards in four plays. Trbovich hitting Lake with a TD pass from 25 yards out for the score. Eppley's PAT hit the right upright and bounced over to give Midland its last lead of the night, 14-13.

AFTER an exchange of punts, Ellwood City went 86 yards in five plays. The climax was a triple reverse pass from quarterback Bob Webster to Ritorto, who was all alone behind the Midland defense. The play covered 38 yards.

Pratt's run for the extra point failed and the half ended with Ellwood City leading, 19-14.

The winners took the second half kickoff and went 52 yards in six plays, the payoff being the same triple reverse pass play from Webster to Ritorto for 43 yards, who was again behind the Midland secondary. That play was the clincher as Midland could only manage one touchdown off the Ellwood defense in the second half.

MIDLAND'S last TD was another pass, Trbovich to Perkins, this one covering four yards and climaxing a 55-yard drive. It came with five minutes remaining in the third quarter.

Latiano streaked into the end zone from two yards out with 3:20 remaining in the fourth quarter for the fifth Ellwood TD. The last TD by the visitors started on the Ellwood 48-yard line. The drive took 13 plays, all on the ground. That ate up most of the time in the fourth quarter and killed any remaining Midland hopes.

Midland displayed a balanced attack, gaining 145 yards on the ground and 149 in the air. Trbovich hit on 11 of 22 passes and handled the Leopards well throughout the evening.

Junior fullback Earl Vaughn led the Leopards on the ground, collecting 109 yards in 11 carries.

Maris Hitless But 'M-Boys' Tie Record

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Roger Maris was hitless, but Mickey Mantle hit his 52nd home run of the season Friday night, giving the New York Yankee's M-twins a share of the two-man major league record of 107 homers set by Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig in 1927.

Mantle, tying his one season high (he also hit 52 in 1956), remained two games behind Ruth's record-60 pace of 1927, however. Maris, 0-for-3, leads the Babe's pace by six games.

The Yankees backed right-hander Bill Stafford (13-7) with 11 hits, one a two-run homer by Tony Kubek off Gary Bell (9-15), and now have walloped 213 home runs, just eight shy of the major league record. They also are a whomping 10 games ahead of second-place Detroit.

The still tumbling Tigers, checked on two hits by Tracy Stallard and reliever Mike Fornieles, lost their eighth in a row, 9-2 at Boston. Baltimore edged within two games of the Tigers with a 2-1 and 4-2 twi-night sweep over Washington. Kansas City whipped Minnesota 6-4.

Jim Pagliaroni batted in five runs for the Red Sox, two with a third inning double that beat Jim Bunning (17-11), and the other three with a homer. Fornieles (9-8) was the winner, and also hit his first major league homer. One of the Tiger hits was a home run by Dick Brown, off Stallard.

Whitey Herzog's single capped a two-run ninth for the Birds, who were shut out on three hits by loser Pete Burnside (1-8) until then in the first game, Herzog also singled in a two-run seventh as the Orioles broke up a 2-2 tie in the nightcap against Ed Houbaugh (6-9). Hoyt Wilhelm (9-7) won the first game in relief and Dick Hall (7-5) took the night cap with a four-hitter.

Minnie Minoso's two-run homer won it for the White Sox and winning reliever Billy Pierce (9-8). Jim Donohue (4-7) lost it.

East Palestine Gains First For New Coach

EAST PALESTINE — East Palestine's new head coach Ray Dempsey, showing a wide open brand of football with aerial and ground tactics, opened his first season here with the Bulldogs registering a 30-7 win over Canfield.

The Bulldogs condensed all of their scoring into the first three quarters as speedster Ron Doll and hard-running Bob Chaplow accounted for all four of East Palestine's touchdowns.

All the TD's were of the short variety and set up by the alert Palestine defenses.

Doll scored on runs of one and nine yards while Chaplow plunged over twice from one yard away.

One TD was set up on a recovered fumble by guard Walt Ashbridge which gave East Palestine the ball on the Canfield 25. Two others came on intercepted passes by Dave Seider and Dave Guy.

The final East Palestine touchdown came after a sustained march of 48 yards.

Canfield's lone tally was registered by Dove on a 37-yard pass play.

The Bulldogs scored twice in the first period and added one each in the second and third quarters.

Wertz Greets Trade With Mixed Emotions

By BOB HOOBING
Associated Press Sports Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Vic Wertz has greeted his trade to Detroit with mixed emotions and took the occasion to remind fans that ball players are only human.

The veteran first baseman was swapped by Boston to the Tigers Friday for an undisclosed amount of money and a younger player to be named later.

A member of five different American League squads, the 36-year-old slugger reflected Friday on his 15 years of major league experience:

"The toughest thing for a ball player is to take a 'riding' from the home fans. The customer expects us to play like machines, forgetting we're only human.

"There are two things in baseball.

"First, it's a game of inches. You can be a hero or a bum by the width of a fielder's glove.

"Second, a player is just as likely to have an aching jaw, stomach pains or have been up all night with the baby as a mailman or bank president. If we have a bad day the guy who paid for the seat is entitled to boo us — he purchased the privilege.

"But it's not easy to take when you pop up, strike out or hit into a double play. A player never minds the jeers on the road. But it can be agony in front of the home folks.

"A player has to learn to build up his own safety valve, trying to let his feelings escape without gesturing at the crowd or blowing his top.

"You must learn to take it all in stride, realize it's a job, then concentrate on changing those boos to cheers with a big hit or big play. And I've had plenty of cheers."

U.S. Netters Face Another 'Gloomy Day'

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — Another dark day for United States tennis dawns today with four foreigners in the semifinal round of the National Championships.

Roy Emerson of Australia meets Rafael Osuna of Mexico and Rod Laver of Australia tangles with Mike Sangster of England for the right to make the championship bracket.

Only once before in the long history of the Nations has an American failed to make the semifinals. That was in 1958.

The fnial four Americans were eliminated Friday. Top-seeded Laver took care of Donald Dell of Bethesda, Md., 6-4, 7-9, 6-3, 6-4. Emerson, ranked No. 3, whipped Ron Holmberg of Brooklyn, 6-4, 6-2, 7-5. Sangster, the No. 4 seed, trounced Jon Douglas of Santa Monica, Calif., 6-4, 7-5, 6-1. Osuna, unseeded, completed the shambles by downing Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., 6-8, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2.

Even in the women's division, things are desperate. Except for defending champion Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., it's an all foreign semifinal. Miss Hard meets Margaret Smith of Australia in one semi and British Wightman Cuppers Angela Mortimer and Ann Haydon play the other.

Miss Mortimer, the Wimbledon champion, eliminated Lesley Turner of Australia, 6-4, 6-4 and Miss Haydon, seeded No. 7, downed Jan Lehane of Australia, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 Friday.

4th Place Battle Features Waning Campaign In IL

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The battle for fourth place—the final playoff spot is the most exciting feature of the waning International League season.

Rochester moved to within one game of the coveted spot by defeating fourth-place Toronto, 5-4, Friday night, in the first of a four-game series.

Charleston dumped pennant-winning Columbus in both ends of a twi-night doubleheader, 2-0 and 3-2; Buffalo belted Syracuse, 11-6; Richmond and Jersey City split a pair. The Virginians captured the seven-inning opener, 4-2, but dropped the nightcap, 8-1.

Bob Veale gave up two hits and struck out 15 for Columbus in nine innings of the nightcap. Ageless Diomedes Olivo added five more whiffs in three frames, but lost on a squeeze bunt in the 12th. Veale boosted his league-leading strikeout total to 207. Charleston's Dean Stone gave up three hits in the first game for his 12th victory. Bob Tiefenauer won the afterpiece in relief.

NAACP Appeals To Grid Players On Picket Lines

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People wants Negroes on the Oakland Raiders football team to refuse to cross antisegregation picket lines tonight.

An NAACP official said the picket lines will be at the public school stadium, where the Raiders play the Houston Oilers in an American Football League game, to protest segregated seating.

Mrs. Hosea Evans, executive secretary of the Houston chapter of the NAACP, said she sent telegrams to four Raiders Friday night.

The telegrams asked them to "use your every influence" to bring pressure on the Oilers and get integrated seating at the pro football games, she said.

Mrs. Evans said the telegrams went to Charley Fuller, George Fleming, Hal Smith and Charley Hardy. There was no reply, she said.

A spokesman for the school district said it is a school board policy for seating in public school stadiums to be segregated.

Hill Holds Lead Despite Wall's Sensational 61

DENVER (AP) — The gallery is still talking about Art Wall's sensational 10-under-par 61, but the field is still chasing the first-day leader, young Dave Hill, in the third round of the 72-hole Denver Open Golf Tournament today.

Hill carried a five-stroke lead and a growing confidence into today's play at the 6,843-yard Meadow Hills course.

Bears Nip Steelers, 24-21; Browns Face Lions Tonight

By ROBERT MOORE
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Chicago Bears of the National Football League were certain of one thing today — they have a quarterback problem but, what a problem.

Coach George Halas has not one but two fine quarterbacks ready now for the approaching NFL season if Friday night's 24-21 exhibition triumph over the Pittsburgh Steelers is any indication.

First, Ed Brown, and then Billy Wade electrified 45,223 spectators in Chicago's Soldier Field with dazzling passes which ignited touchdown plays of 92, 90 and 75 yards.

The Bears took a 17-0 halftime lead in the 16th annual Armed Forces Benefit game. Pittsburgh romped for three fourth-period scores.

The league's only unbeaten, untied team, the world champion Philadelphia Eagles, and the Green Bay Packers, get in their final exhibition licks tonight.

The Eagles (3-0) face the St. Louis Cardinals (0-3) at Hershey, Pa. Green Bay (4-0) runs into the Washington Redskins (0-4) at Columbus, Ga.

In other contests tonight, Detroit (3-1) invades Cleveland (3-1) and San Francisco (2-2) clashes with the Dallas Cowboys (2-2) at Sacramento, Calif.

Rounding out the exhibition campaign are two games Sunday the Los Angeles Rams (1-2-1) going to Minnesota (0-4) and the New York Giants (2-1-1) tangling with Baltimore (2-2) at New Haven, Conn.

NOW, THEREFORE,

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF EAST LIVERPOOL, STATE OF OHIO:

Such note or notes shall be dated the date of issuance and shall be in the denominations as fixed by the Auditor and Mayor of the City of East Liverpool, and shall be numbered as determined by said Auditor and Mayor.

Said note or notes shall bear interest at the rate of not exceeding four per centum per annum until paid and the interest on said notes shall be payable semiannually. Said notes shall not be issued for a longer period of time than one year from date thereof, and shall be payable at the office of the Treasurer of the City of East Liverpool upon presentation and surrender of said notes as they respectively mature.

Said notes shall be due and payable as follows: One (1) year after dates of issuance thereof, provided that said notes may be paid prior to maturity at the option of the City.

and shall be deemed appropriated for the use for which it was borrowed and shall not be used for any other purpose.

SECTION 6. That the Director of Public Service be and he is hereby authorized and directed to issue voucher to the City Auditor for payments due under said contracts from said funds.

SECTION 7. For the payment of the principal and interest of said notes, the full faith, credit and revenue of the City of East Liverpool, be and they are hereby irrevocably pledged.

SECTION 8. Said notes shall be first offered to the Treasurer of said City in his official capacity as being in charge of the Bond payment fund and so many of the same as shall not be taken by said Treasurer shall be sold at private sale by the City Auditor, but for not less than par and accrued interest thereon (and the amount thereof necessary for the payment of interest prior to the maturity of said notes), shall be paid into the proper fund and used for the purpose aforesaid and for no other purpose. Any premium and accrued interest (and the amount necessary for the payment of interest prior to their maturity) shall be transferred to the Treasurer to be applied by him in the payment of principal and interest of said notes in the manner provided by law.

SECTION 9. The proceeds of the bonds to be issued and all unexpended balance remaining unpaid in the fund after the cost and expense of the purchase have been paid, shall be applied to the payment of said notes and interest thereof as the same shall become due and to no other purposes whatsoever, until all of said notes and said interest have been fully paid.

SECTION 10. That for the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the interest on the foregoing issue of notes, promptly when and as the same falls due and also to provide a fund sufficient to discharge the said notes at maturity, there shall be and is hereby levied on all the taxable property in said City of East Liverpool, in addition to all other taxes, a direct tax annually during the period for which said notes are to run, in an amount sufficient to provide funds to pay interest upon said notes as and when the same falls due and also to provide a fund for the discharge of the principal of said notes at maturity, which said tax shall not be less than the interest and sinking fund tax required by Section 11 of the Article XII of the Constitution.

Said tax shall be and is hereby ordered computed, certified, extended and levied upon the tax duplicate and collected by the same officers, in the same manner and at the same time taxes for general purposes for each of said years are certified, extended and collected. Said tax shall be placed before and in preference to all other items and for the full amount thereof. The funds derived from said tax levied hereby required shall be placed in a separate and distinct fund, which together with the interest collected on the same, shall be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the interest and principal of said notes when and as the same fall due.

SECTION 11. The City Auditor is hereby directed to forward a certified copy of this ordinance to the County Auditor.

SECTION 12. That this Ordinance is hereby declared by Council to be an emergency measure and shall be in force immediately upon passage. Said emergency lies in the fact that the present equipment is in a run down condition and is wholly inadequate to take care of the work for which it is intended and the services of the Garbage and Trash Removal Department are curtailed and is therefore necessary to protect the health, public peace and safety of the citizens of the City of East Liverpool.

PUZZLED

We, frankly, are puzzled at the fact that we didn't sell this fine three bedroom red brick home within a few days and we are seriously interested in finding out why.

The first unusual factor is that very few people have looked at it, although the price, is very fair. The ones who have seen it have said it is a wonderful buy, and three of them would have taken it if they could have arranged financing.

The only reason that we can attribute our luck to is that maybe our price is so low that folks don't realize how much we actually are offering for their dollar in this case.

It is well-located on a nice level lot in a good community, is only 7 years old and the price is only $14,500

Lions Inspect New Church

Lions Club members toured the new Trinity United Presbyterian Church on Maine Blvd. Friday afternoon following a luncheon at the Travelers Hotel.

David Beatty, vice president of the Potters Construction Co., general contractor for the new church, conducted the tour, showing the club members through the sanctuary and Sunday School section.

He explained the architect's intentions in design of the building, pointing out the design is new in this area, but has been used in Europe for years.

Constructed of pre-cast concrete beams and concrete block, the new church is nearing completion. It will replace the present church on E. 4th St.

Beatty was introduced by Jack Smith, second vice president who was acting program chairman.

A gift was presented Miss Joyce Massey, club pianist who is leaving for college, by Charles Herman, president. Herman also announced Miss Caroline Wilson will be the new pianist.

He announced a zone meeting will be held Wednesday night at Lisbon.

Widow Benefits Clarified By SSA

Widows 62 and over, who are collecting social security benefits based on their own work, did not get increases in their payments with the checks delivered this week, William J. McCauley, district manager of the Youngstown Social Security Office, pointed out today.

But some of the may find that they can get a small increase in their monthly payments by applying to their social security office.

The 10 per cent increase in widow's benefits, signed into the law by President Kennedy on June 30, is payable only to those widows 62 and over who are receiving benefits based on their husbands' work under social security, he said.

Under the social security law, a widow 62 or over who has worked under social security long enough to become insured is usually paid retirement benefits based on her own record of earnings.

She is paid the widow's benefits based on her husband's earnings only if those widow's benefits would be higher than her own retirement benefits.

Because of the 10 per cent increase in widow's benefits, McCauley said, a few women now find that the widow's benefits based on their husband's work are somewhat higher than their present benefits.

Any widow who believes she might qualify for higher benefits because of this change in the law can find out for sure by asking at her social security office.

Even FBI's Baffled Over Twins' Identity

TORRINGTON, Conn. (AP)—The Federal Bureau of Investigation won't risk a guess, so John Scott Buckler and James Thomas Buckler, 11-week-old twins, are as mixed up as ever.

Word came from Washington Friday that the FBI had looked at footprints made of the babies on the day of their birth, June 21, and decided they "are not legible enough to be of value for identification."

The confused parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Buckler, Torrington, have been wondering which son is which ever since the boys got scrambled weeks ago during a diaper change.

OSU Trustees Okay TV, Peace Corps Plan

PUT-IN-BAY, Ohio (AP)—Trustees of Ohio State University have ratified agreements for a campus-wide TV system and to select and train peace corps volunteers for service in India's Punjab state.

The trustees met Friday on Gibraltar Island. They said the agreement with Ohio Bell Telephone Co. provides for a multi-channel system for a closed-circuit TV network. It is expected to save faculty time and allow fuller use of classroom space.

Belafontes Have Girl

NEW YORK (AP)—Julie Belafonte, wife of singer Harry Belafonte, gave birth Friday to a baby girl in Mount Sinai Hospital. They have a son, David, 4.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Family Companionship Eases Start At School

Perhaps the average child who enters school this fall for the first time, and the child who returns to school, will have fewer problems and emotional tensions than they had during the summer. Yet for a good many children the early days and weeks of school will mean physical and emotional strain.

Dr. Garry Meyers

Beginning kindergarten, or first grade, some children who were overdependent on their mothers, some who had not had normal play experiences with other children of their own age, some who are in great dread of bullies, may not be happy at school.

Then there may be a few of these children who will feel overwhelmed among so many other children. A few other children may be overstimulated by the new experiences, even when they are happy ones.

THERE'S THE child at any grade-level who may find it hard to be with so many strange children or a teacher he never had before.

For the school child of any age or grade-level who has moved with his family to a new community and school district, consider all the new experiences he may have, some easy and exciting, some hard and trying for him to adapt to.

It's in the early days and weeks of school that almost any school child may especially need a home where he feels understood and secure.

Most parents would be wise to plan their program, during the early days and weeks of school, so that they are able to be home on most evenings and have a minimum of pressures and responsibilities.

It would be wonderful if these parents might be especially cheerful, calm and relaxed during these early school days. Whereas abundant family companionship and enjoyments are always desirable, they are especially precious during this period.

IN THE IDEAL home atmosphere the school child with any kind of worries is inclined to talk about them. Also he is the more ready to relate at home his happy experiences and successes and thus build good school morale.

Let us remember that the child tends to take his home along with him to school and to bring his school along with him to his home. More than we realize we parents can provide a favorable home climate for him.

Mrs. G. Still Will Be Molly To Fans

"Listen, darling, I'm not so happy about being opposite Perry Como. He's a nice boy, and I like to watch him myself. I'm just hoping there'll be enough for everybody," says a slightly disturbed Gertrude Berg.

Hal Humphrey

Gertrude, who is better known to millions of fans as Molly Goldberg, is talking about the time slot where CBS is putting her new TV show, "Mrs. G. Goes to College." It will be Wednesdy nights at 9:30 p.m. against the second half of Como's hour on NBC.

"Is the second half of Perry Como his good half?" asks Gertrude, then quickly replies to her own question, "I wouldn't know—maybe both halves are good."

"NOBODY WANTED the Goldbergs on TV. Imagine! After 17 years on radio, I couldn't sell it to TV. Finally I went to William Paley himself at CBS, and he put us on," recalls Gertrude.

"Why did the others turn you down?" I ask.

"They're experts, that's why. Who can answer such a question?"

The Goldbergs went on TV in 1949 and remained five years, except for a one-season interruption—an uncalled-for and tragic one. Philip Loeb, who had played Jake Goldberg for years, was listed in a publication purporting to expose Communists and fellow travelers in the entertainment business.

Loeb denied the charge but got no hearing along Madison Ave. As a result of his blacklisting, "The Goldbergs" couldn't find a sponsor. Gertrude reluctantly ("he was no Communist") let Loeb go but continued to pay his salary for the remaining two years of his contract. It cost her $80,000. Loeb wound up committing suicide.

LATER ON, "The Goldbergs" suffered from Madison Ave.'s jitters over so-called dialect shows. Agencies wanted (and still do) everyone to be Caucasian, nondenominational and young.

"I don't consider 'The Goldbergs' a dialect show," says Gertrude. "It was a show about a woman with a little accent. Ours was never a show that made jokes about people. The humor came from the love and warmth of the characters. Molly was never a joke, darling."

Sarah Green will be no different, either, except that she's a widow. Sir Cedric Hardwicke plays an exchange professor at the college where Sarah enrolls to resume her education. Gertrude and Sir Cedric are just out of the successful three-and-half-year run of "A Majority of One," the play now being made into a movie.

"I CHOSE CEDRIC for the TV series because our chemistry was good for the play, so why not this?" Gertrude says.

Rosalind Russell is playing the Mrs. Jacoby of "A Majority of One" for the movie version, and many of Gertrude's fans were ready to form a posse and lynch whoever made that decision.

"Listen, I was disappointed for 24 hours only," says Gertrude, philosophically. "What hurt most was being promised the movie role and then finding out I didn't have it by reading the New York Times. This is not nice, darling."

Most of the troubles Gertrude Berg has are buried under her work. When she isn't playing Sarah Green before the cameras, she's going over the scripts to make sure Sarah isn't saying something that would offend Molly Goldberg.

"Sure, I take the pencil home weekends," Gertrude admits. "We have different sets of writers, all good, mind you, but they may not always have the right words. It's got to be one piece of fabric."

She might have added: "All Molly, regardless!"

THE TRUTH ABOUT CAESAREAN BIRTHS

Too many babies are delivered by this method unnecessarily, says this obstetrical authority

By Col. H. L. RIVA, M. C.
Chief of Obstetrics and Gynecology,
Walter Reed General Hospital, Washington, D. C.

as told to Theodore Irwin

One night last November, Mrs. John F. Kennedy was rushed by ambulance to Georgetown University Hospital. Less than two hours later, word flashed around the world that the wife of the President-elect had given birth to a son via Caesarean section. Millions of American wives facing childbirth have wondered: how safe is Caesarean delivery and when is it really necessary? For authoritative answers, FAMILY WEEKLY invited Dr. Humbert L. Riva, an obstetrician, to present his views.

OF THE MORE THAN 4,000,000 children born each year in the U. S. under the management of physicians, 3 to 5 percent (perhaps 200,000) are delivered by Caesarean section. In some private hospitals, as many as one out of five to 10 births are Caesareans.

Is childbirth by Caesarean becoming a fad? From our experience at Walter Reed General Hospital, where an average of 40 babies are born each week to Army wives, we believe that virtually half of the repeat Caesarean sections performed in the past have been unnecessary!

Many women who express interest in this technique fear labor and expect that surgery will solve their problem quickly and conveniently. Other women—timorous young wives especially—want to be sure they will receive enough attention; at a Caesarean, they reason, a doctor will be present throughout the procedure.

Another factor responsible for the trend is the busy physician. For him a Caesarean section—"childbirth by appointment"—is often a time-saving procedure when compared with standing by for a regular delivery.

Most doctors have been trained to believe that if a woman previously had a baby through surgery, her next child should also be delivered this way. The dictum is no longer true, as studies at Walter Reed have shown.

Just what is a Caesarean section? Briefly, it involves cutting through the walls of the abdomen and uterus to remove the child from the womb. A Caesarean section may be done before labor has started or at some time during its course.

Most women eager to take this "short cut" to avoid travail are blithely unaware of the drawbacks. First, a Caesarean mother loses three or four times as much blood as in a normal delivery. The chances of complications growing out of a transfusion are about the same as they are in acute appendicitis. Moreover, since a Caesarean requires more anesthesia, the mother is exposed to further potential jeopardy.

Besides, recovery is more difficult. In addition to the usual convalescence at home, the Caesarean mother has to go through the healing process of an abdominal incision. She has to have help longer and pay more visits to her doctor.

Any such operation means greater possibilities of intestinal obstructions as well as blood clots. A scar on the womb automatically makes the woman a potentially complicated case from that time on. The "repeat" Caesarean patient becomes vulnerable to rupture or hernia later, which would call for another operation. And despite antibiotics, the danger of infection is always present.

THE BABY, TOO, does not get all the benefit it should. There is no sure way to estimate the exact age of the unborn; to be on the "safe" side for the mother, a doctor may operate too soon, bringing forth a premature baby. Such a child has less chance of survival, and the death rate is higher than for others. Those who survive the first few hours are vulnerable to certain diseases.

So a Caesarean section, which to a woman may appear to be an easy and convenient way of having her baby, can lead to unforeseen tragedy. Undeniably, under certain circumstances, a Caesarean may become imperative. The greatest number of these cases occur when the mother is too small in proportion to the size of the baby to permit safe delivery by the normal process.

Nevertheless, we maintain that in many cases where Caesarean delivery seems to be indicated before labor, it may not necessarily be mandatory. We have tried natural birth even for a woman who has had as many as three previous Caesareans if she shows no present signs of abnormality. With modern surgical techniques in a well-staffed hospital, an operation can be performed quickly after this trial of labor, if required.

IN A STUDY we undertook, women with previous Caesareans were asked to enter the hospital approximately a week before their expected delivery date. When we examined them in labor prior to surgery, we were amazed to find that in many instances the woman's body was preparing itself for a normal delivery. As a result, of 214 women who had had Caesareans before, three out of four were delivered normally under our supervision—and without a single maternal or fetal death.

By permitting trial labor whenever possible, Walter Reed General Hospital has cut the Caesarean-section rate in half—from 2.9 percent to 1.5 percent of births—and we are keeping it at this low rate today, compared with about 5 percent in many big-city hospitals.

To women concerned about their forthcoming confinement: if your doctor suggests that you undergo a Caesarean section for the first time, remember that the standards of the Joint Commission for Accreditation of Hospitals require consultation with at least one other specialist in obstetrics before this operation may be performed. This is the rule in all first-class hospitals. After all, no one has yet been able to improve on the physiological mechanisms of the human body!

Lyndon Johnson's Two Loves: Family and Politics

The Vice President likes a rousing battle on Capitol Hill almost as much as pampering and perplexing his wife and two daughters

offered to coach the group. Word spread swiftly throughout the neighborhood, and soon Thomas got permission for his teams to use a nearby public park.

Having observed first, then shared in Thomas' activities, I joined with him in calling a meeting of parents and interested citizens. Out of this meeting bloomed the Mighty Mite Football League, Inc., of Springfield. Voluntary contributions support the program, and in 1960 the organization raised $3,000 to pay 20 part-time coaches, all of whom were college football players or physical-education majors.

Realizing that precautions must be taken to make the program safe for boys in the first to sixth grades, Thomas established strict rules. The playing field, for example, measures 40 by 60 yards. There are no goal posts. Each team is permitted four downs to gain six yards.

Play starts from midfield, eliminating the kickoff and runback, which we considered dangerous. For the same reason, punting is not permitted. This doesn't spoil the game for the kids because they're so evenly matched and have a bagful of game-busting tricks from passing to laterals to handoffs. Every boy in the league must have at least a helmet and shoulder pads as well as soft-soled shoes.

At registration, the players are divided into three categories: first and second graders; third and fourth graders; fifth and sixth graders. The groups are not permitted to play against each other. There is a division, too, of each group into squads of about 20 boys, and here the weight factor is considered. A qualified coach is assigned to each squad.

Only after three weeks of practice are the boys permitted to engage in intrasquad games, with professional officials. We require that every boy be allowed to play in each game. Fifth and sixth graders play eight-minute quarters; younger boys, six-minute quarters.

WHILE PARENTS are expected to provide shoulder pads, helmet, and shoes, the league supplies this equipment when necessary. It also provides jerseys for all participants—400!

Because of the emphasis on safety, there has been only one injury reported in four seasons, and this occurred when a boy tripped on his own shoelace, fell, and fractured a finger.

I prefer games that can be played outdoors since I believe the most rugged bodies are developed this way. I realize, however, that in order to accomplish this we must hurdle various obstacles. Such a program cannot be carried out now by our school systems because of the shortage of proper personnel and facilities. When these are lacking, as in Springfield's case, the program must be carried out by an adult nonprofit organization.

To delay offering a boy the opportunity to enjoy competitive athletics until he is in high school is a mistake. We must start when his body is in its early development.

It is the natural instinct of male children to show off their physical prowess. With such natural inclinations, it seems obvious that contact sports must begin early. Where else but in elementary school?

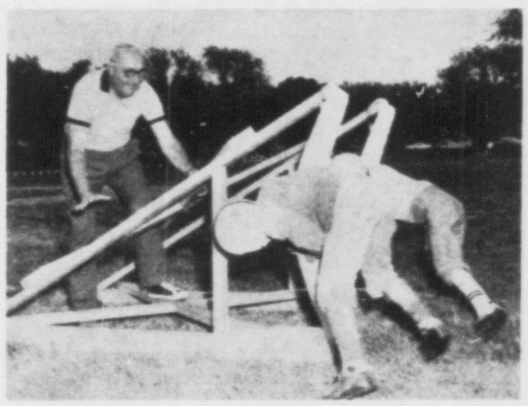

You need only look about you as football practice starts for high-school and college teams to see vacant lots and back yards filled with boys playing football. Such unorganized activity creates a fearful hazard.

Some of the participants have protective gear; most have none. Children as young as 6 and 7 may be competing against boys 10 to 14. Rarely is there any adult supervision. Since these children are going to play football anyway, it is better that they do it under adult guidance.

FOOTBALL is admittedly rough but is not, comparatively speaking, a dangerous game. The American Football Coaches Association's committee on injuries and fatalities listed 12 deaths resulting from football in 1960, 10 in high school and one each in college and professional competition.

The National Safety Council's 1960 edition of "Accident Facts" shows that, through the 12th grade, the percentage of injuries attributed to football was 9.9. Compare this with the 9.3 percent injured in auditorium and classroom accidents, or the 10.4 percent injured in unorganized activities on school property.

I feel that a football program such as that devised by Mighty Mite, Inc., is one that will give every boy an opportunity to play under the direction of skilled leaders, with maximum safety. The value of sportsmanship is stressed at all times, so a boy may learn to give and take, to win and lose.

A former college player himself, Dr. Lowe coaches two eager sixth-graders in the fundamentals of blocking.

Furthermore, this program plays a supporting role in youth guidance, teaching discipline and responsibility.

President Kennedy has pledged his administration to a program that will inspire and promote greater physical fitness. "We don't want in the United States a nation of spectators," he has said. "We want a nation of participants in the vigorous life."

This, I believe, is a strong endorsement of our approach: a parent-supported, professionally supervised athletic program to give preadolescent boys the opportunity to develop strong bodies capable of carrying them over the tough hurdles they will encounter as men.

In the early afternoon of Sunday, Aug. 27, 1908, an elderly gentleman mounted a horse and rode through Johnson City, Texas. He hailed his neighbors with the greeting, "This morning a United States Senator was born—my grandson."

The grandson, Lyndon Baines Johnson, not only fulfilled the prophecy of Samuel Ealy Johnson, Sr., his grandfather, but went beyond it to become the youngest majority leader in the history of the United States Senate and last year was elected Vice President of the United States.

On the snowy day he was inaugurated as Vice President, he and his wife Lady Bird looked out into the sea of faces and felt the threads of their lives coming together in a single fabric.

Mrs. Johnson told me, "Somewhere in the crowd was Lyndon's first-grade teacher, Mrs. Loney, known as 'Miss Katie,' and Professor H. M. Green, who taught him government at Southwest State Teachers' College in San Marcos, Texas. Friends were there, too, from the days when he got his first taste of prominence as the 27-year-old National Youth Administrator for Texas—even Bishop Arthur McKinstry, who married us on Nov. 17, 1934, in St. Marks' Chapel, San Antonio."

To know the Vice President, we must see him with Lady Bird, his beguiling and intelligent wife, and with 17-year-old Lynda Bird and 14-year-old Lucy Baines, his effervescent daughters. We must see him, too, both as the man he is and as the boy and young man he was.

As effervescent as his daughters, he'll come home with an urgent, "Where's Mrs. Johnson? I want to kiss Mrs. Johnson." Or, "Where are my little daughters?" Impetuous, he has schooled Lady Bird to expect the unexpected and to act impromptu when he calls at the 11th hour to say, "I'm bringing six guests for dinner."

Welding an LBJ Team

His wish commands the Johnson household. It has been this way ever since the couple met at the home of Mrs. Gene Lasseter, a mutual friend, and Lyndon Johnson pursued his "Bird," as he calls her, in a whirlwind courtship. When she first demurred because of his haste, he protested, "Then you don't love me." He made her prove that she did. That very day they stood at the altar.

In the early days of their marriage, he instructed his wife to learn all the counties in his congressional district and the names of as many constituents as she could. A reliable weather vane of possible reactions to his ideas, she has also worked on his speeches, answered the phone in the middle of the night to hear the woes of an anxious constituent, and taken dictation at two in the morning. As Mrs. A. T. Thomas, Jr., her cousin, puts it: "Lyndon always had drive and endless ambition. Lady Bird had the ability to accomplish what he wanted. He intensified her own drive and ambition."

With his "little daughters," as he calls them, he is both an affectionate companion and a busy, preoccupied father who inspires them to call him "sir." Just three days before his inauguration, for instance, he took the time to take Lynda Bird to New York to buy her a suit for the ceremony after she ripped the one she had planned to use.

Johnson is interested in every detail about the girls' appearance. He himself will order 14 suits at a time from his tailor. His girls, too, must have the best of everything and as much as they like. Johnson wears contact lenses; Lynda must have them, too. Since his heart attack, he has counted calories. His girls should do the same. He even offered them $30 each to lose weight.

Johnson is what might be termed a "natural politician." He is a great handshaker, not only because it's good politics but because he genuinely likes people.

When he toured Asia, for example, he refused to insulate himself in an air-conditioned limousine. He also made it his business to have roadside chats with bystanders. "I wanted to press palms and feel the flesh," he explained.

In Karachi, Pakistan, the Vice President acted in typically human fashion when a reporter with the Johnson party received news that his 18-year-old son had been killed in an automobile accident. Lady Bird was visiting a hospital when the news came, and the Vice President, who usually relies upon her in such matters, had to act alone. Immediately upon receiving the news, he started a collection for a fund in the dead boy's memory. Then, through the American ambassador, Johnson located a Karachi boy of the same age who had lost his leg and used the memorial fund to outfit this boy with a new limb.

In an Indian village, the Vice President gave the natives a lesson in progress. Seeing a man hauling water out of a well with a rope, he stepped forward and pulled the bucket up himself. "The reason I did this," he told the crowd, "is that 40 years ago in Texas we used to do just that. We used to burn our hands with the rope. Today it is different. We brought electrification to our farms, and our hands don't have to burn. You can have this kind of future, too. That is why I'm telling you about it." And as the interpreter spelled out the Vice President's words, the crowd showed that it understood.

The Vice President is a man who can not only give advice but take it—and improve on it. When he suffered a heart attack and was a patient at the Bethesda Naval Hospital, he followed doctors' orders and even went a step further. When the doctors limited his intake of calories to 1,500, he decided on 1,200. When they wanted him to reduce from 200 to 180 pounds, he set his goal at 170.

A chain smoker before the attack, he had pleaded in an ambulance rushing him to the hospital: "Take away my seat in the Senate, do anything, but don't take cigarettes away from me." Yet when he faced the reality of the heart attack, he stopped smoking and kept a package of cigarettes at his bedside table just to test himself. He hasn't smoked since.

Johnson's working day has often merged into a working night. Striving for the best, he says that he has often had "to settle for the possible." Yet he has always aimed to make the possible the best. To do so, he has driven himself and others hard, taking time for few small pleasures.

He finds pleasure in things mechanical, as befits the chairman of the President's Advisory Council on Outer Space. At the LBJ Ranch, for instance, he has had a loudspeaker installed, with music piped into every room. He indulges a hi-fi enthusiasm, showing a greater interest in the mechanism than the music.

Johnson loves good conversation, and his own abounds in humor and colloquial expressions as Texan as his drawl or his cowboy hat. He has an irrepressible sense of humor and, as Lynda Bird says, "The papers print Daddy's jokes as facts."

Even during his hospitalization, his humor came through. When Lady Bird told him that a tailor who was making two suits for him wanted to know what to do about them, he replied, "Tell him to go ahead with the blue suit. We can use it no matter what happens."

From ABC's to Silver Star

In Johnson City, where the Vice President was born to a family of politicians, government administrators, teachers, and ministers, he showed early that his grandfather's prediction might come true. Before he was two, he learned the alphabet from ABC blocks. At three, he could recite not only Mother Goose rhymes but poems by Tennyson. At four, he could read. When his mother read the Bible, history, and mythology to him, he showed what was to be his lifelong passion for the facts. "Is it true? Did it really happen?" he would ask.

School, however, had no allure for him. When his mother discovered that he had not prepared his lessons, she would place the textbook on the breakfast table. Then she and her husband would talk about the subject. Listening to them, young Lyndon had no choice but to learn. Then, following him to the front gate, his mother would continue this bootleg instruction by chatting about history, geography, and algebra. So Lyndon would arrive at school—prepared.

When high school was over, however, he ran away from home to escape his parents' insistence that he go to college. After his funds ran out, he returned to Johnson City to take a job in a road gang. His parents, knowing that he shoveled gravel and pushed a wheelbarrow on the highway, dreamed he'd "outgrow" his rebellion. After several months of hard work in the blazing sun, he did. If college was the way to become someone, then he would go to college, he decided.

There was no money for tuition. Borrowing $75 on his own note to get started at Southwest State Teachers' College, he continued to support himself there as school janitor and secretary to the college president. Yet at the same time he studied intensively, became a leader in campus politics and debate, and rehearsed his rhetoric as he swept. Within

Play Football?

"Yes!" says this doctor who helped put elementary pupils on the gridiron in a successful, carefully supervised program in Springfield, Mo.

By H. A. LOWE, M.D.

A practicing surgeon, Dr. Lowe also has taken an active interest in Springfield (Mo.) municipal affairs, serving as a member of the commission which wrote the city's home-rule charter. At St. Louis University, he was a starting end on the 1906 football team, which has been credited with developing the forward pass. His recreational sports include fishing and golf.

THE ONLY THING wrong with organized football for boys in the elementary grades is that there isn't enough of it!

During a half-century as a physician—a career made possible by athletics—I have become increasingly alarmed at the way we neglect the physical fitness of youth. Our young people receive splendid scholastic opportunities, but who wants to be a member of a race of mental giants and physical pygmies?

I recognize that football is a controversial subject, and there probably are authorities who will dispute my contentions. But more often than not, I suspect, their arguments against elementary-grade competition are based on the number of injuries suffered in sand-lot games,which I deplore just as vigorously as any other physican.

A football program that is carefully organized, tailored to the physical capacities of preadolescents, and conducted under trained supervision can succeed. It also can be the means of developing strong bodies for the boys of today so that they may be better equipped to direct the nation's destiny in the years ahead.

I know, for I have seen such a program in action.

It originated in Springfield, Mo., four years ago when Bill Thomas, a former football captain at the University of Arkansas and now a schoolteacher, saw a group of assorted youngsters playing a game on a vacant lot. The danger to the younger, lighter children appalled Thomas, and he

Wading through the mail is a lot easier when the Vice President's older daughter Lynda Bird lends a helping hand.

3½ years, he had his degree.

For a year after graduation he taught public speaking in a Houston high school. Then he went to Washington as secretary to Texas Congressman Richard M. Kleberg, and three years later he met Lady Bird Taylor.

Together they have weathered many crises—there was the childlessness of their first 10 years of marriage, his Navy service that earned him a Silver Star for gallantry (which Gen. Douglas MacArthur bestowed on him), and later his miraculous survival after the crash landing of a Flying Fortress in Australia.

There were also illnesses—his kidney infection and his heart attack. There were the moments of political decision to be made and acted upon.

When, for instance, he went to Los Angeles to vie for the 1960 Democratic presidential nomination, he knew that he had started his campaign too late and that his chances were not good. "When he didn't get it," says Diana Tschursin, his niece who was working with the Johnson delegation, "it was not a big blow. Nobody shed a tear.

A Turning Point

"The next day, however, when it was put to him that he was needed for the second spot, we all felt that, in accepting it, he was giving up too much. There was something noble about the way he accepted. That's when we did cry. For we felt as though he was stepping out of the driver's seat he had occupied as majority leader to take off his coat and pick up the broom."

Lady Bird, practical and down to earth, assesses her family's current situation coolly. "I think," she told me, "that the girls can get much good out of this strange milieu they're in. They can learn from Lyndon's friends and colleagues and the many people they meet. Yet we all know that the spotlight is temporary and that the time will come when we must return to Texas, where our roots are."

Long before that time comes, however, there are the years of the Vice Presidency—the crowded years of doing. Just before the election, I quoted Lady Bird Johnson in FAMILY WEEKLY (Oct. 23, 1960) as saying, "I know he is going to want to make the office of Vice President just as dynamic as is consonant with the Constitution. We've been studying the Constitution very carefully."

Expanded Role

The Constitution specifies nothing more for the Vice President than that he should preside over the Senate and succeed to the Presidency if the Chief Executive dies. Richard M. Nixon, Johnson's predecessor, expanded the functions of the office beyond that of any of the 35 Vice Presidents before him.

Johnson and Nixon are called by some "the smartest politicians in their respective parties," and today Lyndon carries on the new tradition of a more meaningful Vice Presidency.

Like Nixon before him, Johnson represents the President on missions abroad. Says George E. Reedy, Jr., assistant to the Vice President: "Vice President Johnson's trip to Asia was an actual working trip, during which he had specific authority to negotiate. As a result of that trip, we increased our assistance to Vietnam and Thailand in return for assurances from their chiefs of state that they would take certain actions favorable to us."

Thus the new Vice Presidency is expanded even further under Johnson. If Samuel Ealy Johnson, Sr., were alive today, he could tell his Texas neighbors that his grandson, in the role of a vigorous Vice President, is making friends for America throughout the world.

- ¼ cup chopped parsley
- ¼ teaspoon salt

Flaky Cheese-Filled Rolls

TO PREPARE: 15 MIN. TO BAKE: 10 MIN.

- 1 pkg. refrigerated fan-tan rolls
- 2 slices (about 2 oz.) process Cheddar cheese, cut in 1½-in. squares
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- ¼ teaspoon paprika
- 1/16 teaspoon ground cinnamon
- Few grains cayenne pepper

1. Remove roll dough from package and divide into 36 rounds, each round consisting of 2 layers of dough. Place a square of cheese on half the rounds.

2. Blend together remaining ingredients and spread a thin coating of the mixture over cheese. Cover with remaining rounds of dough and press edges together lightly to seal in the filling.

3. Transfer to ungreased baking sheet.

4. Bake at 400°F about 10 min., or until rolls are lightly browned. Serve warm. 1½ dozen rolls

Raspberry Ribbon Cake

TO PREPARE: 30 MIN.

(allow time for baking and cooling cake and for chilling gelatin-topped layers)

- 1 pkg. lemon-flavored, butter-type layer-cake mix
- 1 3-oz. pkg. raspberry-flavored gelatin
- ¾ cup hot water
- ½ cup orange juice
- 1 8¾-oz. can crushed pineapple, drained; reserve ¼ cup sirup
- ½ cup chopped toasted almonds
- 1 cup chilled whipping cream
- ¼ cup sifted confectioners' sugar

1. Prepare and bake cake layers according to package directions; set aside to cool.

2. To prepare gelatin topping, add hot water to gelatin in a bowl and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Stir in orange juice and reserved pineapple sirup. Chill over ice and water, stirring frequently, or chill in refrigerator, stirring occasionally, until mixture is slightly thicker than consistency of thick, unbeaten egg white. Blend in drained pineapple and almonds. Set aside.

3. Meanwhile, place 2-in. strips of waxed paper across bottoms of 2 layer-cake pans and extending over edges. Replace the cooled cake layers by placing one layer in pan upside down and the other layer in second pan right side up. (This will give a better looking cake when gelatin-topped layers are put together.)

4. Spoon thickened gelatin mixture evenly over the cake layers. Chill in refrigerator until gelatin is firm. Remove from refrigerator and, grasping extended ends of waxed paper, lift cake layers out of pans.

5. Using a chilled bowl and beater, whip cream until soft peaks are formed, beating in confectioners' sugar with final few strokes.

6. Place one layer of cake, gelatin side up, on serving plate. Spread ½ cup of the whipped cream evenly over gelatin topping. Place second layer, gelatin side up, over bottom layer. Using remaining whipped cream, frost sides of cake. Refrigerate until serving time.

Thin milk just won't do. It takes thick-as-cream PET for this juicy, onion-flecked meat loaf—as easy as 1-2-3.

The barber looked with sadness upon the graying head of a good customer. "You're going to be all gray before you're 40," he said, "but I may have an answer." He took a bottle from the shelf. "I don't know what's causing your hair to turn gray, but some of this every day is sure to stop it."

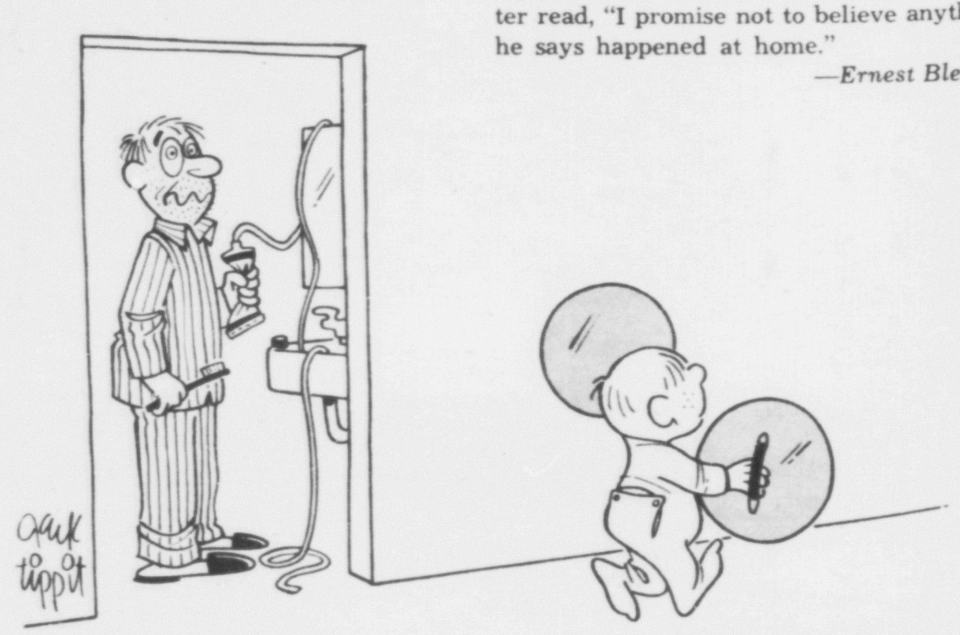

"That's fine," said the customer sadly, "but how do I get my wife to drink it?"

The first homework the little third-grader received for the new term was an essay, "What My Family Did During the Summer."

When he returned from the classroom the following afternoon, his mother asked him how his teacher had liked his work. "I don't know," he said, "she just gave me a letter for you."

The mother opened the letter. "If you promise not to believe anything your child says about the current school year," the letter read, "I promise not to believe anything he says happened at home."

Closing the Chapter

Tomorrow's the last of vacation,
The day all our traveling ends,
And we, with certain elation,
Get back to our numerous friends.

Yes, back to our friends who weren't touring
(Too busy, too tired,
or too tight to);
To friends—and the thought is alluring—
At least we no longer need write to!

The youngster critically inspected his new baby brother. "Where did he come from," he asked after a time.

"He came from heaven," his mother said.

"Gee," the youngster said, "they sure cut hair close there, don't they?"

The fisherman stood nervously as the judge studied the arrest sheet. "It says here," the judge noted, "that you caught 10 bass over the limit, all well above seven pounds. How do you plead?"

"Guilty," said the fisherman.

"One hundred dollars and costs," the judge snapped. "Now I hope that teaches you a lesson."

"Yes, your honor," the fisherman said. "And now, if you please, I'd like several copies of the court record to show my friends."

head for the exclusive stores. This depleted my meager income in a hurry!

On the other hand, it was then that the self-discipline I had learned through her started to pay off. Once I realized what was happening, I had no difficulty putting myself on a strict budget.

What troubled me most about Mother's strictness was her attitude on dating. At the time, I thought it was terribly unfair that I wasn't allowed to go out as my classmates did. Often I was dejected because when I returned to school after a weekend of sitting at home, the other girls would all be talking about the dates they had had. I had no similar experiences to share.

For a while I was invited to parties or asked for a date. Always I had to say I was sorry, but I couldn't go. It wasn't long before I was no longer asked. They didn't understand that I simply wasn't permitted to go out. My friends thought I didn't want to! But I did—very much.

CONSEQUENTLY, my childhood was rather lonely. Mother didn't have much time for us because till she married executive Alfred Steele, she had to work to support us, and her thoroughness in preparing for a movie role left her little free time. She was sorry about it, and so were we, but we understood the necessity for it. In fact, when she arrived home after a long day at the studio and took time to ask us how we spent our day, we felt guilty about taking up the few moments she had to rest and relax.

I had hoped things would change after she married Mr. Steele, but they didn't.

True, she was no longer busy in pictures, but now she moved to New York and became involved in his work as well as in his private life. If anything, my existence became even lonelier.

After her marriage, Mother decided I would be better off at an academy in Pasadena, where she left instructions that I was not to leave the school during the entire semester. Since I was the only girl there on weekends, I spent my Saturdays and Sundays helping the nuns in the office. If it hadn't been for their kindness and understanding, I'd have felt I was in jail.

I was even confined to the school the summer after my graduation because Mother was away. I returned home three days before I was to leave for Carnegie Tech and found everything ready for my departure.

That was about the last time I was under Mother's supervision. When I got to college, I took advantage of my freedom to work—augmenting my $50 a month allowance from Mother—and to date.

I rather suspect that she went to such extremes for two reasons: to compensate for our lack of a father and because she was afraid of spoiling us. If one has to go to extremes, I'd rather be prepared for life with extreme strictness than extreme leniency.

Today, a starlet in "Wild in the Country."

Because we lived in a goldfish bowl, however, newspaper stories of what went on in our family were so exaggerated that Mother often appeared cruel, which was certainly not the case. Take the time Chris supposedly "ran away" from home.

One evening Mother became terribly concerned when my brother wasn't home as it got dark. When she couldn't find him in the neighborhood, she asked some friends to help look for him. They eventually found him on the Santa Monica beach and brought him home. The press got hold of the story and made it sound as if Chris was fleeing from his "mean" mother, instead of having a normal boy's adventure.

In all, I learned a lot from the discipline she imposed on me.

For instance, I can turn down an exciting date in favor of a good night's sleep if I know I have to work the next day. And I don't have to be driven to study for my parts because of the habits Mother forced me to develop in my school years.

Five years or so ago, I never would have believed I'd be thankful for Mother's discipline—but I am. I hope my own children will be disciplined and, someday, will understand why.

When childhood constipation occurs

More mothers use Fletcher's Castoria than any other laxative

Because

Fletcher's Castoria gives the prompt, yet natural-like relief from temporary constipation that medical authorities agree is best for a child's young system. Its pure extract of Senna is considered one of nature's finest vegetable laxative products.

Fletcher's Castoria is gentle, the prime requisite for a child's laxative. It contains none of the harsh drugs which are so often found in adult laxatives, drugs that can upset your child's system.

Fletcher's Castoria is liquid, so exact dosage is sure: from drops to teaspoonfuls as needed. Very important, too, Castoria tastes good. So children take it willingly, even lick the spoon.

Fletcher's Castoria is the only nationally-recognized laxative made especially for children of all ages. So why take chances... the laxative that's "right" for you can well be "wrong" for your child. Get famous Fletcher's Castoria today.

It takes a child's laxative to fulfill a child's needs

HAVE YOU EVER NOTICED: That it's easier to forget a friend than an enemy?

That people who appear to be the wealthiest on the outside are often the poorest on the inside?

How well two men get along with each other until they remember they're related by marriage?

How much you look forward to using your tickets to a concert until the big night turns out to be the one on which you'd give money just to stay home?

That you never notice a stranger's flaws when he becomes a friend?

That until someone you like calls himself ugly, you saw him only as charming?

How slowly a reckless motorist drives just after he has passed a bad accident?

How wonderful a child is in the singular and how impossible in the plural?

THAT CHILDREN raised with nonchalance never seem to break their arms, have pneumonia, or get run over, but children raised with nervousness suffer all these —and so do their parents?

That the things you dread most seldom happen?

That, if they do, you manage to survive?

How much better you feel when you give someone something you know he wants than you do when someone gives you something he knows you want?

That, consequently, it must be more joyful to be generous than grateful?

That no matter how many clothes a woman has, there is never a day in which she doesn't struggle over what to wear?

That the man who loves her best is the man who notices least?

How little is really worth hearing or saying in most conversations?

How desperately we strive for human relationships even with little conversations?

That the most important things in the world aren't really things at all?

MY MOTHER'S DISCIPLINE HELPED ME AFTER ALL!

Joan Crawford's daughter, who once resented her mother's sternness, is older and wiser now and tells a different story

as told to
Peer J. Oppenheimer

WHEN I'M MARRIED and have children of my own, I'll probably be a lot stricter with them than most mothers because I've learned that discipline—even in its strictest form—can be an asset.

When I was a child, however, there were times when I thought I couldn't stand the stern discipline of my mother—you know her as Joan Crawford. Many times I felt like crying out, "Leave me alone!" I wanted to rebel, even run away.

My mother's insistence on firm discipline never slackened from the day she adopted me until I finally quit school against her wishes and began an acting career of my own—without any support from her.

I remember when I was in my teens, I pleaded with Mother to let me wear the type of clothes the other girls were wearing, but she felt that teen-age fads were terrible. I agree—now—but at the time I resented it terribly.

One afternoon I couldn't stand being "different" from other teen-agers and donned a pair of pedal pushers at school—then made the mistake of wearing them home. When Mother saw me, she immediately ordered me to my room to change.

"When you've put on something more suitable," she told me sternly, "bring back those clothes. I'm going to give them away."

She did.

Contrary to popular belief about the children of movie stars, my brother Chris, who is now 18, my twin sisters Cindy and Cathy, who are 14, and I never had a maid waiting on us. Mother had household help, of course, but the maid only came into our rooms about once a month to do heavy cleaning. The rest of the time we had regular household chores.

We received allowances—25 cents a week when we were little, progressively more as we grew older—but scarcely in line with the allowances of other children of wealthy parents. However, we hardly got to touch the money. It was put into our banks and used only for special occasions.

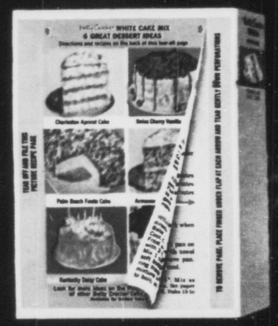

MOTHER'S INSISTENCE on buying everything for me caused a number of difficulties when I was first on my own. After I quit college, I spent a summer in the Westport, Conn., Playhouse, and then went to the Neighborhood Playhouse in New York City. Mother was furious at me for failing to finish school and refused to pay for my keep after I left. But I had to assert myself.

Those first few months in New York were rough. I took a job as a receptionist earning only $40 a week. Since I had become accustomed to expensive things through Mother's influence—her choice was always in good taste and extremely generous—I tended to
